RECKLESS WALKER TO GET HIS

Thousands of columns have been written and tons of paper and barrels of ink have been used in telling of the capers of the careless and reckless motor car driver. Railways have kept propaganda departments busily occupied preparing newspaper copy telling of how their trains and their employees have been run down by motorists devoid of thought for their own safety or the safety of others.

Now comes a judge who scores the reckless walker, of whom it seems there are as many as there are of the reckless driver. "Bring in the reckless walker," this judge declares, "and I will send him to the workhouse along with the reckless driver."

Now what do you think of that? Heretofore the walker has enjoyed prior rights. If he took the middle of the road, it was up to the driver to take to the ditch. If he bumped a car and damaged it, the driver had no recourse, but now things are to be different and the driver of a motor car is to have some rights.

The reckless walker who refuses to give a car half of the road is to get the same treatment as the other kind of road hog.

The reckless walker who fails to give intimation that he is going to cross a road in front of a car is to get the same kind of treatment as the driver who neglects to give a signal that he is about to swing to right or left.

The reckless walker who neglects to carry a light to indicate his presence is to get the same kind of treatment as the driver who travels without lights.

The reckless walker who gets in the way of a car and wrecks it is to get the same kind of treatment as the driver who fails to obey the rules of the road and causes a wreck.

Reckless walkers have got to quit interfering with the normal operation of motor vehicles or take the consequences. If prudence doesn't teach them to do so for their own safety, the courts will compel them to do so for the safety of others. Isn't that the limit?

Tell the truth and you have it over with at once; tell a lie and you are kept busy explaining for a month and probably are discovered in the end.

Proper correction of their eye-trouble will help solve their problems—have the sight tested now.

DUTY OF EX-SERVICE MEN.

The boys who served during the recent unpleasantness across the waters performed a great duty at that time, but they have as great a duty to perform now.

America is preeminently a nation of peace. The greatest service to country is done during times of peace, for which reason the duty of those who served in the armed forces may be greater now than it was then.

The nation looks during this time of peace to those who were so eminently successful as warriors to organize upon a peace basis and preserve for posterity the principles which they fought to preserve for the present generation. Our recent warriors were picked from the flower of the nation. To whom else shall we look to preserve all that is noble and best in our national life? Who else has a greater obligation to take upon themselves the preservation of these things without which the nation must crumble like ancient Rome.

To whom else shall we look to keep alive during the next three-quarters of a century the things which the G. A. R. has kept alive during the past three-quarters of a century?

A drive is in progress now to double the membership of the American Legion, in which only those who saw service in some form in the recent war can become members. It can not be too strongly stated that it is the patriotic and civic duty of every ex-service man to join this organization and make it a virtue force in the life of the nation which they saved from the iron heel of the Hun.

Those who fretted at not being able to cross the pond and cross arms with the hordes of the Kaiser have an equal opportunity now with those who did get across and a greater opportunity than was given many who got across but who didn't come back.

Those who served so faithfully then should not fail to serve equally as faithfully now.

THINGS WE THINK

Things Others Think and What We Think of the Things Others Think

Life is so short it makes you long for more.

You never see a pleasing face on the person who is saturnine at heart.

Tomorrow has a persistent way of arriving for those who put things off from day to day.

A woman secretly hopes her husband will succeed in doing things she tries to keep him from doing.

It is not always fair to judge a man by the company he keeps—it may sometimes be his relatives.

The man drawing a good salary and earning it has neither time nor inclination to curse the universe.

The wasp waist is coming back into style. We know some men who will be applying witch hazel to their arms.

It is not polite for children to find fault with the things their parents do, but they often hit the nail on the head.

There may be some little satisfaction in having the truth hurt you. It is a sign, at least, that you are not entirely without conscience.

It is reported that Canada has some half a million more women than men. That's almost too much of a good thing.

In New York they have a woman's society which expels members for gossiping. We predict that the complexion of the membership will keep changing rapidly.

It has been learned that a wealthy Iowa farmer has been giving his sweethearts a 40-acre tract every time she kissed him. By that method girls around here would own the universe before the end of the honeymoon.

How did your neighbor's last bargain tire turn out

PROBABLY you know at least one car-owner who is always on the look-out for the cheapest tires he can find. He likes to get them by mail or at a sale or at some place where they have big red bargain signs over the door.

It would be fine if he could get "the edge" in every tire trade.

But the dealer can't afford to let him have it.

Even if a man saw any slight percentage in tire shopping at all—it disappeared when the "Usco" brought the price down.

A standard product—and the dealer sells it with pride.

A good tire. The dealer has no desire to trade you into a larger profit for himself.

An out-in-the-open tire. The dealer sells you confidence, not price. He wants you satisfied with performance and value. The only way he knows to get your business is to deserve it.

This is the "Usco" idea.

Compared with the ten-minute thrill of the bargain appeal, the "Usco" is just plain common-sense.

No tax charged on this 30x3½ "USCO"
