The Eugene Guard, commenting upon the shake-up in the game commission, the purpose of which, many suspect, it to "get" Game Warden Burghdoff, calls attention to an unqualified promise given by Governor Pierce to Senator Fisk and two other senators that Burghdoff would not be removed. The Guard hints that, in view of this unqualified promise, it would be inconsistent for the governor to remove the warden. The Sentinel suggests that the Guard is in error. The more unqualified the promise the governor has made, the greater the number of times he has made it, the greater number of persons to whom he has made it, the more consistent with past action will it be for him to break it.

Another family of a veteran of the recent war has been found in destitute circumstances, the father being temporarily mentally unbalanced, probably as the result of his war service. This case is close at home—in Eugene. The government will investigate and meanwhile the family could starve except for the assistance of the American Legion which discovered the case. The Sentinel suggests that when there is no doubt as to the claim of war service, the government should extend the aid first and investigate afterwards. That's the kind of service the government demanded when the men were called to the colors.

When childless mates part, it is a pity. But when a man and a woman who have brought children into the world become so obsessed with their own differences and incompatibilities as to forget the vows they have taken and break up the home they have founded, it is more than a pity. Children have a right to more consideration than that.—Eugene Register.

Some folks are making quite a fuss because Dukhobors up in British Columbia are staging parades in the nude. Nothing to worry about. They are merely 1927 flappers putting on their stunts two years ahead of time.

Cottage Grove and Lane county are proud of A. Ralph Spearow, preacher-athlete, who has resigned the pastorate of the Cottage Grove Presbyterian church, and will wish him well in his future field of work.—Eugene Guard.

true, and is given first hand. Another novelty in the lecture line is Oney Fred Sweet, whose philosophy of life is drawn from the remarkable experience of taking 100 jobs to see how it feels to stand "in the other fellow's shoes." He had this unusual experience as a feature writer for the Chicago Tribune and was three years on the assignment.

The more serious lecture of the course is that of Colonel George Fallis, pastor of the Canadian memorial church at Vancouver, B. C., and former chaplain in the world war, who will speak on "The Problem of World Peace."

Musical numbers are sufficiently varied to please every type of audience. The Charles Mitchell Mixer Concert Trio will introduce classical numbers for violin, cello and piano, with pianologues interpreting characters. Leake's Orchestra Entertainers will offer a great variety of performances on an unusual collection of musical instruments. The Baughman-Pefferle Duo, two charming young western girls, will introduce cornet, voice and piano in their musical "Something New Under the Sun," together with nationalistic groups.

SOCIETY

More than 60 were present yesterday afternoon at the experience social of the Methodist ladies' aid society, for which Mrs. Roy Leonard, Mrs. L. M. Rensner, Mrs. William Hogate and Mrs. F. L. Grannis were hostesses. The receipts were nearly $100. Mrs. Ed Conner's side in the experience contest is in the lead. Mrs. C. E. Umphrey is the other captain. The winning side has not been determined as some money is yet to be turned in. The accounts of the experiences caused much amusement and a short musical program was given. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

South America was the subject studied this week by the Tuesday Evening study club at its regular meeting held at the home of Mrs. S. L. Mackin, with Mrs. Mackin and Mrs. George Matthews as leaders. An interesting discussion of the rivers and plant and animal life of this country was given by Mrs. Mackin and an account of Buenos Aires and the statues of South America was given by Mrs. Matthews.

Mrs. T. C. Wheeler entertained the Past Matrons' club Monday afternoon in the banquet room of the Masonic temple. The officers of the Eastern Star lodge were invited guests. Purple lilacs were the artistic decorations of the rooms with orchids mixed with ferns were the decorations for the table. Chatting over needle work was the diversion and a delightful luncheon was served. About 25 were present.

Mrs. N. E. Glass was hostess Tuesday to the LaComus club at its regular social afternoon. The rooms were attractively decorated with scotch broom and apple blossoms and the blossoms were also used as table decorations. Dainty refreshments were served. Invited guests of the club were Mrs. Leo Johnson, Mrs. VanOsdall and Mrs. S. S. Lasswell.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Lasswell entertained the H. D. S. club last evening. Red carnations were the attractive decorations of the rooms. Five hundred was the diversion and a delicious two-course luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Short won high honors at the card session. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Grube were invited guests of the club.

