Father of Mail Service

Mail coaches were introduced into England in the year 1784 by one John Palmer of Bath. This worthy gentleman suffered much inconvenience from the mail leaving London on Monday, and not reaching Bath until Wednesday. He traveled the country advocating reform, and was set down as a bore. But the system of flying mails he was able to inaugurate lasted until the days of railways. Still, it was not much better than the system of the Roman mails, as established in the Third century, by which it seems possible that letters might have reached Rome, from England in three or four days if relays of galloping chariots could cover a thousand miles at 14 miles an hour.

Odd Headpieces

The superb bird of paradise is one of the most remarkable of all that famous group, says Nature Magazine of Washington. It is only nine inches long, velvety black with purple and green metallic ornaments, including a large bright metallic green pectoral shield and another large forked velvety black erectile shield on the back of the neck. It lives in New Guinea.

A Simple Matter

They were sitting on the piazza of a summer hotel swapping stories. "Ever hear this one?" asked the dark young man. "A dog was tied to a rope 14 feet long. Twenty feet away was a fat, juicy bone. How did the dog get to the bone?" "Oh, that's an old gag," said his companion. "You want me to say, 'I give it up' and then you'll say 'That's what the other car did.'" "No, you're wrong, for the dog got the bone." "Well, how did he get it?" "Why, the other end of the rope was not tied."—Boston Transcript.
