

To protect against the spread of coronavirus — and show union pride — some Portland-area unions have been distributing custom-made face coverings to members. Clockwise from upper left: Stationary engineers who keep things running at Oregon Health and Science University wear face masks with the Operating Engineers Local 701 logo; B&B Tile and Masonry employees Adam Knighten and Kristofer Lukas (left) wear face coverings sporting the logo of their union, Bricklayers and Allied Craftworkers Local 1 on a construction site on Northwest 23rd Avenue in Portland; journeyman laborer Jani Turner, employed by Andersen Construction on the E2 Block 40 project, wears a mask distributed to members of Laborers Local 737; and Pedro Serrano, an industrial painter at the Portland shipyards wears a Metal Trades Council mask.

Strong Banking. Straight Talk.

At United Trades, we're union too. That means we understand your banking needs in a way the other guys never will. So, during this difficult time, we're offering everything from greater digital access to skipped loan payments and streamlined accounts that help avoid fees. Because being there for each other is more important than ever.

WE'LL HELP YOU FIND THE RIGHT BANKING SOLUTION NOW, WHEN YOU NEED IT MOST.

503-782-5670

unitedtradesfcu.org/union

Your savings federally insured to at least $100,000 and backed by the full faith and credit of the United States Government
NCUA
 National Credit Union Administration,
 a U.S. Government Agency

