WE BELIEVE IN THE APES.

They have been seeing hairy apes up in the St. Helens, Washington, country. They are so much about the Canadian line that the presence of the progenitor of man should not be startling, but where are the purple cows, the green monkeys and the yellow snakes?

Whole parties have gone in search of the hairy apes that were reported to have attacked a miner's cabin and to have buried great rocks through a hole in the roof. Surely that was no way for a hairy ape to treat one of his near relatives.

Some of the less credulous ones advance the belief that too much moonshine would account for the hairy ape story. There must be an error there. The kind of moonshine they make is not what they should take the hair off of anything—even off of a hairy ape and leave him as unaddressed as a modern flapper.

We do not question the truth of the ape story. We are quite certain that man had his origin somewhere in this section of the country—and some of them have not advanced far.

As has been repeatedly stated in The Sentinel, it has been definitely and historically proved that ancient Cottage Grove was the capital of the Garden of Eden country—even the fig tree, the tree from which the famous Spitznagel was plucked and the club with which Cain slugged Abel having been found.

If man is descended from monkey, possibly some have descended as far as the hairy ape of the St. Helens country. The whole thing seems reasonable—much more reasonable than it would sound to say that Sentile had agreed that the name of a famous Washington mountain should be Tacoma. Had anything like that happened, we should have given credit to the moonshine theory.

A Eugene paper says: "Today $100,000 in gold 'lays' in the vaults of the local banks." The famous eagle must be a female. We hope she lays enough so that the bank can pass some around to its friends.

MOVIE MORALS.

"Isn't it terrible the way so and so is acting?" we heard a woman say a few days ago. "They say she even smokes cigarettes."

We are not going to enter into any argument with the woman who made this statement, but what she said reminded us that this woman, and probably many others who feel as she does, often are attracted to a moving picture because of the appearance of men and women in the pictures whose reputations are based to a large extent upon immoral episodes.

The Sentinel has commented upon this fact before.

When a famous actor and his wife got a divorce upon the grounds that each was offering illicit love to another, The Sentinel remarked that the public could have a great deal of influence upon the morals of the movie people if it would refuse to patronize pictures in which such persons appeared. We did not expect our advice to have any great effect.

Why does Uncle Sam mean United States?

—because, in the War of 1812, an inspector of supplies for the United States army was Samuel Wilson, nick-named "Uncle Sam." The U. S. stamp which he put on the boxes was said by jokers to be his own initials. Lay in some Puritext Iodine experimenting with a cyanide process and has no doubt that large bodies of low-grade ore on the properties in which he is interested, as well as upon other properties of the district, will respond to this treatment. When this process, or some other, is developed, there will be no longer mining camp in the country that guarded by old Bohemians. Many ask, "Why not a smelter?"

In the first place the federal government will not permit one so near to its vast timber areas. In the next place, a smelter must be located close to coal and minerals which are used in the smelting process and so far these have not been found here.

In addition to gold, most of the ore of the district carries a large silver content. Some has been found running as high as 160 ounces to the ton. The Riverside and Oregon-Colorado are said to be good copper prospects and there are many who predict the uncovering of platinum deposits.

Speaking in mining terms, the rocks of the district consist of andesitic lava flows interbedded with pyroclastic material, the product of tertiary volcanoes or, perhaps, fissure eruptions. The ledges have been tipped in various directions by the local orifices which probably caused the uplift of the Cascade range.

The first operations upon any scale in the district resulted from a poker game and the death of an Indian in a saloon near the Siletz reservation west of Eugene. History is authentic upon this point.

The first stamp mill in the district was a white man named James (Bohemia) Johnson was participants in a poker game. As the result of a quarrel the Indian was killed by Johnson. He escaped into the mountains and set up a camp near where the Musick mine, one of the richest in the district, was afterwards located. Erosion had left bare gold grains in which were found strings of gold an inch or two in length. News of the discovery reached the outside world. Prospectors to the number of 500 came and Bird Farrier located what afterward became the Knott mine. He is said to have sold his claim for a few hundred dollars and to have been broke before he went to bed.

