

Account of Tour Given
By Gould at Assembly

Telling a few interesting incidents of his trip around the rim of the United States, on a motorcycle, C. E. Gould, teacher of mathematics, addressed the West Linn High student body Monday afternoon.

He told of the extreme heat of Arizona—110 degrees in the shade. Another thing that is different there is that while driving along the road occasionally one will see a sign reading "Dip 50 feet." This means simply what it says, that there is a dip of that much in the road. While in Boston, Mr. Gould became acquainted with a young newspaper reporter, and told him of his trip and later sent Mr. Gould a copy of the newspaper, giving an account of his journey. One bit told of the terrible rain storms he encountered, and how the loose gravel had made it difficult to travel. This is all false, but it is true that much rain fell in the South.

Mr. Gould said that the most interesting place that he visited was Washington, D. C. While here he saw the Capitol and the Washington and Lincoln Monuments.

The Lincoln memorial is a large marble building. There are 36 columns on the outside of the building, that stand for the 36 states at the time of Lincoln's death. The building has an immense opening, and within is a huge sculptured statue of Lincoln, sitting in an armchair. On one side of him is a copy of the Emancipation Proclamation, and on the other, his Gettysburg speech.

Another point of interest Mr. Gould saw was a Chinese Joss house, or Chinese place of worship in New York, beautiful teakwood objects, jade, and silk hangings adorned the walls.

The trip covered 11,068 miles. Mr. Gould left Hood River June 5 and returned August 8.

Miss Buse: Why are you late for school this morning, Ray?

Ray Wallace: I stopped two boys from fighting.

Miss Buse: That's fine; how did you do it?

Ray Wallace: I licked them both.

Thomas A. Edison Offers
Four-Year Scholarship

Mr. Thomas A. Edison is again offering a four-year technical school scholarship to be known as the Thomas A. Edison Scholarship, to some outstanding American boy who has made his mark in scientific studies.

The boy is to be selected by the State Boards of Education in each state. Forty-nine boys in the United States are to be chosen—one from each state and the District of Columbia.

Mr. Edison plans to bring these 48 boys to his laboratory at West Orange, New Jersey, and personally give them an examination to determine the winner of the scholarship.

All of the boys will have the opportunity of meeting Mr. Edison and he will present each one with an Edison Light-O-Matic Radio.

Three Students Try Out In Chemistry Contest

Mr. Cook, who is in charge of the Chemistry contest, is very hopeful about the outcome.

Three students wrote essays this year; Margaret Lange wrote on the Benefits of Chemistry to the Home; Margaret Vinson on the Benefits of Chemistry to Health and Disease; and Chester Jarrett on the Benefits to the Paper Industry. All worked hard, putting in a great deal of time and turning in very creditable work.
