Novel Methods of Taking Time Exposures

Tripods are more or less of an annoyance to the camera enthusiast, and few use them. However, it is sometimes necessary to make a time exposure to get the desired picture, but the camera cannot be held steadily enough with the hands to avoid doubling the image. It is, however, a simple matter to hold the camera steady if a cane is carried along. Just below the crook of the cane two holes are drilled from opposite sides to meet in the center, both slanting down from the point of junction. Another hole is drilled through the crook to take a tripod screw, of which the camera is mounted. A cord is run through the angular hole, the ends of the cord are stepped on, and pulled taut by pulling back on the cane which has the end planted on the ground in the position indicated, thereby holding the cane firmly in position. Another method of steadying the camera is to cut a length of tape into three pieces, and to tie or sew these pieces together at the central point as shown, making a form of the letter Y. Loops are made at the ends so that the foot can be placed in one loop, and each wrist in another. Then, with the camera clamped between both hands, an upward pull will enable the user to hold the camera steadily.

A waterproof glue is made by dissolving gelatin in hot water, to the consistency of thick cream, and adding a tablespoonful of acetic acid to each pint.

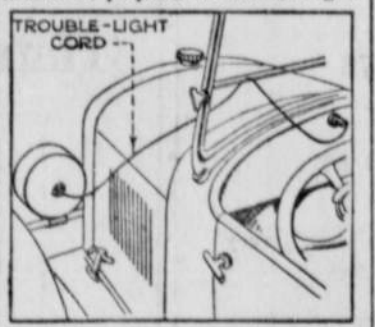

Useful Clamp for Stepladder
A simple and useful clamp for the stepladder, that serves as a rest for sliding windows while setting the lines or painting, can be made from two pieces of oak about 2 1/4 ft. long, with a bolt passing through the center of both as shown; a wingnut is provided on the bolt. It is not necessary to remove the wingnut to attach the clamp. Merely push the clamp over one leg of the stepladder from the inside, and then over the other leg, after which the wingnut is tightened. This tool can be used equally well on a common ladder.

Auto Emergency Headlights

When the headlights of an automobile are "out of commission," owing to a ground or a short, one or both of them can still be used, providing there is a trouble lamp in the car. The trouble cord lamp socket is removed, and the wires attached to the headlight plug, replacing the usual wires. The cord is then run from the dash-lamp socket to one of the headlights, as shown, or better still, by means of an extra length of cord, it can be connected to both headlamps, in parallel. It is a good idea to be prepared to meet emergencies of this nature by carrying an extra trouble cord, fitted with a plug at each end.

For animals that spend all their lives bathing, fish are about the dirtiest animals imaginable to clean for meat.

All widows are sweet. They get that way from the necessity they were under to develop an angelic disposition while their hobbles were alive.

We have often thought that some women must feel like hypocrites every time they put on mourning.

Nature produces many anomalies. The negro with his funeral complexion has the happiest of dispositions.

MINNESOTA ENGULFED IN POLITICAL CHAOS.

(By Robert E. Smith, President Lumbermen's Trust Company Bank.)
Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 26.—Minneapolis and St. Paul are surely the twin cities of gloom; a dense fog of pessimism has settled down over the inhabitants of the business world and there is little joy to be found. And the peculiar feature of the situation is that there is really no good reason for the crepe which all seem to delight in hanging.

THE QUALITY STORE—GOOD SERVICE

There has been a good wheat crop, grown at lower prices than former crops; in southern Minnesota and in Iowa there has been a marvelous corn crop, sold at record prices; farmers have gone into dairying on an extensive scale and are doing extremely well; there has been plenty of work for everyone; collections are good and savings bank deposits are steadily growing; but still the people will not buy. No one knows exactly why but, in view of conditions as stated, it seems a foregone conclusion that the trouble is psychological and not economic. A typical case was related to me by a country banker whom I met at one of the large St. Paul banks. He lives in a southern Minnesota town of about 500 inhabitants. The town has bank deposits of over a million, a creamery which disburses $200,000 annually, the country surrounding it has had a good wheat crop and a wonderful corn crop at big prices, the farmers are all out of debt—but still they won't buy. So-called financial wisecracks explain this condition by blaming newspaper propaganda and the political situation. They say so much has been said about the deplorable condition of the farmer that the farmers themselves have begun to believe in the hopelessness of their own state. They believe the newspapers and ignore what their bank books say. Politically there is chaos; in fact, there is no political situation. Magnus Johnson and Shipstead and other socialists are in control of the republican party. Governor Preus, a former republican leader, is entirely discredited because of his overwhelming defeat by Magnus Johnson. There is no democratic party. The former labor party, or non-partisan league, or socialist party—call it what you will; it calls itself the republican party and elect enough of its members to control the legislature, both senate and house. Conditions and sentiment are just the reverse from those in Winnipeg. There conditions are really discouraging, but the farmers and business men, with British grit, are plugging away, determined to carry on, and they are whistling while they are doing it. In Minnesota, conditions are as reasonably good as any fair-minded person could ask, but the farmers and business men—the farmers in particular—are in a blue funk. There is, however, some excuse for the jobbers and bankers who have dealings with North Dakota, because that state is truly in a des-
