What does that mean?
It means that the men that in a past generation would have been independent merchants are now the employees of these stores, and never can be anything else; employees on wages with time checks, fines, and their daily work dependent upon a manager's caprice. That is their prospect in life. It is hard (in some of its aspects), and we dislike to admit it, but it is the truth.

The gigantic department stores and mail order houses are built of the ruins of independent stores, just as the Christian churches of Rome were built of the fragments of the old temples, and each independent store destroyed is an independent merchant turned into a salaried employee.—Charles Edward Russell in Success Magazine.

She Didn't Care.
Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, at a luncheon in New York, said with good-humored mockery of the suffragettes:

"If they keep on, their outlook, really, will become as naively selfish as Mrs. Dash's. Mr. Dash, as his young wife posed before the mirror in a decollete gown from the dearest shop in the Rue de la Paix, regarded the pretty little lady indulgently, and said with a sigh:

"You do look nice in that frock, dear, but it cost me a heap of money."
"You dear old boy," she cried, "what do I care for money when it's a question of pleasing you?"

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

Famous Men Who Never Married

Among the illustrious men who passed through life in single blessedness may be mentioned Sir Isaac Newton, Thomas Hobbes, author of "The Leviathan," Adam Smith, the father of political economy; Chamfort, the greatest of French talkers; Gassendi, Galilei, Descartes, Spinoza, Locke, Kant, Bishop Butler, the author of "Analogy;" Bayle, Leibnitz, Hume, Gibbon, Macaulay, Buckle, Pitt, Charles James Fox, Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Michelangelo, Sir Joshua Reynolds, the artist Turner, Handel, Beethoven, Schopenhauer, Rossini, Mendelssohn and Meyerbeer.—Detroit Journal.

Seeing Things Differently.

"What you lack, my boy," said his elderly uncle, "is the definite purpose, the steady aim, the overmastering impulse, the all-absorbing, all-compelling determination to force your way to the front, regardless of whatever obstacles may lie in your pathway."

"No, uncle," demurred the nephew; "I've got every one of those things—all I lack is the sixty horse power automobile."

His Exhausting Mental Labor.

"If you have any trade or occupation," asked the woman of the house, "why don't you follow it?"
"Ma'am," said Tuford Knutt, with his mouth full, "I work fourteen hours every day."
"How? At what?"
"Wit' me mind, ma'am, same ez all de great inventors do. I'm tryin' t' think up a sub-tot for inly rubber."—Chicago Tribune.

BARBER TURNS BOOKWORM.

Artist Whose Declining Years Will Be Passed in Study.

Deciding to devote the rest of his life to study and scientific research, Peter Loesch, 75 years old, formerly of the Rozier hotel barber shop, has abandoned the razor and the brush for Hegel and Kant. Loesch has been a barber in St. Louis for thirty-five years, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says, and during that time has seen the city grow from a small town to a busy metropolis. He retired from business two weeks ago, and will study philosophical works for the rest of his life.

"I came to America in 1851," said Loesch, "and moved to St. Louis four years later, when I was 20 years old. I procured my first position in a barber shop at 11th street and Washington avenue. Although it then was regarded a high-class place, it had none of the modern conveniences which we now regard as indispensable. There were no electric lights, fine mirrors, cushions or adjustable chairs. We could not fit a chair to suit the man, as we do now. We were forced to fit the man to the chair. If he happened to be too tall we shoved him down in the chair and held him there until he was shaved. The chairs were stationary, and we were forced to dance all around a person while we were shaving him.

"When I first came to St. Louis all the beaux of the town wore their hair nearly to their shoulders, and had it curled inward around the neck, something after the style of the modern English bob. The fashions changed after several years, and men wore their hair sticking straight up and curled on the end. This did not seem any more foolish in those days than the modern pompadour does now, and I doubt if it was half as ridiculous.

"I was not only a barber in my youth, but a dentist and physician as well. Every barber pulled teeth and kept leeches to draw blood, bleeding being regarded as a sure cure for all ills. I pulled many a tooth and treated many a patient before I settled down and did nothing but wield the shears and razor.

"I could not speak English when I first came to St. Louis, but I purchased a good grammar and mastered the language without much trouble. I listened to the conversation of the men who came to the shop, and I soon became well informed on all phases of politics and current news. "There are many books I have not read and I will spend the remaining years of my life in study. I will read the German philosophers, also Byron, Shelley, Tennyson and the other great English poets, and I may have a look at the new problematic school."

Mr. Loesch owns one of the finest German libraries in St. Louis. He is an ardent student, being one of the first subscribers to the old St. Louis Library, which is now the public library.

BRAID'S PHRENO-MAGNETISM.

Touching the Bumps of Hypnotized Subject and the Result.

"There is one curious phenomenon in hypnotism which I have never been able to explain satisfactorily and which seems to be ignored by the modern hypnotist," says a writer in the Metropolitan. "It is called phrenomagnatism and has been advanced by the phrenologists in proof of the correctness of their localization of the mental faculties of the head.

"As far as I know, it has never received serious consideration from scientists, perhaps because based on two theories that modern science has not yet accepted, first, that there is such a thing as animal magnetism, and, secondly, that the phrenologists have correctly located the faculties on the human head.

"However this may be, phreno-magnetism is a phenomenon which can be tested readily by any one interested. The technique of phreno-magnetism is this: When the subject is in the hypnotic sleep the operator, standing behind him, places the tip of his fingers upon the subject's head and waits. Soon the subject will begin to act or sing or speak. Any one acquainted with the phrenological system of localization will recognize at once that the action or words of the subject correspond to the organ on the head which has been touched by the operator.

"Thus if you touch combativeness the subject is very apt to square off and strike some one or speak of war or a drum. If you touch veneration, he is very apt to lift his eyes and pray. I have heard a very eloquent sermon thus inspired in a subject who was gifted with a ready tongue.

"Touched the organ of color and he will speak of beautiful colors. Touch tune and he will sing or whistle. Touch caution and his face will express vivid fear. I remember that one subject startled me by shouting 'Look out!' and making a leap that he could scarcely have equaled in his waking state. When I touched the faculty of caution he thought he saw smoke."

Took the Dog, Too.
"We've been troubled by burglars in our neighborhood and the other day I bought a ferocious and very expensive bulldog. Funny things is, the burglars visited my house that very night."
"Good! Of course the new dog prevented them from taking anything?"
"No, he didn't."
"Why, what did they take?"
"Oh, a lot of stuff—silverware and clothes, mostly."
"Good gracious! Didn't the bulldog get after them?"
"I guess he did—I haven't seen him since."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Outlashed.

Wearied with his everlasting hikes, the Wandering Jew stopped to rest.
"What's the use?" he exclaimed. "I can't keep up with old man Weston to save my life! He's forty miles ahead of me and going like the wind!"
Running a trembling hand through his flowing beard, he proceeded to heap a few choice maledictions on the day of his birth.

What's the Use?

"You don't take your doctor with you when you travel now, I see," said his confidential friend.
"No," said the financial magnate; "he's too tyrannical. Besides, it's just as cheap to have him fix me up after I've come back from one of my long trips."
