It hasn't been officially recognized as yet but the excessive amount of nickel trimming on the front of cars is a nuisance which will shortly be classed with glaring headlights. When a heavily nicked car is facing the sun the reflections from it are frequently sufficient to temporarily dazzle the approaching driver. If the nickel is kept highly polished—as it must be in order to look right—the effect is much the same as though a mirror were catching the rays of the afternoon sun and reflecting them into the eyes of the oncoming drivers. Windshields and headlights cause enough glare without adding to the nuisance with an excessive amount of nickel. A little nickel goes a long way toward beautifying the car, simplifying the work of polishing the trimmings, and safeguarding the driver who is easily affected by glare.

CRATER LAKE

Ages ago a great, tall, volcanic peak, which has been called Mount Mazama, occupied "a place in the sun" in the southwestern part of Oregon, about half way between Portland and San Francisco. The volcanic action within this mountain produced heat of such intensity and in such quantity that the entire top melted, fell in and disappeared.
Naturally, utter desolation trailed such a tremendous convulsion. Nature, in her mysterious workings, added by time, changed this condition of affairs and produced a striking geological spectacle which is one of the scenic masterpieces of this earth. The opening or crater in the top of this tumbled peak gradually filled with water which formed a beautiful, deep blue lake—hence the name, Crater Lake.
This lake, almost circular in shape and about five miles across, is perhaps the deepest body of fresh water on earth. The surface of this lake is more than 8,000 feet above sea level. No inlet or outlet has been discovered. Its waters escape through underground channels which doubtless reappear elsewhere in the form of springs. New waters come from other springs and heavy snows. A belt or girdle of cliffs towers grotesquely above the lake and slope down sharply to the edge of the water.
The lake is invisible until one has climbed to the rim. The look down into it is indescribable. One is simply nonplused. This said that this world holds not another sight like it. The heart of this mountain is filled with a sea of sapphire-colored water. First the size and the precipitousness of the surrounding cliffs astonish you; then the unexpected beauty and brilliancy of Nature's coloring amaze you. The great walls of rock are spotted with yellow and pink. The tips of the cliffs carry more or less snow. The trees are a dark green. Below, the placid surface of this bluish of blue lakes reflects the surroundings with astonishing clearness.
Within the lake an island or cinder cone rises several hundred feet above the surface of the water. Geologists conclude this to be the result of exploding volcanic forces. This island contains a crater. This crater contains a pool. So here we have the unduplicated spectacle of a crater within a crater and a pool within a lake.
Another small island pops up out of this lake. As its formation crudely resembles a ship, it is called Phantom Ship. The fitness of the name is appreciated when it is understood that, viewed in certain lights it disappears, to reappear again as the rays of light or your position changes.
Crater Lake has been created a national park by Uncle Sam, in order that his people might come and enjoy the grandeur of this unequalled sight. (© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

the darkness gathers! How glad one is to get a glimpse of home when time and space have separated him from it if even but for a brief period! There seems to be a good natured rivalry here in an effort to make "our home" look a little neater and thus be the more inviting to the occupants than all others. Such rivalry is certainly pardonable.
Advice that is cheap may be pretty expensive if you follow it.

PONDER OVER THIS.

A verdict of $40,000 was returned by a New York jury as compensation for a broken leg resulting from an automobile accident. An eight-year-old boy, who was partially paralyzed as a result of being struck by a commercial car, was granted a verdict of $45,000. In Chicago a young woman was recently awarded $35,000 damages as a result of being run down by a car 11 years before. The annual list of awards resulting from liability suits is astounding. It is a gentle tip to the motorists who think insurance isn't necessary when "you're careful."

We are pleased to see so many of our citizens taking pride in their homes. The word "home" next to that of "mother," is the greatest ever uttered by human tongue. What a refuge the home is when

BOSTON COMMON

Boston was founded in 1630 and Boston Common, distinctive and unique among municipal parks or open-air gathering places has been in existence from the very beginning of the community—having been set aside in 1634 as "a place for a training field as well as for the feeding of cattle."

The Common occupies approximately fifty acres. In the early days the Charles river bordered on one side. Atop its highest point stands the Army and Navy monument "to the men of Boston who died for their country on land and sea in the war which kept the Union whole, destroyed slavery and maintained the Constitution," occupying the site upon which the British erected a redoubt during the siege of the city in Revolutionary war times. The present pool is of artificial origin. A gigantic elm tree that was old from the limbs of which executions are said to have taken place in early times, was a feature of the landscape until blown down by a storm in 1876.

To remain a fixed institution in progressive America for practically three centuries is an accomplishment extraordinary, yet here is a park—the Common, which has been a common in reality as well as in name since 1634. Its walks and lawns have been enjoyed by rich and poor, old and young, not only by Bostonians, but by citizens of every state in this Union as well as by citizens of practically every country on the face of the earth.

Despite the growth of the town and the pressure to commercialize large open spaces adjacent to the business part of the town, no street car lines have been permitted to encroach on the Common, neither has its size been reduced—the law of 1640 which declares that "There shall be no land granted either for house, plot or garden out of ye ground of common field," having been strictly complied with.

Pleasantly rolling—hill and slope—probably no other open space in America is in more general use, due unquestionably to the large population which resides within reasonable walking distance plus the fact that it is "right here in the center of things and does not need going to."
