Celebrate labor history in Portland May 3-5

The 51st annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Labor History Association will be held in Portland May 3-5. PNLHA conferences are a unique gathering of workers, unionists, scholars and community activists. This year's gathering highlights the centennial of the historic Seattle and Winnipeg general strikes. It kicks off with a one-day labor history field trip for students. Opening night will feature songs from a rock opera commemorating the 1919 Seattle General Strike, followed by the exclusive American showing of a trailer from the new musical Stand!, a film about the 1919 Winnipeg General Strike. An Awards Banquet on Saturday will honor 2019 PNLHA History Makers. The first of two plenary sessions will include American labor historians Jim Gregory and Rob Rosenthal, who will present their views on the Seattle strike. British Columbia journalist Rod Mickleburgh, author of On the Line, a new book about B.C. labor history, will provide an overview of the Winnipeg Strike. Second, labor organizer turned historian, Lane Windham, will headline a conversation connecting past and present organizing strategies. Local activists from the Powell's Books campaign of the 1990s, and the current Burgerville campaign will bring local experience and insight. Conference sessions include: art & protest; women in labor; Indian labor; farm work; cannabis workers; labor post-Janus, and more. Registration is now open, with special early registration rates through April 20. Students attend for free if they pre-register by April 20. For more information or to register, go to pnlha.org.