Mrs. Moore, Mrs. H. O. Bennett, Mrs. Bert Burrows and Mrs. Charles Conner entertained the 25 club of the Rebekah lodge at a social evening Tuesday. Dainty refreshments were served. The club decided to stage a play, "The Old Maids' Convention," in the near future.

Miss Jessie Sanborn entertained the Toujours Prete club last evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. L. Hatch. Painting and needlework were the diversions and a tempting two-course luncheon was served. Mrs. J. Q. Willis was an invited guest of the club.

The Joker club held a business session Monday evening at the home of its president, Mrs. C. E. Frost, whom the club surprised by presenting her with a beautiful flower dish filled with moss and orchids.

The Presbyterian missionary society met yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Stella Adams. The Negroes in Africa and the United States were studied. Dainty refreshments were served.

The S. V. Allison family entertained Mr. and Mrs. M. Foster, of Lorane, at dinner Sunday at Hotel Bartell.

APPROACHING EVENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Dugan, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ferguson and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ferguson will entertain the Jolly Bunch club Friday evening at its regular dance.

Mrs. S. S. Lasswell will entertain the Tuesday Bridge club next week at its regular 1 o'clock luncheon.

Mrs. J. P. Graham will be hostess Tuesday to the O. L. H. club at its informal afternoon of five hundred.

The Tillieum club will hold its regular meeting next Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stevens.

The Elmertes club will hold its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Victor Chambers.

The Past Nobla Grande club will meet next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. C. W. Callwell.

Mrs. A. L. Wynne will be hostess Tuesday afternoon to the M. P. G. club.

Water Looked On as Cureall by Gypsies

Konrad Bercevic, the magazine writer, who was born a gypsy, in writing in Hygeia of the habits of gypsy tribes, comments as follows on their use of water as a preventive of disease.

"The gypsy believes in the curative qualities of water. When a child is born it is immediately immersed in running water. When some one is ill he is given water—cold water, hot water, water all the time; water against headaches, as a cure for rheumatism and all old age complaints. When a man is over sixty they say: 'He is drinking old age water.'

"They use water to cure ills of horses and cattle and sheep. Even their incantations for happiness, their love potions and hate potions are all water. Naturally a deal of humbug goes with it. Water is their religion, their witchcraft. Many a gypsy has told me the reason gypsies move from one place to another is because they are going to better and better waters—to swiftly running waters.

"The gypsies use no drugs of any kind; not even herbs, dried or boiled. Next to water, their other remedy is fat—lard, grease and butter. They apply that to wounds after washing them. Water, grease and sunshine begins the gypsies' prayer to Tchiluma, the mother of the world."

Two Theories as to Origin of "Gazette"

There are two theories as to the origin of "gazette." It seems that the first newspaper so called was published at Venice in the Sixteenth century. According to one theory, the paper was issued at Venice by a government and came out in manuscript once a month during the war of 1563 between the Venetians and the Turks. The paper was read publicly in certain places and the fee charged for hearing it read was one "gazetta," which was a small Venetian coin worth a fraction of a cent. Hence the paper came to be called the "gazetta" and finally the "gazette." If this derivation is correct it is parallel to that of "jitney" as applied to a bus which carries passengers for a "jitney" or a nickel. According to the other theory, "gazette" as applied to the Venetian paper is derived from "gazza," a magpie. Hence it might have been a fitting name for a newspaper.—Pathfinder.

Tracts and Tracks

Uncle Bill Walker, who lived at the foot of Great Smoky, became an easy convert to the propaganda of Mormon missionaries. His brother, Sammie, an old magistrate of considerable means and great influence in the coves of the Smokies, was eagerly sought after as a "prospect."

Squirt Sammie was sitting on his front porch one afternoon when two elders of the new faith came up from the road. "Brother Walker," one of them began courteously, "we have come to tell you about the Church of the Latter Day Saints, and we should like to leave some tracts for you to look over."

"That's all right, gentlemen," the old mountaineer replied without even taking his pipe from his mouth. "You-uns is welcome to leave all the tracks you want to, just so's the toes of 'em is p'intin' 'ward yan gate!"—Everybody's Magazine.

By Intention

When a Scotchman has no argument at his tongue's end to defend his own line of conduct which another may have criticized, it may safely be inferred that his ancestry has a strain from some other nation.

A man who has an estate in Scotland took his new plowman to task for the wavering furrows which were the result of his work. "Your drills are not nearly as straight as those Angus made," he said severely. "He would not have left such a glebe as this."

