Pleasantly surprising her daughter Ellen, whose birthday anniversary it was, Mrs. B. M. Prinehouse was hostess Wednesday afternoon to nine of Ellen's schoolmates. The little folks gathered after school and made merry with games in the grove adjoining the Prinehouse home on St. Helens court, until Mrs. Prinehouse informed them that there were ghosts in the house waiting to see them. The ghosts ushered them into the parlor, which had been made attractive with Halloween decorations, and seated them in a circle on the floor, where they were served with cheese sandwiches, pumpkin pie and cake, which added still more to the Halloween spirit. Those who enjoyed the affair were Madelle Beidler, Frances Mackin, Millicent and Jerome Burrows, Alberta Williams, Eleanor and Evelyn Hays, Charlotte Cooper and Beth Bede. Many pretty gifts were received by the honor guest. Each guest received a Halloween greeting. Mrs. Prinehouse was assisted by Mrs. Wm. Harper, Mrs. Harry Armstrong, Mrs. V. T. Randall and Mrs. I. A. EARLY ORDERS SOLICITED. Government experts estimate that there is enough coal in the United States to last 7310 years. Orders for delivery after the expiration of that period are being rejected by all responsible dealers.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM STATE MARKET AGENT

Below are five staple products of the land that have so declined in price that producers get only cost of production for them, and on some less than cost. These figures are from the department of agriculture's report for last year, showing the deflation from 1919. The percentage of decline on hogs is 44, beef cattle 35, hay 31, eggs 29, wheat 21, and yet for the same period wholesale prices of all commodities advanced 38 per cent.

The result of this condition is two standards of values—two price levels. Under the farmer's dollar is deflated to 53 cents, as everything he has to purchase has advanced 38 per cent while the product he has to sell to obtain the dollar has been set back on an average of 32 per cent.

There can't be permanent prosperous conditions under this double system. It is not based on permanency. High wholesale commodity values are largely forced by combination might, while low prices for land products are forced onto the farmer by the defenseless condition of agriculture. Demand and supply have little to do with either high or low prices.

So long as the present system of fixing prices prevails, the farmer simply must get in the game and pull his industry up to the level of other business—he must make his dollar worth as much as the other dollar—for the other industries are not going to voluntarily lower their standards to the present agricultural level.

Group action, compact organization, is the means. Farmers must run their industry just as the manufacturing concerns operate theirs. They must pool their products, do their own selling and distributing, control their production, fix their own selling price. The cotton growers are doing this; the tobacco growers have pulled their industry out of the mud and onto a profitable and prosperous basis by joint action; the fruit industry of California has changed disaster to prosperous conditions by the producers standing shoulder to shoulder.

Governor Pierce, in his recent speech in Portland, stated that of farm products for which the consumer paid $3 the grower received but $1 and that there could not be generally prosperous conditions under such an unjust and unbalanced system.

Cooperation by producers, retailers and consumers can reduce this excessive middle profit and middle expense. It must be done if agricultural states are to prosper. A more direct system of distribution and fewer middle interests must be established. Products must be brought to the working class consumers at prices they will pay, in order that there may be normal demand, yet the grower must receive a living profit for his work and investment to have normal production.

There is room enough in the "spread" between the dollar the grower gets and the three dollars the family pays to bring about both of these conditions, but it will take efficient organization. It is hard to understand that both consumers and producers will permit middle interests to add twice the first cost of products to the ultimate consumer.

Speaking of the productive soil of Kansas a land agent says: "Not long ago a man threw half a link of Bologna out the car window and when the train came back the next day it ran through a pack of 150 dogs and killed a good many of them." If a man would scatter a little of the root of all evil around in a country like that at about 16 o'clock in the morning he could come around after dinner and find a government mint in full operation.

It doesn't look as if it would be much of a job making a suit for a woman these days—just sew the edges of the cloth together, drawing in a trifle around the waist line.

IMPROVED METHOD. A surgical operation recently restored a man's memory. Editors will hereafter go after their delinquent subscribers with a surgical case instead of a shotgun.

Epilepsy is said to be caused by overuse of the brain. There are a lot who are in no danger of having epileptic fits.

HAS HAD HIS ATHLETICS. After a man has trotted around a pool table all afternoon it's almost an imposition for his wife to ask him to go walking with her and the children after supper.

A wife never sees any imperfections in the husband who is kind, thoughtful and devoted.
