STATE AND NATION NOT TO HELP LANE COUNTY ROADS

There is not much hope for Lane county securing additional state or government money for highway construction this year, said County Judge Barnard upon his return from the meeting of the state highway commission in Portland.

The judge said that the projects now under way by the state commission and the United States bureau of public roads will be continued, but on account of lack of funds available he and the two commissioners from here were given no promises by the state and federal officials that any new work will be undertaken, except probably a project on Indian creek, where the county court has budgeted $2000 for construction and where the forest service may cooperate.

The Lane county officials asked for cooperation in the extension of the lower Willamette highway, on the lower end of the Eugene-Florence highway and on a part of the Roosevelt highway extending from Glendale to Canby.

Hinds Estate Is Sued. Nellie Blanche Brownell, of Eugene, has instituted suit in circuit court against Eleanor Hinds and George O. Knowles, as administrator of the estate of Fingal Hinds, deceased, seeking to have a deed to certain land declared a mortgage. It is alleged that Leslie E. Hodges and Charlotte A. Hodges borrowed a sum of money from Fingal A. Hinds and gave a warranty deed to land in section 33, township 20 south of range 3 west, as a mortgage to secure the loan.

Subsequently the property was conveyed to the plaintiff. It is alleged that the plaintiff has offered to pay the defendants the balance of $40 alleged due on the loan, but that it was refused and that they refuse to execute a conveyance to the land.

Income Tax Blanks Arrive. The blanks for reporting the federal income tax are now being received. Taxpayers are particularly urged by the collector of internal revenue to be sure to use the correct blank.

The short form, 1040-A, is to be used only by individuals whose net income consists of salaries, wages, commissions and interests not exceeding $5000 in the aggregate. The large form, 1040, must be used by individuals whose net income from all sources was in excess of $5000. The large form must also be used by every individual any part of whose income was derived from business or profession, farming, sale of property or rents, regardless of the amount. This is a change from the small forms formerly used for individuals.

They know that there should not be a difference of $1.39 between a dinner in Union county and Portland. In such a "spread" they know the consumer pays far too much and the producer receives far too little—injustice to both.

(Editorial note.—The Sentinel believes that there is not the least doubt that it is imperative that the producer get more for his product, but it also believes that one who charges unfairness must show his own disposition to play absolutely fair. The state market agent is far from as careful as he should be in this respect. In the first place, it is not stated what class of Portland restaurant was taken for the comparison. Some persons are perfectly willing to pay for service alone the difference between $1.55 and 16 cents to which the market agent refers. In order to make the comparison fair, the market agent should separate what the restaurant charges for service from what it actually charges for the food. A better comparison would be one showing what it costs a Portland housewife, charging for her own labor, to put the same food on her table. Using restaurant prices for comparison gives no idea whatever as to what the producer should receive—or how big the spread may be.)

Farm products pass through too many hands and too many profits are taken between the grower and eater. Recently the state market agent followed a sack of potatoes from the grower just outside of Portland to the retailer on Eighth street and the price more than doubled in the 12 miles of handling. Yet each middleman showed that he had not made more than a fair profit on his share of the handling. The trouble was that too many handled the sack of spuds, too many rakeoffs were taken.

There is no good reason why farmers should not handle their food products in the same way that big factories handle their food products. Shoe factories do not ship their output to the jobbers and wholesalers and take the "market price." They fix the market price before the goods leave the factory. They do it through combination strength. They can always get a profitable price by refusing to sell for any other price. They are in control of the supply.

In Washington state there is much progress being made in cooperation between producer and consumer. There are 99 cooperative stores in that state and the matter of shortening the route and reducing the number of profits between the farmer and the kitchen is now being worked out. It is slow work because of the opposition of the middle interests and the apathy of the consumers, but the movement is growing.

When realization is secured into the heads of farmers that they must by combination strength control their products and their distribution, then will they pull up to the other standards. An organization that controls but 20 or 30 per cent of an output will not be of much force in marketing. It must have 80 per cent control to be a factor in marketing and price fixing.

When farmers quit arguing and sign up to deliver every sack of their spuds to a central selling agency, every pound of their pork and beef, every bushel of their grain, every crate of their apples, small fruits and other products, then they will be able to get a fair profit price for their labors. Then will they be able to determine the market price, rather than the brokers, wholesalers, commission men and other interests. There are plenty of workable cooperative plans ready for the work when the farmers are ready for the plans.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM STATE MARKET AGENT

At Imbler, in Union county, 150 farmers and their wives gathered at a recent farmers' meeting at which a dinner was served. Nearly everything on the table was the product of the farms and the cost per plate was computed, based on the prices the farmer received for the food products, plus the labor cost of preparing the meal. The actual cost per plate was 16 cents. This same menu was then figured at prices charged by Portland restaurants and the cost per plate was $1.55—a difference of $1.39 between the farm price and the price charged by the Portland restaurants. In other terms, it cost $24 to feed 150 persons in eastern Oregon and $232.50 to feed the same food to the same group in Portland—a spread of $208.50.

Farmers do not want other standards pulled down to their level, but they ask that theirs be raised to conform with those of other industries.
