Where Do You Read the Voice?

Yes, even Aussies read the Voice! My person, Joan Delgado, snapped this picture

VOICE FIRST in Oregon.

It is important to know that in Oregon, you cannot yet reach 9-1-1 by sending a text message from your wireless phone.

- Should you attempt to send a text to 9-1-1, you will receive an immediate 'bounce-back' message that text to 9-1-1 is not available and that you should contact emergency services by calling 9-1-1.
- Oregon is working towards upgrading its infrastructure to allow text to 9-1-1 messages, but it may be years before it is available. The 75 cent emergency tax consumers pay every month on their cell phone bills will help to fund the new infrastructure.
- Even when text to 9-1-1 becomes available, you should always make a voice call to 9-1-1 if you are able and it is safe to do so.
