To the People of Lane County

Public spirited men and women from different parts of the county have asked me to become a candidate for County Commissioner on the Republican ticket in the interest of good roads, democracy and harmony—and being devoted to the cause I have decided to lay my ideas before the public before committing myself. I am aware that this is a somewhat unusual procedure.

I stand four-square for economy, efficiency and integrity. I believe that a County Commissioner should measure up to the standard Caesar set for his wife, i. e., above suspicion; and should so conduct himself that he can have the confidence, respect and cooperation of the public at large.

I hold that inasmuch as the county is about to go heavily into debt for road building purposes, it is of supreme importance that we get the most possible for our money, and that the bonds should be sold to Lane County people whenever practical—so that the thousands of dollars of interest to be paid in years to come may be kept at home. Also that the taxpayers have a right to expect as good returns from every dollar expended as is obtained in a well conducted private business, and, moreover, I believe it can be had.

I favor the extension and improvement of our market roads as fast as good business practice and circumstances will permit, with special stress on the Valley to Coast highway and its principal tributaries.

But if we would have good roads we must have an up-to-date maintenance system, adapted to our climatic conditions and circumstances. Our present system—if system it be—is antiquated, inefficient and often wasteful, and is based on the old custom of working the roads when it suited the convenience of the workers. I am not here speaking of the comparatively few miles of macadam roads but of the many miles of common gravel roads that serve the great majority of the rural population and are market roads in the truest sense of the word. They are also the roads over which the children must travel to and from school, and if in bad condition must necessarily have the same influence on the young minds as has the unsanitary, ill-kept home, if such there be, and these roads are often in a deplorable condition all winter. And the pity of it is that the taxpayers' money allotted to the district would keep the roads in fair condition if the work were done in the right way and at the right time. Let us have a system that will keep the roads in good condition during the winter so that they will come out hard and smooth in spring and be in condition to withstand the travel during the dry season.

I would standardize road maintenance and would have all patrolmen report each month, not only what kind of work they have done, but also how much.

I have faith in the common people, and I have reason for my faith, for during the 12 or 14 years I have served as Assessor here and elsewhere I have found that 99 per cent are fair minded, open to reasoning and ask for nothing more than a square deal. Strife and contention breed discontent and hinder progress; let us abolish the cause and they will disappear.
