Metro's Million-Dollar Photoplay Masterpiece

THE FOUR HORSEMEN OF THE APOCALYPSE

A REX INGRAM PRODUCTION

Visualizes with incredible fidelity the greatest novel by Vicente Blasco Ibanez, the author acclaimed the foremost literary genius since Victor Hugo.

At a cost of slightly more than a million dollars; after a year's work, preceded by six months of preparation.

Enacted by a cast of 12,500, including the 50 principals.

Denominated by the dramatic critics of New York and other big cities as marking the graduation of the motion picture into the company of the arts.

Produced by the screen's most notable director, Rex Ingram.

High School News

After enjoying the program given by three of the classes, the students are now eagerly waiting for the freshman program, which is to be given soon.

The baseball team will play the first game of the season with University high in Eugene today.

Harry Skilling doesn't like the idea of high school students heaving the 12 pound shot. He says it is too heavy when you hit yourself on the back of the head with it.

Miss Lillian Ewing, a former student, visited high school Monday morning.

The girls of the Monday afternoon gymnasium class welcomed a fair spring day by going for a hike. Mrs. Hemenway hopes to take the girls for hikes quite often if the weather is suitable.

The plant husbandry class expects to finish its orchard spraying demonstration this week. Owing to the wet weather, only a little spraying has been done. Orchards to be included in the demonstration are those of Mr. Young, Mr. Porter and Dr. Kime.

The members of the annual staff are urging contributors to get their work in as soon as possible, so the annual can go to press.

The sophomore class entertained the high school Friday morning with a splendid program consisting of vocal solos, instrumental numbers, a clever pantomime, and a short play entitled "Razing the Faculty." The play was written especially for the occasion. The members of the local faculty were impersonated.

The cafeteria has been unusually successful this year. After each noon hour one may hear comments that indicate that the school has a goodly collection of future housewives.

Roy Heck has gone to Portland with his father, W. A. Heck, to be gone a week or ten days. He will be under medical care while there.

On sophomore class day the class enjoyed luncheon together at the high school cafeteria.

Mormon Temple in Canada.

Mormonism in Canada will center around the town of Cardston, in Alberta, where a large temple is being constructed by the people of this faith. Here has been the greatest gathering place of the immigrants from Utah, who have established themselves in a land that is wonderfully fertile and promising. The temple will cost $1,000,000, is built in the form of a Maltese cross, and from a distance gives the impression of a huge pyramid, being 118 feet square and more than 100 feet in height. On closer inspection, however, the beauty of the structure becomes apparent, with its light-gray granite and concrete outer walls, six feet in thickness, and its simple straight lines. This temple has been under construction for several years. After the dedication, entrance to the edifice will be denied to all nonbelievers, and even to those of the same religion who do not totally abstain from the use of tobacco, coffee, tea and alcoholic stimulants, which abstinence is among the requirements of those desiring to be in good standing among the Mormons, according to their ironclad rules.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

At the End of His Resources.

A Portsmouth (England) man committed suicide, because of the belief amounting almost to a religion that when a man comes to the end of his resources he is entitled to take his life. This belief has accounted for the death of two of his brothers. The only surviving brother in explaining the death of his third brother, an engineer, who committed suicide by jumping from a steamboat, told the coroner that they were all great believers in this theory, that one brother had jumped from an ocean liner and that another recently had leaped to his death from the Thames bridge. He added there was not the slightest trace of insanity in the family.

Long Distance Range-Finder.

Among recent British inventions is a range-finder which is capable of accurately judging the distance of any object up to 22 miles away. This long distance guesstimate will be used for coastal defense work. It is three times the size of any used during the war, and it is the largest of its kind in the world. In appearance the instrument is a metal tube, 100 feet long, mounted on a carriage which swings round on a circular track in much the same way as a railway turntable.

Jud Tunkins says the Injun was all right until the white man introduced fire water; but just the same the Injun was lucky in not waiting till the wood alcohol was cased around.

FOR HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Quaint Superstitions That Have Many Adherents in Various Parts of Rural England.

In Berkshire, London Tit-Bits says, it is stated that fits can be cured by wearing a ring made from the metal of five silver sixpences procured from five different bachelors, who must know the purpose for which the coins will be used.

Another very quaint recipe is the use of a string of blue beads or a piece of uncooked bacon round the neck as a preventive of colds and sore throats.

To "cause love," all you have to do is to gather ten leaves of the hemlock, dry and powder them. Then mix it in the food or drink of the person you desire to love you.

For whooping cough take a mug of water from a running stream, against the current; give the child a drink, then throw the rest away with the current; repeat this three times before sunrise.

To remove warts tie up some pebbles in a bag with a piece of silver money and throw it on the road; whoever finds the bag and keeps the money to him the warts will go.

The tail of a black cat, if rubbed over the eye, will effect a speedy cure of a sty.

For a sore throat tie a thread of scarlet worsted round the throat and also round each wrist—this is believed in Ireland to be very effective. While for lumbago we only need to make a paste of shamrocks (pounded) mixed with butter and salt. This is rubbed all over the afflicted back and must not be rubbed off till the cure is perfected.

Great virtue is attributed to the briar, especially in cases of sprain or dislocation—the red-flowered species being the best to use. A strong twig is taken, about a yard long, and split evenly from end to end. The pieces are then held by two men with clean hands while a third waves his hands over the split twigs. If all is done correctly, the twigs seem endowed with life, rise up and approach each other till they touch. A piece should be cut off at the point of contact and bound firmly to the sprain.

Shackleton's Last Letter.

No death of recent years has touched the public with a greater sadness than that of Sir Ernest Shackleton. In this poignant tragedy, remarks the London Times, there is a deep sense of personal loss. Shackleton touched the national imagination; his vivid personality won all hearts. As Mr. John Quiller Rowett, who was mainly responsible for financing the Quest expedition, says, "Shackleton was such a generous soul—idealistic, impulsive, ready to help anybody in trouble. His last letter to me, dated from Rio de Janeiro, where the Quest was refitting, on December 18 last, gives a glimpse of the soul of this great Briton. Here is his letter:

"S. Y. Quest, Rio, Dec. 18, 1921.—My Dear John: One hundred and ten degrees in the shade! All the work is done and we are going. The next you will hear will be, please God, success. Should anything happen in the ice, it will have nothing to do with anything wrong with the ship. The ship is all right. . . . "Never for me the lowered banner, "Never the lost endeavor, "Your friend, ERNEST"

What Maglady's Employes Think of Him

TO THE VOTERS OF LANE COUNTY

Row River, Oregon, April 8, 1922. We, the undersigned employes of The Bohemia Lumber company, and their families, having a very high regard for J. S. Maglady, one of our employes and former manager, and wishing to do all possible to assist him in his candidacy for republican nomination as state senator, do, regardless of party affiliation, hereby recommend him to the voters of the county for the following reasons:

He has always been fair and square with his employes, never making a promise that he did not fulfill.

We feel that he is one of us, because he has always so conducted himself that his men were always interested in his business. He would and could always jump in and help out a man, no matter what the emergency, or the nature of the job;

He has always shown an interest in the welfare of our families in sickness and misfortune, and in every way proven himself as a real man;

He is a man of unusual ability, which has been demonstrated by being able to keep his plant in continuous operation during the strenuous period of 1921, when many better equipped plants were unable to operate;

We look upon Mr. Maglady as a man who can not only represent the interests of the farmers and the common people, but the larger interests of the state as well, and, therefore, we who know him are pleased to take this opportunity to recommend him to the voters of Lane County as a man who will make a real senator of whom no one will be ashamed.
