hanged part way across that forty. I am no bluffer and everyone around here knows it. I will move Mr. Turner's barn off the highway strip for one-half of what I said should have been allowed for it, or $50, or I will build Mr. Turner a new one as good as the old one ever was for $300. Of course I want a road where I can get to it with a good truck to haul the lum-ber. I stand ready to do this if taken up soon and I will complete t within 30 days from time of acceptance. I stand ready to give

If Mr. Turner wishes he can leave his old barn where it is and I will put the new barn on the farm of some neighbor. This will give Mr. barn or to make a profit by selling it to the neighbor at the price he ets as the value.

I again assert that my explanation in regard to Mr. Sharp and the Turner case and the Cottage Grove-Lorane road were the bare truth and in no way exaggerated, but I will admit that a good argument is being put up against me and in their favor, which is, in the lan-guage of Mr. Sharp's friends, that this is none of Woodard's dusiness, no matter who was willing to stand up and swear that the damage was over $650-I mean who will wilfully and intentionally jure himself, as I asserted that

In building that road they used great heavy trucks. In hauling in the rock they punched the rock down into the clay a foot or so and in turn the clay was crowded the up to the top. Then they used a road scraper and leveled it up with frozen, and he is of the opinion that most of them will fall off.

There will be a road off. peated the overloading until there are several pieces from 20 to 80 rods long where the clay is more permanent than the rock and as winter eame on this splendid (7) read had to be closed against even an old Ford for it was getting just had not said a word in print about it but I have had some timber cruised and I can get a reliable cruise for one-half or one-third what the county is paying.

Several years ago at the Whitney hill I set my own fence over and gave Lane county a larger piece of better land for the road than Mr. Turner stood suit about and I never asked the county one single cent for it. I would have paid them for taking it if it had been as miserable poor land as the one-fourth of an acre that Mr. Sharp swore was worth $3000 in the Turner case.

When the highway went through lot of my town property in Mani tou park on the north side of Cottage Grove, it cut the lots in such shape that I can prove that it has already cost me over $100 for surgive anyone a title to it. In all fairness the county should have at least paid me a damage sufficient to cover the cost of surveying and replatting but anyway Mr. Sharp never seemed to want to pay me a penny, at least I never got one, and not only that, I spent another $50 in grading and tiling in changing the street from the Ninth street bridge to the new highway, but, as in the Turner case, I have derived some benefit, probably enough to cover my expense, and I'm willing to let it go at that.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY GETS WANTED MOONSHINER AND PUTS HIM INTO BASTILE

District Attorney Clyde N. Johnston arrested Elmer Wickstrom, bootlegger, Saturday night, placed him in jail, seized three or four quarts of moonshine and took pos-session of his automobile, a Buick roadster, in which he was conveying the liquor .

The district attorney often accompanies the deputy sheriffs on moon-shine raids and directs operations but never until Saturday night had he made a capture single handed.

The prosecutor was driving his car along Eighth avenue east, in Eugene, about 8:30 o'clock, when he a car that had been described saw a car that had been described to him as being driven by an alleged bootlegger. He followed this Turner a chance to help some poor section of Sixth avenue east and overtaking to the section of Sixth avenue east and Oak street, drove in front of it and blocked its way. He then placed Wickstrom under arrest, took him to the county jail and, searching the back of the car, found a quantity of moonshine. Wickstrom had been suspected for some time, according to the dis-trict attorney, and the officers had been on the lookout for him.

Information on the extent of the damage caused by frost to Lane county fruit has been given out by J. O. Holt, manager of the Eugene Fruit Growers' association, who has visited the several fruit districts in the county. He said that while some varieties have been hit pretty hard, Lane county, taken as a whole, will have a pretty good crop. Mr. Holt said that the pear crop has been damaged to a large extent, notwithstanding reports to the con-trary, and he is of the opinion that there will not be more than 75 per cent of a whole crop here. He said while the trees are thickly set with the young pears, all he has examined exhibit a black spot in
