WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

Now that there seems danger that there is to be no 1925 exposition, it seems that more were interested in having an exposition than was at first apparent. Disappointment is keen over the possibility that the proposed exposition is to go into the discard. Even a number of the so-called wilful fourteen, who were able to prevent the legislature from putting the gasoline tax up to the people, really wish that the exposition may be financed by some method and even some devoutly wished that the sentiment at home was not so strong that they dared not run contrary to it.

Without argument for or against any of the proposed methods of financing the big show, we wish to discuss a few points with which the larger number of those asked to assist in financing the big show have not given consideration.

The sentiment which probably was the last straw was a belief on the part of many that Portland should bear the full burden. There are many in Portland willing that such should be the case, while a large part of the population is not even willing that it bear the proposed two-thirds of the expense. It probably would be impossible to raise the entire six millions of dollars in Portland. At least to do so would be an herculean task.

Why is Portland not able to finance the big show alone?

One important reason is that it has spent many millions in providing port facilities which are a great benefit to the state at large and to Portland itself. As the port of shipment for the produce of Oregon, it felt the duty of providing to handle that business. The reasons were largely selfish, some may say. Grant that such it true. That does not alter the fact that the state benefits to a very large degree from these investments borne entirely by the port district.

Another reason is that Portland has alone built all Multnomah county roads, while it has shouldered a large part of the expense of the roads of the state.

Selfishness again, of course. But is that any more selfish than the wish that Portland finance alone an exposition that will largely benefit the entire state?

The millions of Multnomah county money which have gone into roads out over the state would finance several expositions.

Of the some fifty millions of bonds issued for road construction, not one cent of which has been used in Multnomah county, that county will pay a third, or practically nine times the entire amount asked of the upstate for the proposed exposition.

The tax on gasoline, a third of which is paid in Multnomah county, goes entirely onto roads outside of Multnomah county.

The outside state is taking millions from Multnomah county in gasoline tax alone. If 60 per cent of the gasoline tax were used to raise three millions of dollars for the financing of the exposition, the outside state would be only returning to Portland a small part of what that city has put into roads outside of Multnomah county, and only a small part of what it will put into state roads during the years to come.

If Portland should alone finance the fair, then no fairer method could be devised than to let it use for that purpose the gasoline tax raised in that county. Possibly if the bill proposed had been drawn so as to use Multnomah county gasoline tax money only the point would have been better impressed upon the people and upon the legislators.

Probably if the facts here presented had been familiar to all the people, the so-called wilful fourteen of the senate would not have needed to be so wilful.

The Corvallis Gazette-Times should be mighty proud of its 32-page New Year's edition. It is a mighty fine piece of work, well gotten up, well printed and graphically descriptive of the Benton county section of the famous, fertile, fruitful Willamette.

The Oregonian's regular New Year edition is the equal or superior of many which have gone before, which is about the limit in a complimentary way.

CHARITY AT HOME.

While we are beating files and drums to raise funds for sufferers in the near east and in other far quarters of the globe, The Herald, published at Fromberg, Mont., calls attention to the fact that within that state an entire tribe of Indians is starving to death because of the almost criminal method with which they have been treated by their Uncle Samuel.

This is not the first year this tribe has so suffered. The Herald tells us, but the suffering this year is more acute than ever before and the department having charge of Indian affairs has not taken a lesson from the mistakes of the past but continues to persistently neglect these charges of the government.

This illustrates the perversity of human nature. We are inclined to extend charity, but we want someone else to tell us where it should be extended. We haven't the initiative to go out and find it for ourselves.

We would extend charity at home, but we hear nothing about the need of it, but those who know about the situation in the far corners of the globe come to us with their burning messages. We are unfamiliar with the situation. We take the word of those who tell us, and it is not likely that any have lied, and we hurry to relieve those whom we do not know, may never see, may never know, and have no desire to see or know, while those nearer at home, whom we could easily see and know, go unnoticed.

Kem, and Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Jones and son Leroy Walton, the latter being guests of the Des Larzes from Camp Lewis.

The Catholic Social club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. W. O. Wilson. Plans were made for holding a card party at the home of Mrs. Barbara Hohl next Tuesday evening. Officers elected were: Mrs. W. O. Wilson, president; Mrs. Hattie Willis, secretary and treasurer.

The LaComus club gave Mrs. Frank Knox a surprise party Friday afternoon before her departure for Portland to enter a sanatorium.

Mrs. Elbert Bede was hostess Friday afternoon to a number of the married friends of Miss Marie Veatch, who two days later became the bride of Victor Kem. The bride-to-be received a number of pretty gifts.

