RANKS THIRD IN PETROLEUM

Russia's Output in 1921 Amounted to 28,500,000 Barrels, Engineering and Mining Journal Says.

Prior to the outbreak of the war the production of petroleum in Russia amounted to about 20 per cent of the world's production, and, in spite of political and industrial upheaval, the production of soviet Russia still occupies third rank in the countries of the world, says the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press. During the year 1920 the production amounted to 25,400,000 barrels, and in 1921 to 28,500,000 barrels. In the district of Baku the production in 1921 amounted to 155,000,000 poods (thirty-six pounds), as compared with 215,000,000 poods in 1919. In the district of Grosny the monthly production during the second half of 1921 amounted to 6,100,000 poods, and in January, 1922, to 7,100,000 poods. On account of lack of suitable machinery new borings cannot be made. The equipment in the refineries as well as the pipe lines is in bad condition. According to the regulations of the soviet government, adopted at the beginning of the present year, concerning the grant of mineral oil concessions, 30 per cent of the oil produced is reserved to the state and 45 per cent must be reserved for the home demand. Only 25 per cent can be exported, and all export orders must pass through the official mineral oil office. Payments for export orders are to be effected through the State bank or the oil office, and all payments are to be based on foreign values.

MACAULAY HAD FINE CLOTHES

Learned English Historian and Statesman Had Hobby for Variety of Apparel.

Lord Macaulay, the English historian and statesman, and inexhaustible conversationalist, had a mind overstocked with learning. And he had a wardrobe overstocked with clothes, according to Margaret Macaulay's "Diary." "Later in life," she writes, "he indulged himself in an apparently inexhaustible succession of handsome embroidered waistcoats, which he would regard with much complacency. He was unhandy to a degree, quite unexampled in the experience of all who knew him. When in the open air he wore perfectly new dark kid gloves, into the fingers of which he never succeeded in inserting his fingers more than half way. After he had sailed for India there were found in his chambers between 50 and 60 strops, backed into strips and splinters, with razors without beginning or end. About the same period he hurt his hand and was induced to send for a barber. After the operation he asked what he was to pay.

"Oh, sir," said the man, "whatever you usually give the person who shaves you." "In that case," said Macaulay, "I should give you a great gash on each cheek."

Shades of the Laundry.

A San Francisco lady was training a new and inexperienced Chinese house-boy, and among other things found it necessary to teach him how to receive a caller. "Now, Wing," she said, "when I come home this afternoon I shall ring the bell, and you must pay attention to what I tell you to do when you open the door." When the boy did this on her return, she handed him her visiting card and had him show her into the drawing-room. Before long a caller appeared. Wing took the proffered bit of pasteboard and gravely compared it with his mistress' card, which he produced from his sleeve. At the end of his scrutiny he remarked: "Tickee no same; no can come in."—Everybody's Magazine.

Read Right Either Way.

Anatole France, who the other day celebrated his eighty-second birthday, once received a commission for a "serial," and took all the installments of his story to the newspaper office, drew his emoluments and went off on a long holiday. On returning to Paris he turned up the files of the journal to see how his work looked in print, and, to his amazement, discovered that, owing as it was found, to the installments having been wrongly arranged in the editorial pigeon hole, the editor had begun his story at the end and printed the serial backwards. "It made no difference," the editor blandly assured him, when he went to protest. "No one noticed anything wrong."

Effect of Graft From Scalp.

The case of a wounded soldier who had to have frequent haircuts inside his mouth was described recently by Dr. Percival Cole, surgeon of the Seamen's hospital, Greenwich, in a lecture at the Institute of Hygiene, London. He had lost part of the mucous membrane of his mouth, and this was replaced by a graft of skin from his own scalp. It did not give him much trouble, but it grew so many hairs that he had to have haircuts inside his mouth almost as frequently as he shaved.

Why Milkman Was Late.

He was a milkman with a sense of humor. "Why are you so late with our milk this morning?" asked one old lady. "Well, you see, mum," he answered, "it's like this. The law allows us 25,000 bacteria to the gallon, and you wouldn't believe how long it takes to count the little beggars."—London Co-Bits.

Mars is getting quite neighborly. We understand the planet is now only 135 million miles and some fraction of a mile distant from this mundane sphere. By the next issue of this great family journal we expect to report that the distance has been reduced by that fraction of a mile and that President Harding and the King of the Martians are about to exchange greetings on neutral ground.

When you go looking for something along the matrimonial line someone is going to get roped in.

When a man gets so he doesn't enjoy a picnic an inspection will show that his head carries many gray hairs.

Your opinion of a man's character is colored a good deal by whether he belongs to your political party or not.

When a man comes home "stewed" he hates to be roasted too.

The Sentinel endeavors to get out a newspaper that is a good ad. for the city. In this it has succeeded to a certain extent—as has been testified to many times—but we have not done as well as we would like to do. We have been able to do as much as we have because of the support we have received from our advertisers and from our readers. We have done the best we could with the support we have received. How much better we do in the future depends entirely upon the support we get. The Sentinel will at all times get out a paper in keeping with the desires of the citizens and business people of the community as expressed by their support. To this extent it is possible for them to say just what kind of a newspaper they want.

Know How Much You Save by Painting Now to Save Repairs

COMPARE the prices of lumber and paint. They will show you how expensive it is to let buildings rot for lack of the protection of paint.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of valuable buildings are wasting today at a rapid rate, because they have not been painted when they needed it. Paint now. Save repairs.

The utmost economy in painting results from the use of a high quality product at the time it is needed. The best paint spreads easily—it saves labor cost. It covers a larger area per gallon than "cheap" paint.

But most important, the best paint serves five or more years longer than "cheap" paint.

It's economy, then, to paint when
