REPUBLICANS PULL US OUT OF DEMOCRATIC HOLE

Congressman Hawley Tells of Danger Country Was in Because of Wilson Misadministration.

In a plain, convincing argument, replete with homely similes, Congressman W. C. Hawley, in an address here Saturday showed that under the administration of the republican party the country has prospered while under that of the democratic party the conditions have been the reverse. He presented figures to show that during the two years of republican power the operating expenses have been reduced to the exact amount that they were under the last year of the Taft administration, which was partly accomplished by sending back to useful occupation some 350,000 useless employees which the extravagant and profligate democratic party had put on the payrolls during the greatest spending orgy in the history of the country. "When the republicans came into power," the congressman stated, "although it was two years after the war, we found war supplies running into the hundreds of millions still being delivered to the government upon open contract. Many of them had to be dumped into the ocean because there was no one to shoot with them. A thousand cannons were delivered in France long after the signing of the armistice and half of that number were delivered in England. During the war the democratic administration bought three saddles for every four-footed animal owned by the government, harnesses for thousands of horses which were to be used on motor-drawn vehicles and seven halters for every horse and mule in the possession of the military organization. By such methods as these fifteen millions of our tax money was wasted and not until the republicans came into power was any attempt made to stop the leaks. The cost plus contract originated by the executive branch of the democratic administration was the greatest piece of graft ever invented. Those who supplied the government were plainly informed that the more extravagant they were the greater their profits would be. In place of these extravagances the republicans have cut down the income and other taxes, have given the country the lowest protective tariff ever enacted and have brought the expenses of government back to normal. The running expenses of the government have been reduced already from six billions to three and a quarter billions and the larger part of this latter sum is necessary because of the extravagance of the preceding administration and because of expense growing out of the war. During the present administration six millions of unemployed have been given jobs and now there are not men enough for all the jobs. Because this is a business administration liberty bonds that were

"The new tariff law may favor those of other sections of the country in certain of its schedules, but our own prosperity depends upon the well being of those in other sections. A high tariff always has brought lower prices to the consumer, because the protection of our industries brings home competition into the field."

An appeal was made for the unity of the party, "for upon such unity now depends the success of the party in the national campaign of 1924, when the democrats plan to win control of the government." He explained how the state school fund had been manipulated by the democratic candidate for governor, at the expense of others more deserving. "If he really wishes to play square he will make a show of nobility by returning to those from whom he took it the interest money he made by loaning money which he unlawfully borrowed from the school fund, or he will return it to the state. It does not belong to him.

Ed Casiek, of Albany, candidate for the joint senatorship, spoke briefly preceding Congressman Hawley. On the platform with the speakers were W. C. Yoran, county chairman, Eugene;

Mrs. O. L. Nichols, Mrs. Clara Burkholder, Mrs. J. H. Chambers, T. C. Wheeler and Elbert Bede. The latter presided.
