MURDER NOT NECESSARY.

Lawrence M. Hight and Mrs. Sweetin have been found guilty of the poisoning of Mrs. Sweetin's husband, whose presence on earth interfered with the illicit love affair between those who conspired to take his life.

Mr. Hight was a pastor and preached the gospel of the lowly Nazarene during the time he was planning to break one commandment as the result of having committed the greatest sins against a fellow man.

During the time that he was coveting his neighbor's wife and was planning to get that neighbor out of the way, Mr. Hight, in his capacity as a pastor, joined couples in the holy bonds of matrimony and admonished them that the tie was to hold "unto death do us part."

Mr. Hight evidently was a cultured man, one who should be expected to shrink from a great crime, even though he were not preening obedience to the laws of God and man.

We can not understand why he should think that the illicit, unnatural love of one who could stoop to the murder of her husband would be a love that would make him happy.

The laws of man, at least, do not frown upon legal separation, which may be easily secured upon almost any excuse, or none at all.

The inner cowardly nature of both Hight and Mrs. Sweetin was displayed after the crimes had been committed. Each blamed the other for it. Neither, however, escaped and must go to jail.

USE SKIN BOATS TO FLEE ARCTIC PERILS

Crew Abandons Ship With $1,000,000 Fur Cargo.

Winnipeg.—One of the most amazing tales of hardship and adventure that has come out of the Far North in years—a tale of hopeless battles with ice and sea, of a hair-breadth escape from starvation in the wilderness below the pole—was told by Capt. Gus Foelmer and members of the crew of the ill-fated Hudson's Bay company's ship Lady Kindersley when they arrived here after abandoning their vessel to the engulfing ice floes off Point Barrow.

"Well, if we had stayed with the Kindersley another day we wouldn't have had a chance." That was the brief way in which Captain Foelmer, a big, gaunt seaman, whose home is the Arctic ocean, described the escape of the Kindersley's crew. His ship, he added, probably is at the bottom of the northern seas now, with her million-dollar cargo of furs.

Not until all hope of saving her had gone did Captain Foelmer reluctantly give the order to abandon his stout little ship—and then it was with faint hope of reaching shore. Many times the skipper and sailors of the Kindersley had attempted to make their way to shore across the ice floes after she had become wedged solidly in the slowly moving scum that covered the northern sea.

A mile away from the Kindersley the adventurers, almost exhausted, came upon a friendly band of Eskimos who were hunting. They managed to make the natives understand their plight. The Eskimos willingly agreed to act as guides, and managed to lead the white men through the tortuous ice channels to the open sea. Here they saw the Boxer was not far off, and their troubles were over.

Gets Million in Will of Fellow War Worker

Riverhead, L. I.—A dozen of the most brilliant attorneys of New York and a conference of relatives have just settled to the apparent satisfaction of all one of the strangest will cases that has come to public attention in recent years.

As a result of an agreement, one-half of an estate of more than $2,000,000 left by Miss Annie R. Tinker, horse-woman, suffragist and Red Cross worker, is to go to Mrs. Kate Nelson Bertolini of Montreal, who served with Miss Tinker as a nurse in Belgium during the World war, and the remainder to go to the wealthy woman's mother and brother.

Kissing Wife in Court Jails Bigamist 3 Years

Baltimore, Md.—George E. Parker will pay for one kiss by passing the next three years in the Maryland penitentiary. Judge James P. Gortier, in the Criminal court here, pronounced the sentence.

Parker was charged with bigamy, and both his wives appeared during the trial. His two-year-old son was in the arms of his first wife. Both women, who were young and pretty, said they wanted Parker. Judge Gortier, admitting the situation perplexing, ordered the probation officer to see if it could not be settled without a jail sentence.

HOW CHINESE USE MONKEYS IN WAR

Training of the Animals is Long and Arduous Task.

London.—The use of monkeys in warfare by the Chinese dates back to the time when the Mongolians captured Peking. The monkeys used are the "Wah-Wahs," called after the peculiar call they make when angry. They are tallish, always walk upright, and when fully grown are about 4 feet in height, says a writer in the Daily News.

The monkeys are captured when quite young and are kept in a small hut situated on a lonely plain. The training of the animals is a long and arduous task, and only such as the Chinese, with their infinite patience and utter disregard of time, would attempt.

The animal is let out of the hut at the end of a thin cord about ten feet long and made to go forward and take out of the ground a little flagstaff with a yellow flag on it. This flagstaff forms the center of three flagstaffs, the two outer flags being blue.

When the monkey brings back the yellow flag he is rewarded with food, but if he attempts to touch the blue flags the cord is drawn tight and he is chastised. Gradually the cord is lengthened, and after years of training the monkey is capable of going distances up to two miles and bringing back his colored flag.

Other monkeys are taught to take blue flags, others red, until an army commander is in possession of several hundred monkeys distinguished by the color painted on their backs. Every Chinese division is distinguished by colored pennants carried by bannermen, soldiers noted for their bravery. When a commander wishes to make an attack and desires to strike terror into the enemy, he selects about 20 monkeys of the enemy's color. The animals are starved for several days and kept in a position where they can see the enemy.

