

Subtle Satire

(Pronounced "Suttle Satire")
By GLENN CAMPBELL

THIS WEEK FINDS: Someone in the senior section shouting "They're Off"—they were referring not to horses, but to Leroy Adams' suspender—a snappy fellow that Adams—Lois Heater receiving a noon visit from one Del Farley—Dolores Wilken having far from a shortage of escorts—Del Langliers and Ernie Kahle being very attentive—Doris Draper driving off with three unidentified escorts in a snappy car one noon—Ecstasies over the music of Duke Ellington—I hear a few got to hear him—Miss McWhorter being given the rush by the "stag line" at a recent noon dance—Having nothing better to do sometimes you can have just loads of fun figuring out cute things with the first letter in peoples names (gets you in trim for the Amp. Ad contest)—Yours truly figured out one using the first letter in the names of one group of female musketeers as follows: Bamfert, Osburne, Young—You can sure tell where their interests lie—cute game don't you think (I will welcome any other gems you students think up)—Notice boys, remember keep your hands off the fireman, even if she er-I mean he is willing—Driving Instructor: "Driving with both hands on the wheel is necessary for safe driving"—Any dumb Freshman (or Senior): "Yeah, but it ain't as much fun"—Some of you smart "guys" that have so much to say about the dirt columns after they appear in the Amp. should come around before they are printed with your helpful hints and juicy tips.—(Notice to a certain person who has in it's possession two pieces of music belonging to Yours Truly. If she will bring them back I will try to meet her exhorbitant and unfair demands—

Senior Class to Present Spring Fever

The senior class has elected for its dramatic production this year a three-act farce entitled "Spring Fever" which will be presented in the latter part of April.

This play deals with life at Brookfield college and is very fast and funny. The time is the day before commencement exercises, and all of the young men and women are rushing about furiously.

The cast will be picked next week and here is a list of the characters to be portrayed:

Howard Brent — a senior at Brookfield college.

Ed Burns—a chemistry student.

Vic Lewis—an art student.

Lou Herron—a journalism student.

Mrs. Spangler—the landlady.

Anne Purcell—Howard's heart interest.

Vivian George — Vic's heart throb.

Henry Purcell—Anne's father, a rich manufacturer.

Phoebe Purcell—Anne's mother.
Maude Corey — Howard's spinster aunt from California.

Professor Virgil Bean—of the zoology department.

Dr. Dixon — president of the Brookfield college.

Annual Staff Begins On Class Sections

The annual staff for this year has started on class sections. Maxine Chaney is very ably performing her job as head of the class section department. The staff is trying to dispense with some of the more common things that most school annuals contain and give the students a more interesting book. Manager Lois Butler has proceeded to advance some very revolutionary ideas that, although difficult to carry out will make the contents of the book interesting. Lois also has been working diligently on the financial side of her job and states that the money is selling into the treasury. Although a contract hasn't actually been signed as yet, the staff has nearly decided on one of the local printers. On the whole the staff is very optimistic about this year's book and with the same cooperation in the future as has been obtained in the past the annual will be a big success.
