REGULATING CHILD LABOR.

Many short-sighted newspapers, as well as individuals, are making a lot of fuss for fear the federal government is going to take over the regulation of child labor. If the federal government takes over such regulation, it will be because the states, through favorable action upon a constitutional amendment, ask the federal government to do so. Individuals and newspapers that quake for fear the federal government is going to take or be given power that should rest in the state lose sight entirely of practically the only argument that is being made for such federal regulation—an argument that applies particularly to Oregon. That argument is that a state adopting stringent regulation of child labor would be put at a serious disadvantage with states not regulating child labor. Oregon is now having a hard enough time competing in outside markets with goods made in the east by labor working under less favorable conditions than does labor employed in Oregon. Oregon industries find it difficult to even compete in the Oregon market with goods made elsewhere under conditions less favorable to labor. Those who purchase are likely to buy at the lowest price without considering whether or not the goods were made in Oregon or whether or not the labor employed in making them was treated as well as labor in Oregon. There is no question that the employment of child labor should be regulated. There is little doubt that Oregon is likely to be at all times among the leaders in providing better conditions for labor and for its children, even at the expense of its industries. Federal regulation of employment of child labor is the only method by which we can provide the regulations of child labor in which we believe, and which Oregon now has, and at the same time not put ourselves at a serious disadvantage in competing even in our own markets with the products of other states. That is the point that is missed by those overzealous ones who fear some state right is going to be taken away. Although The Sentinel supported the repeal of the income tax for what it thought to be the best interests of the state, it does not believe that payment of the taxes levied under the law can be avoided. The tax levied became due January 1 of this year. The repeal in November could have in no way affected an account due the state nearly a year before. The tax should be paid in full for the

BOOK DESCRIBING EARLY TRIP FOUND

Tells of Hennepin's and Du Lhut's Adventures in 1680. Minneapolis, Minn.—A yellow, worm-eaten old book, Father Louis Hennepin's own account of how he and Du Lhut in 1680 discovered the falls of St. Anthony, has been found in the home of W. E. Hewitt, a Minneapolis attorney. The book was published in London and dedicated to William III. Father Hennepin tells the story of how, after journeying from the mouth of the Illinois river down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico and back, he and his companion were captured by a band of northern Minnesota Indians. They were taken to the north woods, where Father Hennepin became ill. He was placed in a tepee, into which were rolled large round stones, red hot. These heated the tepee, while two Indians gave him a sort of "Swedish massage." The treatment was repeated until he recovered. Accompanied by Du Lhut, he and his party later started back to Canada, discovering en route the falls of St. Anthony. Near the falls they found beaver skins hung up to scare away evil spirits. Some of the party wanted to steal the hides, although Du Lhut opposed this, knowing the ways of the Indians better than they. Despite his protest, the skins were taken. Later the whole party was captured by the Indians, who wanted to kill them. Friendly Indians intervened, however, and the white men were allowed to proceed. Father Hennepin at the time was a subject of Spain, although traveling under an expedition financed by France. Upon his return to France, because he took credit for discovery of the mouth of the Mississippi, which the French contended should go to La Salle, he was exiled and proceeded to England, where he wrote his book, with William III. as his patron.

