Crossing Elimination Very Expensive For Roads

The average cost of eliminating grade crossings is between $75,000 and $100,000, according to Railway Age figures made public today. These figures closely follow reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission that grade crossing casualties were greatly reduced in the third quarter of 1924, due to the intensive safety campaign carried on by the railroads.

There were 252,507 grade crossings in the United States at the end of 1921. In 1922, 705 of these crossings were eliminated at a cost of $70,000,000, but 4,337 new crossings were created by opening of highways across railways, and so there were 3,732 more crossings at the end of 1922 than at the end of 1921. As new grade crossings were added at an equal rate in 1923, it is estimated that at the end of 1923 there were 260,000 grade crossings in the country.

The cost of eliminating all the grade crossings that existed at the end of 1923," says the "Age," "would have been about $19,500,000,000. If the railways should make this huge capital expenditure they would be entitled to earn an annual return of 5 per cent upon it, or $1,122,000,000. Compared with this huge increase in capital cost, the saving that grade crossing elimination would make in operating expenses would be utterly trifling. Therefore, practically the entire resulting increase in railway costs would have to be met by advances in freight and passenger rates.

"The railways are now making capital expenditures of about $1,000,000,000 annually to enable them to handle increased business and reduce operating costs. To eliminate all the grade crossings that existed at the end of 1923 would require the investment of another $1,000,000,000 annually for 19 years. If new grade crossings continued to be opened as fast as they were in 1922 there would still be, at the end of the 19 years, 84,340 grade crossings."

The "Age" points out that in 1923 the total number of persons killed in automobile accidents at grade crossings was only ten per cent of the total number killed in all automobile accidents. In other words it is proposed that the railroads, to reduce automobile accidents, raise a billion dollars annually for 19 years, the investment of which would have no effect upon 90 per cent of the automobile accidents that occur.

Nature Pictures Here On February 24

The pictures taken by the state game commission showing various phases of wild life in Oregon and the activities of the game department will be shown in the Arcade theater February 24 according to plans made by the Lion's club and Rod and Gun club of the city. There will be no admission charged. The work carried on in the fish hatcheries is shown in detail in these films. Animals of the Oregon woods and fields are also shown in their native haunts and the photography is regarded as unusually good by those who have seen the films.

Dairymen Cooperating to Sell Cream

Dairymen of Oregon seeking a more stable and efficient means of marketing their cream than they now enjoy, are showing much interest in the organization of community cream pools, reports C. J. Hurd, college extension specialist in marketing. Such a pool is in process of organization at Hermiston. Another is being talked of in Grants Pass.

In speaking before a mass meeting of dairymen at Hermiston, Mr. Hurd gave what he considered to be the necessary requirements to the successful organization and operation of such a pool.

Binding one year contracts covering a daily production of at least 500 pounds of butter fat was the first essential. A manager should be employed, competent not only to weigh and test the cream and sell it to the best advantage, but to buy it on the basis of standard grades as well.

The pool should be organized for the purpose of selling the cream wherever it can be disposed of to the best advantage, subject to the judgment of the directors, rather than for delivery to any one particular creamery. Other things being equal, the local creamery doubtless would be favored with the business, but the association should not be bound to any one outlet.

The final provision necessary to success is that a small amount be deducted from the sale price to pay operating expenses and create a reserve to enable the dairymen, if necessary in the future, to buy and operate a cooperative creamery.

Road Levy Will Come Under Tax Limit

The market road levy fixed by the Lane county court this year will also come under the six per cent tax limit law, according to reports among county officials. District attorney John S. Medley made a trip to Salem Wednesday to consult with the attorney-general in regard to the matter.

Members of the county court have predicted that Judge Skipworth would amend his decision given Wednesday in the case of Hawley and Boyd against the county and include the market road fund in it. Just exactly what effect as to the amount of money to be raised for the market roads this decision would have, the county officials were not prepared to state.

J. W. SEARS GOES TO SALEM FOR X-RAY EXAMINATION

J. W. Sears was in Cottage Grove Monday for the first time since he was thrown from a wagon last August 27 and sustained injuries to his back. He and Mrs. Sears went to Salem the first of the week to have an X-ray examination made to determine more definitely the extent of the injury from which he is suffering.

Sears has not recovered from the injury as rapidly as was expected and it was determined that a more thorough examination be made. He is a well known minor of the Bohemia district and has been a resident of this vicinity for 30 years. John Coffman has been associated with him in the Annie mine.

Too Liberal. "My dear," remarked the young husband, "did you ask the milkman why there is never any cream on our milk?" "Yes, darling, and he explained quite satisfactorily. I think that is a great credit to him. "What did he say?" "That he always fills the jug so full there is no room for cream." —New York World.

Tin Can Has Helped Make America Great

The epic of the tin can! Our skill in producing tin plate has developed out of our ability to supply the world with American tin cans.

We lead the world in the production of canned foods; first, because we have the raw fruits; second, because we are proof against Old-World prejudices to tinned foods; third, because time grows more valuable as we travel from east to west, is the assertion of a writer in The Nation's Business. Time means nothing to the oriental, and the typical German hausfrau spends a good part of the day in the kitchen over her pots and pans. The ability to improvise a meal out of tinned foods answers to the demand for short cuts in our swift-moving, complex western life.

The era of abbreviation! "Slow," as our forefathers knew the term, is not only out of fashion, but we shorten the word itself by 25 per cent. As to the tin can, he it known that tin plate is nothing more than paper-thin sheet iron which our steel companies turn out by the thousands of square feet. These sheets are given a bath in molten tin and are thus presented to the world under the bright and shining aspect of tin plate. In casting about for a container for preserved and concentrated foods the world was smart enough to discover that tin does not tarnish in the air and is proof against meat, fruit and vegetable acids.

Keep Potential Line Intact in Odd Way

Respect for one's elders is a praiseworthy custom, which, nevertheless, may be carried too far, observes J. D. Newson in Adventure. On Raga, in the New Hebrides, it has become quite bad form to let one's parents die. Of course, it is rather difficult to keep them alive if they fall out of a tree and break their necks, or meet a shark while they are swimming about in mid-ocean, and extreme old age is also responsible for many casualties.

Even so, the respected parent must not die; he must, on the contrary, live more vitally than ever, and the practical-minded indigenes have found a perfectly simple solution of this awkward problem. They go to the next village or neighboring island and buy a child of the desired sex, whom they adopt—as their father, mother or grandparent, as the case may require. The child is given the deceased's name, rank and precedence. He is treated with every mark of respect formerly accorded the real relative—at least when the occasion calls for ceremony.

This makes for astonishing confusion among relatives, and it drew from one visitor who came from another island, the scornful comment:

"Raga! Oh, that is the place where they marry their granddaughters!"

Spot Rich in History

During the Revolutionary war every prominent hill in the vicinity of Tarrytown, N. Y., was the scene of an encounter or a fortification, says the Detroit News. Maj. John Andre, the English spy, was captured in Tarrytown. There is a monument commemorating this event. A little stream nearby is called Andre brook, and a large whitewood, which formerly stood near the monument, was called Andre's tree. In 1777 Vaughan's troops landed here, and here occurred the capture of the British by Major Hunt and a force of volunteers.

The town is famous also as the birthplace and home of Washington Irving. On the north is Sleepy Hollow, where he was buried, and on the south of the village is Sunnyside, where his home still stands. Tarrytown is one of the oldest settlements in New York.
