DON'T BADGER WALTER.

The people recently demonstrated that they have confidence in the republican party, but members of that party should not become obsessed with the idea that a mandate has been given them to hector the state's democratic governor.

The carrying through of the program, seriously proposed by some, to ask the approaching legislature to shear Governor Pierce of some of his appointive power and to hector him by giving no attention to legislation proposed by him would be utter folly.

A majority of the voters turned Walter down flat in the recent election. They gave the republican party a majority on the board of control. This indicated, beyond any possibility of doubt, that they are dissatisfied with the political game Walter has been playing in the handling of patronage and they have given the republicans control of all state institutions through a majority on the board of control. That majority may safely carry out their ideas in the conduct of these institutions. They would not be fair to themselves—they would not be fair to those who elected them—did they not do so, but to take this action by the voters as a mandate to hector the governor would be a sad mistake.

Not only would hectoring the governor be going beyond instructions from the people, but such action would make the governor a martyr in the eyes of many. The governor will hurt himself more, if left to follow his own sweet will, than any legislative action could hurt him.

The governor was elected by a tremendous majority two years ago. The Sentinel did not support him. The Sentinel said he would prove a disappointment to those who put him in office. Such has proved to be the case. The governor has deserted those who elevated him to high position. He has given no recognition to the fact that thousands of republican votes were given to him, that without them he could not have been elected. He has been unable to find a republican qualified to hold the smallest remunerative office.

The Sentinel expected nothing else, but the fact remains that he was elected by a tremendous majority. That majority is responsible for his acts, not the legislature. Leave the governor alone until a majority again speaks. We have an idea that when that time comes Walter will be invited to return to his bald-faced calves. He ought to welcome such an opportunity. The calves like him. He feeds them well and that is all they ask, but you can't give a hungry democrat enough time at the political pie counter to satisfy him, nor is there any way to stop the criticism of hungry republicans who want to displace the democrats at the pie counter, especially when a public official gives such opportunity for criticism as Walter has given.

Leave Walter alone. He is the governor of a great state, elected by a great majority. Let the majority who elected him be responsible for him. Possibly his election was a mistake, but no greater a mistake than it would be for those who didn't put him there to badger him during the approaching legislative session.

Representative Caraway of Arkansas said of a man who had failed: "He was doomed to fail. His life has been, in fact, nothing but a series of failures."

"The first chapter of this series began in an insurance office where he obtained his first job, that of office boy. He had only just begun on this job when his boss looked up from an important letter one morning and said irritably: 'Don't whistle at your work, boy.' 'I ain't workin', he answered; I'm only just whistlin'."

Universality

UNIVERSAL telephone service must be universal in scope—it must reach anyone, anywhere. But it must be universal also in cost—it must be within the financial reach of everyone, everywhere.

Years of research have been required to provide the telephone instruments, switchboards, wire and supplementary apparatus which afford intercommunication between housewives, shopkeepers, farmers and millions of other American telephone users.

But these facilities do not in themselves make America's telephone service a universal service. Telephone engineers have spent years of additional study in order to build, maintain and operate this nation-wide system so economically that the cost of service may be kept at all times well below its value to the telephone user.

Upon the two fundamentals of extensiveness in scope and economy in cost the Bell System has built the most universal telephone service in the World.
