(Eugene Daily Guard.)
Elbert Bede, who combines with real ability to write a keen appreciation of news and a knowledge of how a newspaper should be run, is making the Cottage Grove Sentinel, whose destinies he directs, into a semi-weekly beginning in November. Cottage Grove has had in The Sentinel one of the best weeklies in Oregon. Now, undoubtedly, it is to have one of the best semi-weeklies.

DAD AND BABE.

You little bundle of flannel and sweetness, you're only a tiny mite to mean so much to those who love you.

What is the meaning of that bewitching smile on those cherub lips that is like a lingering ray of reflected sunshine?

Are you smiling at the way you make your old dad dance attendance upon you, or have the angels, no purer than you, whispered something into those shell-like ears of yours that only you and they understand?

What is the meaning of that coquettish sparkle in your eyes when you coo to those who cuddle and fondle you? What joy, what agony are those talkative eyes going to cause 18 years from now?

You innocent little one, you do not know what is before you and have no reason to care.

We who have lived through an age of wonders can hardly conjecture what wonders you may see before those toothless gums are toothless again.

We have ridden in automobiles and airships. Will a journey to Mars or to the moon be as common when you are a grandmother as the motor trip or the swing through the air is to us?

We talk through the air for thousands of miles. Will you live to chat with the Martians and the angels about the throne?

We have little idea what wonders you may witness.

Possibly you may live to see the day when the natural beauties of a maiden's cheek will not be hidden under a smear of cosmetics.

We have seen the feminine skirt pick the microbes off the sidewalks and we have seen it go so high that no microbes was athletic enough to reach it.

Perhaps in the age of wonders in which you shall live you may see women adopt a skirt that will be a happy medium between the altogether too low and the very much too high.

There is no greater wonder to us than the bringing into the world of a human being like you, little winsome one, with your velvety flesh, your perfect body, your doll-like little hands that would be crushed were we to squeeze them as we would like to squeeze them and your shapely little toes that in days to come may make many muddy little tracks across mother's floor.

There is no greater wonder to the world of a human being. Will you live to see this and greater wonders taught in the grades of the schools?

You have not yet learned to form words, wee one. Your little mouth has yet but two uses—and one of those is to be kissed. Surely no one so sweet as you will ever become so changed as to speak words that will bring sorrow, pain and tears to those who love you.

Those coral-like ears of yours know not yet the meaning of the sounds they hear. May they never listen to words that may lead astray the feet you have not yet learned to use.

You're only a little mite but you've brought worlds of joy into the world for those who love you, and so far you've brought nothing else. Will it be ever thus?

You've filled a home with sunshine, dear little one. Are there clouds, tears and heartaches in the future?

You do not know what I'm saying to you, little one, although you seem to be paying such close attention. Will you pay as close attention when you do know what is being said to you?

When you do understand, may your thoughts be as pure as you are now, may your sweetness not fade with the years and may you continue to bring only joy into the lives of those about you.

If you know what you want, use a wand and it will get it for you.
