The first half of the month cautions you to be careful. The second half of the month is all about cheer and moving forward.

Pisces (February 19-March 20) Upheaval, setbacks, delays and general unpleasantness may occur before the 18th. The 20th brings much needed good news. Collaborations must be dealt with using tact. Blossoming finances begin over the next three years in connection to studies and travel. Worry may expose you to conflict and accidents. Travel, publish an article, start a blog!

Aries (March 21-April 19) There is a lot of commotion in your sign. All of it is exciting but tiring as well. There is harmony and luck in love, but nothing comes easily until after the 22nd. You make it through with tenacity and patience, not force. Set up a reunion, organize a joint activity and meet new people.

Taurus (April 20-May 21) October brings you good news. After the 10th you are in for a year of flourishing personal life and luck. For couples there will be a special event or opportunity. Gemini (May 22-June 21) Be careful of how you deal with October's temptations, impulses and opportunities. Love could be unsteady or changing. Professionally you blossom and improve. amazing what you can prohibit in the marketplace.”

In summary, Willer says his main message is that Wall Street timber ownership does not pay their fair share of taxes, and that management and financial practices have led to a sharp reduction in productivity and severe ecological damage. “Large corporations own about 80% of private land in the Coast Range of Oregon, yet you have your biggest land owners not paying taxes. Historically they were happy to pay taxes and they were profitable for years. Now they don't pay taxes. Billionaires are making more and grabbing all increases in income. It's not like these billionaires live here, but they own our land base, and I don't think we're talking about it.”

Willer said that the Coast Range Association is continuing to gather and analyze data which they can share with a broad array of Oregon organizations and citizens in an effort to encourage changes to forest practices and take the power away from corporate owners. “We are still deciding what types of things we can advocate for and where we see opportunities for reform,” says Willer.

“There is a lot of information and data yet to be explored,” says Willer. “There could be a public response to help small woodland owners, break the monopolies, and create a more fair market in the wood products industry for the players who aren't the big corporate owners.”