The night of the attack the monkeys are covered all over with luminous paint and let loose. They immediately make their way over into the enemy's lines, where their appearance and the savage way in which they bite and scratch in their efforts to capture the flags strike terror in the heart of the enemy. When the commander hears the loud "Wah-Wah" of his beasts he knows the enemy are in confusion and launches his attack.

Plant TNT in Snow to Open Drifted Highways

Loveland, Colo.—Incased in a tube of lead, a ribbon of powerful TNT, known as a Cordeau fuse, is being stretched along the trail of the Ball River road, in the Rocky Mountain National park, west of Loveland. This fuse will be buried under snow drifts 15 to 25 feet deep on both sides of Fall River pass, and in the spring drifts of snow will be blasted from the trail.

Contract to Produce Rain Made by Californian

Bakersfield, Cal.—"Rainmaker" Hatfield recently closed a contract with the Kern County Cattlemen's association and the sheepmen's association whereby he promised to produce 1 1/2 inches of rain in Kern county between November 20 and December 20. If the rain is produced, Hatfield is to receive $4,000, the money being guaranteed by the cattlemen and sheepmen.

Coins of Old Wessex Kings Found in Cave

London.—A collection of 800 coins issued during the reigns of five Wessex kings has been discovered in a cave near Peakland, Derbyshire, by Rev. G. H. Wilson. Human and animal remains found in the outer chambers of the cave indicate, according to antiquarians, the cave was formerly the dwelling place of a personage, possibly of a Mercian ruler of more than a thousand years ago.

The coins so far identified date back to the time of Cenulw, a Mexican king who ruled about the year 800. Articles of personal adornment also were found. Mr. Wilson has advanced the theory the Saxons of eastern and middle England, retreating before the victorious Danes, took shelter in the Derbyshire caves and that there many of them were slaughtered or starved.

HERALD WHITE HOME AT EUGENE IS BURGLARIZED

Eugene, Ore., Jan. 3.—The home of Herald White, electrical dealer, at Thirteenth avenue east and Ferry street, was robbed Sunday night while the family was away, it was learned yesterday. The robbery had been reported to the police December 31.

Two suits of clothing, a fountain pen, watch and four pieces of silverware were taken, according to Mr. White, who marvels that the robber did not take the remainder of silver in the chest.

Neighbors saw the lights on and saw a tall, slim man in the White home Sunday evening, but presumed the Whites had returned home and took no action. The prowler stayed for an hour, the neighbors said, leaving in a Ford coupe.

W. A. Ayres Stricken. William A. Ayres, prominent farmer, secretary of the First National Farm Loan association of Lane county, manager of the Lane County Livestock Shippers' association, county market master and active worker in the grange, is very ill at his home a few miles north of Eugene, suffering from a stroke of paralysis which occurred at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Ayres is confined to his bed and is unable to speak although he is conscious. He is almost completely paralyzed on his right side.

Clerk's Fees Increase Yearly.

County Clerk Bryson, at the annual taxpayers' meeting at the court house Tuesday gave approximate figures on the increase in the fees collected at his office each year since he was elected and a few days he figured the exact amount of fees collected each year. They showed a decided increase each year over the previous year. The figures follow:

Table with 2 columns: Year and Fees. 1921: $12,772.79; 1922: 13,991.19; 1923: 15,114.90; 1924: 16,869.15

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

Scores of accidents are caused by defective or worn out brakes. Even a speed of 20 miles an hour is dangerous if it requires 60 feet to bring your car to a stop. Watch your brakes. Tests of 175 cars for brake performance concluded by engineers of the Bureau of Standards at Washington, D. C., show that automobile brakes in active service are not up to the standard set by engineers. Emergency, or hand-brakes, chief reliance of many motorists, especially on cars not equipped with modern four-wheel brakes, when a sudden stop is required, failed to come up to specifications by a wide margin. Foot, or service brakes were better, but not sufficiently good to insure a great margin of safety. Seventeen per cent of the foot brakes were marked excellent. Forty-one per cent were registered good; nineteen per cent were described as poor. Only three per cent of the emergency brakes were marked excellent. Sixteen per cent were good and 67 per cent poor.

TRAFFIC COUNT IN NEW YORK ILLUMINATE TRAFFIC SIGNS

A recent traffic count in New York showed that 195,660 vehicles—only 8 per cent horse drawn—enter and leave Manhattan Island between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. Mechanical counters were used by 200 students of the School of Technology of City College of New York at 28 points. Such counts reveal the points of traffic where relief must first be obtained. Usually the same points show the highest percentage of accidents. New York when planned was a city of small buildings. Today it is a city of skyscrapers. And yet the same streets must take care of the increased population. Many streets have been extended; more are to be. The sidewalks in most cities are much too wide for the pedestrian traffic they are asked to accommodate. Sidewalks can be made narrower and in that way streets made wider.
