COUNTY AGENT EXPENSE

C. Simmons Would Underwrite Local Expense of Maintaining Agricultural Advisor.

E. C. Simmons, Eugene automobile dealer, has offered to underwrite the county's expense in maintaining a county agricultural agent, as well as providing an office, stenographic assistance and traveling accommodations, following the dismissal of the county agent in the county court's pelicy of cutting down expense and taxation. taxation.

While he believes the county the Sentinel office, left by automobile Monday morning for his home in Portland. He was accompanied as far as Salem by Elbert Bede, who went there to act as reading clerk in the house of representatives during the legislative session.

Your home newspaper is first entitled to your support.

Mr. Simmons is firmly convinced that the county agricultural agent is of benefit to the farmers of the county and that some method of retaining his services should be devised. Following a consultation with C. J. Hurd, of the extension department of the Oregon Agricultural college, Mr. Simmons has announced that the county agent is of benefit to the farmers and of retaining his services should be devised. Following a consultation with C. J. Hurd, of the extension department of the Oregon Agricultural college, Mr. Simmons has announced that the county agricultural agent is of benefit to the farmers. announced that should the farmers desire a change in the personnel of the agent, that would be agreeable to him, provided the man would make an effort not only to improve the agricultural conditions but that they would spend an equal amount of effort in finding markets for the products that the farmers raise.

The Irving grange is the first farm body to go on record as favor-ing the reinstatement by the county court of the office of county agricultural agent. At its regular meeting last week this organization unanimously adopted a resolution decrying the action of the commissioners in eliminating this office and in a set of resolutions enumer-ated the good things that the agent has done for Lane county farmers.
