BILL CAMPER.

(By F. V. Horton, United States forest service, with apologies to John G. Whittier.)

Bill Camper, one hot August day, Cranked his jit and drove away.

Up in the forest's cooling shade A camp fire 'gainst a log he made. His dinner cooked, broadcast the cans,

Threw in the brook the greasy pans. Fishing he went, no whit of care Gave to the fire left burning there.

When Bill returned to camp at six, Things sure were in an awful fix. The fire, of course, had grown and spread;

Burned was his jit, also his bed. Dead was the grass and flowers and trees;

Gone were the birds and humming bees. The once clean spot all black with soot,

Bill miles from home and plumb afoot. Now Ranger Brown rode up the line (He'd looked for Bill since dinner time)

And said, "Bill, this is sure a mess Caused by your cussed carelessness."

The ranger took Bill into town Before a judge who wore a frown.

And Bill, with chilling thoughts of jail, Told to the judge the sad, sad tale.

"My trip is spoiled, my jitney burned; I think my lesson I have learned."

While still Bill's eyes were filled with brine The judge remarked, "Ten dollars fine;

And if you pull this stunt again I think I'll send you to the pen."

Now Bill's hard luck this thought inspires: Let's put out, keep out, forest fires.

The six weeks' course in how to select a wife, offered by the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. is well enough, but it should be followed by a much longer course in how to support her. The Y. W. C. A. might take a tip from this and offer a course in how to get selected.
