

1 Alexandra Mink, junior, slides on the ice in the streets during the snowstorm. Several streets in West Linn were closed because of dangerous road conditions.

Photo by Alexandra Mink

2 Alison Vogt, senior, and her family vacation in Leavenworth, Wash. during Winter Break. The long day spent together consisted of cross country skiing and laughter according to Vogt. Photo by Alison Vogt

Snow

3 Tyler Price, senior, rides at local mountain for Snowboard Team practice. Price performed a nose press on a box at the Hood River Terrain Park.

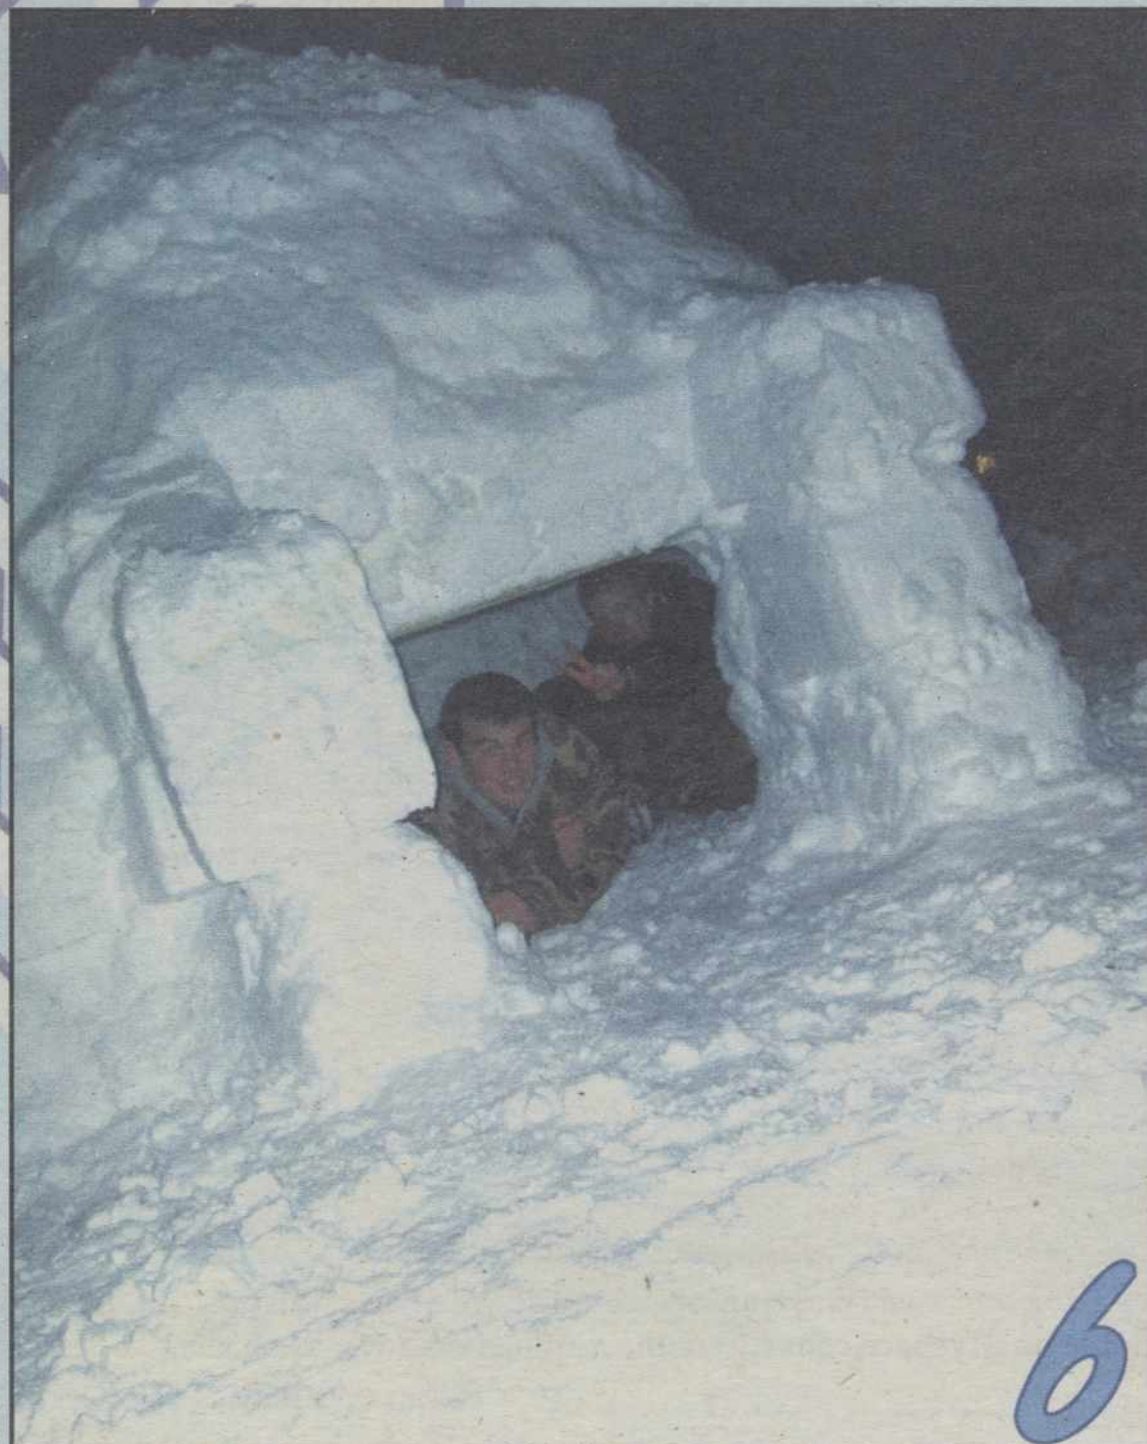

Photo by Brennan Wagner

4 While walking around West Linn, Allie Nelson, sophomore, took photos of the winter wonderland. In the Portland area, this December was the second snowiest month after January 1950.

Photo by Allie Nelson

5 In the forest behind his house, Cameron Church, sophomore, captures the light coming through the trees after the first snowstorm that hit the Portland area. Church spent a couple of hours photographing the beauty of the rather unusual event.

Photo by Cameron Church

6 Benjamin and Jake Stoneking, senior, and eighth grader at Rosemont Ridge Middle School, respectively, huddle inside a homemade snow igloo over the snowy Winter Break. The igloo was built by six people, stood over 6' tall, and took around eight hours to build.

Photo by Nicolas Varela

7 Morgan Joscelyn enjoys her snow days over the break by sledding down a slopeless hill in Willamette. Schools were closed Dec. 15 through Dec. 19 giving students and staff an extended

Photo by Callan Gray