THE NORTH POLE—AND FIVE OTHERS

Earth Has Six, in Three Groups of Twins. Washington, D. C.—"The earth has at least six well-known poles, in three groups of twins, only one of which the Shenandoah or the Los Angeles, if they blaze an air trail across the Arctic, will probably cross—the North pole. The others of the polar family are the North and South magnetic poles," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "The most talked of member of the family is the North pole. Enthroned at the top of the earth where latitude becomes 90 degrees and the meridians of longitude converge, it has received only one visit in all-time. Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, with his retinue of Eskimo attendants, spent a few hours in its frigid presence and took notes on its refrigerating system. "Scientists tell us that this refrigerating plant, installed and operated solely by nature, never fails to register below the freezing point of fresh water even during July, and that its mean temperature in winter is about that of some of the Montana cold snaps. "Even Old Sol, when he returns to the North has been unsuccessful in breaking up the plant, though at the summer solstice he pours out larger amounts of his rays there than at any other part of the earth's surface except at the corresponding point in the South. If he didn't have to keep moving he soon would make the Arctic ice cap the hottest region on the earth's surface, but he only succeeds in melting some of the surface ice. In honor, or defiance, of his visit, daylight lasts for six months, but humidity, cloudiness and precipitation mar the beauty of his rays on the crystals of the snow palace. "When he leaves and night sets in, fantastic lighting effects, which shame those of New York's Great White Way, are brought into play. The northern part of the sky is illuminated by an arch of whitish, greenish, or rosy light from which streamers of white or colored light go trailing across the heavens. This effect is called the aurora borealis. "Though the North pole can never leave its kingdom and has been rigidly bound down by nature, it does manage to shift about in a circle 50 feet in diameter. This restlessness causes a corresponding variability in terrestrial latitudes. "One Caller in a Million Years. "When Admiral Peary stood on the top point of the earth, he was actually being turned around only once in 24 hours with the rotation of the earth. As he simply lingered for a few hours he made only a small part of a revolution—a pace which is not conducive to dizziness. "The other monarch of the world's ice lands is the South pole, twin of the North pole. Though there is all the distance in the world between them, in the main the surroundings are duplicated. The arrangement of land and water in their respective spheres of influence is somewhat different; the southern, a land zone surrounded by a wide belt of open sea, and the northern, a water body surrounded by continental land masses. The southern monarch likes his summers colder; in fact so cold are the summers and so regular the winds that there is practically no plant life of even the most insignificant kind on the Antarctic continent. He is also less exclusive than his brother of the North, having received two earthly travelers within his portals—Capt. Roald Amundsen and Capt. Robert E. Scott, but from the latter he exacted a death penalty. "The North and South magnetic poles, located more than a thousand miles from the true North and South poles toward Hudson bay and New Zealand, are the elusive members of the polar family. The North magnetic pole makes the compass needle stand up straight on its point, and the South magnetic pole makes it stand on its foot, and they both play tricks with all sorts of metal instruments by magnetizing or demagnetizing their parts. Why Compass Swerves From North. "When John Jones travels through northern Wisconsin or Minnesota woods solely with the aid of his compass, he cannot go directly north unless he travels just a little west of the direction in which his compass points, because of its affinity for the North magnetic pole. "The explanation of the magnetic poles is that the earth itself is a magnet, made so probably by the electric currents passing around it in an east-west direction. "The poles of cold are the Lehmanns and Hagars of the polar family—outcasts, both erratic and disagreeable. They reside in the places where the cold is most intense, usually in the interior of a continent. Though the North pole has the coldest mean annual temperature, there is a desert of ice in the interior of Greenland, which is the coldest part of the northern hemisphere in July. Verkhoyansk, in northeastern Siberia, on the fringe of the Arctic circle is colder in January than the North pole itself. It even boasts a record of 94 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, but its mean temperature for January is about minus 60 degrees Fahrenheit. During February Fort Conger, Grinnell land, on Ellesmere Island in the Arctic, claims the honor, with a mean temperature for February of about minus 40 degrees Fahrenheit."

Vienna Makes Record Speed in Home Building

Vienna.—What is said to be a record for central Europe was made here recently when a number of houses were completed and ready for occupancy within three weeks. The houses were erected as an experiment owing to the dearth of dwellings here and it is planned to build more by the hundreds if the scheme proves practical. The frame of the houses consisted of two sets of boarding which were set four or five inches apart. The intervening space between the boarding was filled with sawdust which had been treated with a chemical preparation which made it non-flammable. A coating of plastering was applied to the outside of the boarding and a family from the Vienna slums moved into the new home 21 days after the work was begun.

Water Found in Quartz Ten Million Years Old

Chicago.—Drops of water more than 10,000,000 years old, preserved in quartz since an age before life began to appear on earth, will be exhibited in the Field museum here. The water was obtained in South America by O. C. Farrington, head of the museum's department of geology, who found it imprisoned in crystal quartz taken from rock formation at Bon Jesus dos Melras, Bahia, Brazil. The estimate of its age was based on the fact that the rock formations of the archaic age are ascertained by some scientists to have existed 550,000,000 years ago. The water is clear and sparkling in its crystal container.

City Authorities Plan to Modernize Moscow

Moscow.—Moscow will rival in beauty and civic modernity any European capital, if present plans of the municipal authorities materialize. Preparations are being made for the construction of a subway on the American plan and the establishment of omnibus systems, taxicab lines, new tramways and other improvements. The present sewage and canal systems will be entirely remodeled. A commission representing the Moscow soviet has left for Germany, France and England to seek foreign loans for the projects.

Oldest London 'Cabbie' Mourns End of Horse

London.—London's oldest cab driver is Joe Mindon, who has been 60 years on the box, and whose greatest pride is the fact that the late King Edward was for years one of his regular "fares." Motorization of the means of transportation in London has left old Joe almost without employment, and he talks jauntily of acquiring a taxicab. Asked for his opinion of the taxi, the aged cabbie said reflectively: "They have driven us off the streets in the same way the busses are driving them off. And as for the traffic, we'll soon have to start burrowing underground. Give me the old days with clear streets and a smart horse, and time for a nap on the box if you liked."

ALL OUT OF SORTS?

So Was This Cottage Grove Woman Who Tells Her Experience.

All too often women accept their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fail to realize that weak kidneys are often to blame for that backache, those headaches, dizzy spells and that tired, depressed feeling. Thousands have found new health and strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. This Cottage Grove case is one of many: Mrs. Amanda Spriggs, 500 S. 1st St., says: "I had terrible backaches and could hardly get about and dizzy spells came over me, especially when I stooped. My limbs ached, my feet swelled and my kidneys acted too frequently. Doan's Pills soon had me feeling like a different person. The aches and pains left and my kidneys did not annoy me." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Spriggs had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.
