

Our Civic Creed

Our Town is the place where our home is founded; where our business is situated; where our vote is cast; where our children are educated; where our neighbors dwell; and where our life is chiefly lived.

Our Town has a right to our civic loyalty. It supports us and we should support it.

Our Town wants our citizenship, not partisanship; friendliness, not offishness; cooperation, not dissension; sympathy, not criticism; our intelligent support, not indifference.

Our Town supplies us with law and order, trade, friends, education, rights, recreation, and the rights of a free-born citizen. We should believe in our town and work for it, and we will, so help us God.

A Willing Sacrifice.
"Mamma," said little Elsie, "I do wish I had some money to give you for the poor children."

Her mother, wishing to teach her the lesson of self-sacrifice, said: "Very well, dear, if you would like to go without sugar for a week, I'll give you the money instead, and then you will have some."

The little one considered solemnly for a moment and then said, "Must it be sugar, mamma?"

"Why no, darling, not necessarily. What would you like to do without?"

"Soap, mamma," was Elsie's answer.—Boston Transcript.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM STATE MARKET AGENT

Every eleventh farm house in the United States is vacant, so states the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C. It states further that out of a total of 2,298,000 owners and tenant farmers "more than 108,000 have lost their farms or other property through foreclosure or bankruptcy; over 123,000 have lost their property without legal proceedings, and nearly 373,000 have retained their property only through the leniency of creditors."

These figures from this source should mean something to the farmers of Oregon. It should warn them that if these conditions continue the values will drop out of their land as it has dropped out of the German mark.

The day has gone by for making money in farming by buying a piece of land and selling it at a profit. The buyer today uses cold figures and hard estimates. Can he make six or seven per cent interest on the price asked for the farm? If he cannot, the price asked is too high and he will not buy it.

It is most important for farmers to realize that if they hope to have their land worth anywhere near what they paid for it, they must put a value in the land. It is up to them to make farming profitable in order to make land desirable. This must be done in the same way that a failing manufacturing industry is reorganized and put on a paying basis. There must be an organization that can sell the products of the farm at a fair margin of profit.

If this organization never went any further than handling its products from the producer to the retailer, it would make farming unprofitable. If it never got a cent higher prices for products than now, but could itself take over a large part of the middle profits, farming would be profitable.

Retail prices are high enough now to warrant prosperous agricultural conditions. The trouble is that the producer does not get the profits between himself and the consumer. An army of middle interests live off the added costs between the farm and the home. Products go through far too many hands. If farmers received fair profits for their products today, and the middle interests added their present profits and expenses, food products would go to consumers at such high prices they could not buy. So, in order that this middle toll system may continue, products must be bought at cost or less from the farmers.

What farmers must do is to organize against this middle profit system, break it up and deliver their own goods. They must be their own middle men. They must handle their goods all the way from the farm to the retail store.

It looks like a big undertaking and many are discouraged before they start. They declare that such a movement must be national to be effective; that it will need large financing and farmers are not in a position to stand the expense.

They are looking at the wrong end of the movement. Such organization must start locally. Let the counties organize first and when they are organized a state union comes naturally. And how long would it take to have a powerful national organization if each state would walk into the movement of uniting the farmers of each county into selling agencies?

If the brokers, commission interests, speculators, wholesalers and retailers can organize strong enough to force farmers to sell their products for less than their production costs, cannot the producers themselves organize strong enough not to sell to these middle-profit takers?
