"MAKE REVOLUTION OF EXPECTATION A REALITY"

FRANKFORT, KY. — A call to college graduates of 1962 to translate what he termed "revolution of expectation" into terms of today's realities was sounded here by Whitney M. Young, Jr., of New York, NUL executive director, in a commencement address, June 3.

Speaking at a commencement convocation at Kentucky State College, Mr. Young declared:

"May we do this not out of fear of other world ideologies or of actual extermination. It must be done out of love for people, wherever they may be, and in so doing our lives take on new meaning as we grow through diversity and avoid sameness."

Mr. Young told the graduates the Urban League is "poised and ready to throw its resources vigorously into this effort," pointing out that the League is offering its service and facilities "both to those who make the decisions in our public and private life, as well as those who stand to benefit from a newer, more truly democratic society."

The NUL chief assured the graduates that the League will pursue "in more imaginative ways" its fundamental programs in housing, employment, vocational guidance and counseling, and in health and welfare.

"But we shall do even more," he said. "We shall seek to get some of the even more basic problems in ways that will give meaning and substance to expanded opportunity, to solution of family break-down and broken homes, of school drop-outs and delinquency, sex education and other aspects of social disorganization."

He admonished that it is one thing to secure a right for Negro citizens, but "quite another to get masses of people previously conditioned and deprived to take full advantage of that right."

"This we (the Urban League) see as our task," he declared. "We are relying on intelligent young people like yourselves — and history — to record our place in this great struggle."

Earlier, Mr. Young delivered the commencement address at Florida A & M College, Tallahassee.
