

Buddies

Don and Nancy Dailey, who raise llamas on their farm, found this stranger in a fenced pasture with one of their male llamas. The young deer has been living with the male for over a week and the two seem to be getting along famously, even bedding down together at night. Male llamas are generally known for being unfriendly; their natural instinct is to protect their territory from other males. But this big guy doesn't seem to mind his new little friend.

Whooping Cough

lack of air.

The tiniest children have such small airways that when racked with whooping cough, sometimes for weeks on end, they struggle to breathe and may have trouble eating or drinking.

Children should get a series of four vaccinations at 2, 4, 6 and 15 to 18 months, and again at age 4 to kindergarten, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Everyone else – infants' parents, siblings age 10 and older, grandparents, caregivers and even adults who aren't around small children should be vaccinated.

Vernonia EMS, Firefighters and Scouts conducted a silent march on September 11, 2012 in honor of those who fell on 9/11.

Where Do You Read the Voice?

Vernonia's Voice subscribers Bill and Kathi (Medges-VHS '73) Knowles spent two weeks vacationing in Switzerland and Germany.

This picture shows them in the Swiss Alps at Rothorn Kulm (7,700 feet) where they ate lunch with a panoramic view of the Brienzer-Rothorn mountains after climbing for 1-3/4 hours in a cog-wheel steam-engined train. Kathi said "...a picture can't do the scenery justice. It was so beautiful!"
