

300+ attend labor law conference

Union leaders know that U.S. labor laws will be under attack in the new Trump Administration, so it was no surprise that more than 300 unionists attended the Oregon Labor Law Conference Jan. 27 to get training and new information on grievance handling and arbitration, collective bargaining, organizing, union governance, legislation, and worker rights.

Norman Malbin, retired IBEW Local 48 general counsel, founded the conference 20 years ago. "It brings together union staff and leadership from around the Northwest to learn about cutting edge labor law, and build a stronger labor movement," he said.