The first stamp mill in the district was located on the Knott claim in 1875. In 1877 Knott died and the property became involved in litigation. Other discoveries followed. Getting mining equipment into the district, which is 25 miles from here, a large part of the distance at that time over almost impassable trails, was so expensive that interest in the district lagged until about 1891, when Dr. W. W. Oglesby, O. P. Adams and others revived it. The rich Musick ledge was located that year and the following year a body of ore was uncovered at the Annie.

Since then there has been more or less activity in the district and there was a boom camp during the years that large amounts of rich, free-milling ore were being uncovered. At one time a 30-stamp mill was in operation at the Champion, which handled also ore from the Musick, sent over by an electric tramway.

This year the activities are greater than for many seasons and fully 50 men are operating upon various claims.

In addition to those already named, active properties are the North Fairview, owned by G. W. McQueen, W. H. Ostrander and Edd Jenks; the Peeka-Boo, owned by William and Herman Edwards; the Combination, a stock company owned elsewhere; the Cosmos, owned in Seattle; the President, A. P. Churchill, principal owner and operator; the Wall Street, O. G. Gilbertson owner; the Sunset, owned by M. F. and Dale Wyatt; the James Sears, W. W. Cochran and other properties.

Owners of properties in the district do not want a boom camp. What is needed is some one large operator to develop a process of extracting the precious metals from the low grade ore. Heretofore large operators have been satisfied with getting their properties of the high grade free-milling ore, leaving untouched the fortunes in low grade ore.

Incidentally it is the dream of many residents of Cottage Grove to have some day a scenic highway reaching the Bohemia district and following the mountain ridges to the Middle fork. Nowhere in the world is there a greater amount of uncapitalized scenic grandeur. Great virgin forests clothe the mountain sides with green. In their season rhododendrons add a riot of color. Rare mountain flowers are there for those who seek them. From an elevation of 6000 feet in places, the world lies at the feet of these mountains. To the right, to the left, to the front, to the rear, mountain ridges sweep through clouds of billowy white.

IS TWICE-A-WEEK PUBLICATION OF SENTINEL WANTED?

Newspaper Favors Change in Order to Give Better Service to Its Readers and Advertisers.

The Sentinel has contemplated for some time the change to a twice-a-week publication. Before making such a change it would like an expression of opinion from its readers and patrons. If the demand is sufficient to warrant the additional expense, the change will be made early in the fall. If there is no demand for such a publication, the probability is that no such change will be made.

The Sentinel favors the idea largely because it would enable it to give week-end news while it is fresh and would enable advertisers to carry advertising for mid-week business.

If such a change is made, the days of publication probably would be Tuesday morning and Friday morning, with rural route delivery on those days.

LONGVIEW PAGEANT BOOSTED

Prominent Citizens of Widely Advertised City Are Visitors Here Last Week.

Advertising the four-day "pageant of progress," to be held at Longview, Wash., July 31 to August 3, five prominent citizens of that city, who were touring Oregon, stopped here several days ago.

The big Long Bell mills, for which the much-advertised city was erected, will officially start during this celebration. These are the largest mills of their kind in the world and will be operated entirely by electricity.

An attendance of 40,000 is anticipated for the pageant and a monster amusement program will be put on, including a carnival, rodeo and motor boat regatta.

The Cottage Grove Lions club has sent a delegation. In the party who visited here were Mayor A. L. Gibbs; David H. Doise, president of the Longview chamber of commerce; H. W. Jackson, chief of police; C. C. Hunter, transportation official; and G. M. Hefenbrack, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Rushing the EXTRAS to the newsies—

Probably the only type of automotive equipment that is driven harder than a fire engine is the truck or auto that delivers the papers to the newsies and newsstands.

It's worth noting that Zerolene "stands up" in this sort of service as well as in all others. The Business Manager of the "Spokesman-Review," of Spokane, Wash., writes as follows:

"For more than ten years we have continued to use Zerolene oils and greases in our sixteen cars and trucks and three motorcycles. These carry our papers every day in the year over all sorts of roads in all kinds of weather, and may be classed as very hard service."

Why pay tribute to the superstition that "eastern" oil is "better" just because it costs more? Zerolene, made by our patented high-vacuum process from selected Western Naphthenic Base Crude, deposits less carbon, increases the gasoline mileage of your car, and lengthens its working life.

Insist on Zerolene—a better oil—even if it does cost less.