"Angus didn't ken his work," said Tammas calmly, contemplating his employer with an indulgent gaze. "Ye see, when the drills is crookit the sun gets in on all sides, an' 'tis then ye get oarly 'tattie."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Words Wrongly Spelled

"I have seen lists of the words most often misspelled," said a teacher quoted in the New York Times, "but in my experience the one most frequently stinned against in print is 'gauge.' I have even found it stamped 'gauge' on the manufactured article. The next most frequently misspelled? I don't know. But for one infrequently used, 'bosy' certainly ranks high. 'Weird' seems to give some people lots of trouble, and almost everybody on a test will misspell 'deleable,' because better acquainted with its negative, 'indelible,' which has changed its original spelling."

Waldo Turned a Corner

Waldo's teacher had asked him to write a sentence containing the word amphibious, and as Waldo was but twelve, he had some trouble spelling the word, but, after several calls on teacher for aid, evidently got it written to his satisfaction. There ensued a long period of concentration and wriggling. It was broken when Waldo asked teacher how to spell containing. At last he laid the results of his labor on the teacher's desk, and this is what she read:

"My teacher has asked me to write a sentence containing the word amphibious."—Philadelphia Ledger.

New Note in Insurance

"Bill didn't know Lucy had a wooden leg until he married her." "What did he do about it?" "He took out a fire-insurance policy on her."

'WARE MODERN BEAST—APPETITE
By Ruth Malcomson 1924 "Miss America"
THIRD OF A SERIES OF SIX ARTICLES

DO you know the 1924 version of the "Beauty and the Beast" story? You might also rename it "Beauty and Beastliness," for the most powerful foe of good looks today is—appetite.

Not that "three squares" a day is too "round" a number for all women; there are many sorts of wrong appetites besides the too-ambitious one. There's the appetite that's too fickle, there's the appetite so small as to be nearly non-existent, there's the appetite for stimulants, the appetite for sweets. Any one of these wrong appetites, any way you look at it, is—"beastly."

Are you, for instance, one of those estimable women who buy their clothes in the "stouts" department, but who find the tea-shops and candy shops along Fifth Avenue, or Michigan Boulevard, or Main Street, well-nigh irresistible? Do you like to spend the afternoon poking lazily about in the shops, winding up in some lounge where you "rest" and await a woman friend? Pretty soon one or the other of you will weaken with a suggestion, and you'll totter over to a tea-shop, there to consume toast and tea or coffee and crullers! Such a woman needs to try putting the "petite" in "appetite."

But the girl who just picks at her food, or who has developed certain food idiosyncrasies which prevent her from eating the simple, natural foods, and encourage her to indulge in highly seasoned foods and stimulants, as in just as dangerous a diet predicament. There's a close connection, in any case, between what you eat, what you drink, and how you look. Wrong eating of any sort results in a too-fat or a too-thin figure and has a dulling effect on skin, eyes and hair. The same thing is true of wrong drinking. Milk and water are the only natural and correct drinks. I always avoid coffee and other stimulants.

Every girl should eat a hearty breakfast. It is her fuel for the whole day; and if she takes the exercise she should, she will need it. A light lunch is best, but the dinner in the evening should be satisfying. You don't need to "stop while you're still hungry"—at least you don't need to unless you're on a reducing diet; but you certainly shouldn't eat until you couldn't possibly swallow another mouthful. Eat just enough.

You're on the road to discovering the real relationship between food and fascination, between meals and magnetism, Beauty—if you 'ware the modern beast!

25% to 50% INTEREST On Your Money

You would look askance at almost any investment that offered you 25% to 50% on your money, but you can earn that amount on your money by purchasing your printing in quantities. All the work except the actual printing has to be done to produce one sheet of the completed job. The type has to be set, the proof has to be corrected, the press has to be made ready for printing before a sheet can be printed. After this work is done, the only expense is for the paper stock and for the operation of the printing press. By ordering in quantities you save paying more than once for the preparatory operations.

Instead of buying 500 statements at $4.60, buy 1000 at $6.55, and possibly add the second 1000 at $4. If you buy 2000 statements in lots of 500 at four times during a year the price would be $18.40. If you buy 2000 at one time the price is $10.55.

Quality reductions in the prices of other printing are in the same proportion. There are no ands, if or buts about making 25% to 50% on your money this way.

It is a good investment to buy a year's supply of stationery when you are ordering