Miss Nellie Myers, who was spending the holidays at the home of her sister, Mrs. Elbert Smith, was the guest of honor at a surprise shower Saturday afternoon. She received a number of gifts appropriate for use in her "bachelor" quarters in Eugene.

Mrs. D. H. Hemenway entertained a few friends New Year's day in honor of Mr. Hemenway's birthday anniversary, the affair being a surprise to the guest of honor.

Mrs. S. E. Markley was hostess New Year's eve to a few friends of Mrs. Ada Thomas, who leaves soon for her home in Wisconsin.

A number of watch parties were held to usher in the new year. The J. J. girls held a watch party at the Charles Stevens home. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kime entertained a number of married people. A watch party was held at the Baptist church.

The Presbyterian ladies' aid will meet at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, January 11, in the church parlor. Mesdames M. P. Garoutte, E. C. Shay and Anna Gowdy will act as hostesses. All members and those interested are invited to be present.

Victor Kem and Miss Marie (Decker) Veatch were married Sunday afternoon in Eugene, Rev. E. V. Stivers, of the Christian church, officiating. The couple were accompanied to Eugene by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Sanders and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dugan. Both parties to the ceremony are among the best and most favorably known of the younger set. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ida Veatch and the bridegroom a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Kem. Mr. and Mrs. Kem are at home in apartments in the Miss Esther Sibley home.

More than 60 members were entertained Tuesday evening at the Odd-fellows hall by the degree staff of the Rebekahs. This is an annual event. The hall was beautifully decorated with Christmas colors and Christmas trees. After a chicken supper games were indulged in and a short program given. Solos were given by Ernest Kurre and Frank Snodgrass and readings by Mrs. Ora Hemenway and A. E. Burrows. Mrs. J. A. Elledge then distributed the presents, nearly everyone being receiving one, many of them being comical and consisting of doughnuts, dolls, pickles and all sorts of toys. Mrs. J. Q. Willis, who is captain of the degree team, received a beautiful hand painted pin tray.

Mrs. Sidney Lasswell entertained at an informal afternoon Friday in honor of Miss Thelma Breedlove, who spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Breedlove. The afternoon was spent in needlework and music, after which dainty refreshments were served. Those invited were the Misses Enid Veatch, Louise Mattheyer, Marian Lowry, Lucile Davidson, Velma Hart, Grace and Inez Jones, Ruth Phelps, Mary Ellen Benson, Lenora Hubbell, Mildred Hopper, Genevieve Johnson, Hester Heard, Lillian Leonard, Mary Snauer and Thelma and Helen Breedlove of this city and Miss Vera Evans, of Sheridan, Ore.

Louis Seitz and Miss Ruth Lanau were married New Year's day at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Lanau, Rev. E. G. O. Groat officiating. Only relatives were present.

Doty and son Max of Eugene, Miss Margaret Scott, of Eugene, Miss Catherine Scott, of Cottage Grove, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Addison and children, Professor Wegel and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jackson.

Mrs. Mary Ann Sherman Dies. Mrs. Mary Ann Sherman died at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of her son Frank, following a stroke of paralysis suffered a few days ago. She was 84 years, 9 months and 24 days of age. Funeral arrangements have not been made but the body will be taken east for burial.

Mary Ann Ford was born at Mt. Vernon, O., March 12, 1837, and was married to Warren Sherman May 10, 1855, in Iowa. She had been a resident here for 19 years. Surviving children are Frank and Nyrum, of this city; David and Fred, who live in Iowa, and Mrs. Hannah Fortune, of Modesto, Calif.

Marriages Show Decrease for Year. There has been a decline in the number of marriage licenses issued during the year 1921 from the number issued in 1920, according to facts taken from the records of the county clerk. During the calendar year 1921, 416 licenses were granted, against 439 for 1920. The records for 1919 show that only 343 marriage licenses were issued.

Uncooked Fig Creams. Chop six figs finely and add sifted confectioners' sugar and mixture is stiff enough to mold into small balls, shape, let dry and dip into melted coating chocolate.

If charity covers a multitude of sins, it does more than some of the new fangled creations in women's clothes.

People!

Now if you will please listen to a little talk on flour, it may mean money in your pocket.

First of all, get this straight when we say "ALL HARD WHEAT" flour, we don't mean made of so called hard wheat raised here in the valley—because no really hard wheat grows here—we mean made of hard wheat raised in Montana, Idaho and the Big Bend country in Washington. That's what is made of. It's a really, honest to goodness all hard wheat patent flour, but it's manufactured here near at hand in one of the largest flouring mills in the valley outside of Portland. They ship in the wheat and make the flour here. This is your advantage—try a sack of NORTHWEST FLOUR. Have you tried it lately, it's better than ever. Satisfaction or your money back.

Northwest Flour

(BETTER THAN EVER)
