WE KNOW YOU, ED.

Referring to a recent editorial in the Sentinel, in which the resignation of Ed Brodie from his post as minister to Siam was referred to, the Eugene Guard said: "Just to show, we presume, that he is a member of Ed's 'I knew him when' club, the Cottage Grove editor recounts how he and the present minister to Siam once toured Oregon together. This writer can bear that. Ed used to work for us, in the far by-gones, as Oregon City reporter for the Portland Telegram. Sometimes he made as much as $12 a week when news was brisk."

The Guard has the wrong idea. The Sentinel thought Ed would be pleased to know that there were some left who were yet willing to admit acquaintanceship despite his recent associations with the kings, princes and princesses of far-off Siam. We thought Ed would feel complimented by the familiarity. The Sentinel can, however, beat the Guard's story of the early life of the non-pulchritudinous plenipotentiary. Ed was a printer in our own Lane county and can graphically describe the early struggles of a newspaper at Florence.

Douglas S. Johnson, dean at Manchester, England, has been quoted as saying that he encourages the holding of hands in church on the part of the young people. If he can provide the feminine hands to be held, he need not confine his encouragement of hand-holding entirely to the younger ones. We are with the dean. Hand-holding in church is far less dangerous than "necking" parties in automobiles—and the number of marriages—with fees for the preacher—is likely to be greater from hand-holding in church than from the automobile parties.

The dispatches relate that the Prince of Wales is writing poetry. It must then be true that he is in love. Fortunately he will not have to depend upon his poetic talents in order to provide for himself and the girl he may inveigle into doing his cooking for him.

Sam and Rastus, two colored friends, were enjoying themselves basking in the sun. A big fly buzzed around and finally alighted upon Rastus.

"What kind of a fly is that?" he asked.
"That's a horsefly," answered Sam. "It only alights on horses, mules and asses."
"Does you mean to 'sinuate that 'Ise an ass?'"
"I doesn't mean to 'sinuate nothing, but you just can't fool a horsefly."

Famine Has More Than Once Gripp'd England

The story of famines in England has been a gloomy one from earliest times.

At the beginning of the Eighth century a dearth, which extended to Ireland, drove men to cannibalism. It was not until the reign of Aethelred the Unready, however, that "such a famine prevailed as no man can remember," from 1005 to 1016.

Those chroniclers who were wont to see bad conditions at their worst, says the National Geographic Magazine, declared that half the population of the larger island perished.

But it must be remembered that much of the mortality of this period was occasioned by the wars between Aethelred and Sweyn the Dane, the latter being forced by the famine to retire from England for a time.

Naturally, the era following the advent of William the Conqueror was one of widespread starvation and pestilence among the English peasantry. During the last 80 years of the Eleventh century, nine were years of dire distress.

So great was the dearth in 1069 that the peasants of the north, unable longer to secure dogs and horses to appease their hunger, sold themselves into slavery in order to be fed by their masters.

All the land between Durham and York lay waste, without inhabitants or people to till the soil for nine years, says Beverly, and another writer accuses the destitute of cannibalism.

"Dead Shots" Devoted Much Time to Practice

I had a man with me in Texas and New Mexico—surveying for Santa Fe—who knew a thing or two about drawing a gun. Louis G. Millikin writes in Adventure Magazine.

I have seen him put his hands on his head, have another man throw up a can, draw, hit it with both right and left gun and return guns to scabbard before it had reached the top of the throw about 15 to 20 feet or at least before it had stopped going up from the hits.

In my estimation at that time he was a marvel with a six-gun and, though I have seen others, I never saw his equal. His name was Jack Mellish.

The reasons why gunmen of the "Wild Days" were such experts at the draw and shot, even with the old Frontier Colt, was simply that they spent as much if not more time in practicing the draw and shot as some of our eminent musicians spend practicing their art.

Within and Without

Why should I hasten to solve every riddle which life offers me? I am well assured that the Questioner who brings me so many problems will bring the answers also in due time. Very rich, very potent, very cheerful giver that life is, He shall have it all His own way, for me. Why should I give up my thought, because I cannot answer an objection to it? Consider only whether it remains in my life the same as it was. That only which we have within, can we see without. If we meet no gods, it is because we harbor none. If there is grandeur in you, you will find grandeur in posters and sweeps. He only is rightly immortal to whom all things are immortal. I have read somewhere that none is accomplished so long as any are incomplete; that the happiness of one cannot consist with the misery of any other.—Emerson.

Reputation

It would be well if character and reputation were used distinctively. In truth, reputation is what a person is; reputation is what he is supposed to be. Character is in himself, reputation is in the minds of others. Character is injured by temptations, and by wrong-doings; reputation, by slanders and libels. Character endures throughout defamation in every form, but perishes when there is a voluntary transgression; reputation may last through numerous transgressions, but be destroyed by a single, and even an unfounded, accusation or aspersion.—Abbott.

Rosamond

Rosamond was the daughter of Walter de Clifford, Lord Hereford, and was the favorite mistress of Henry II of England. To conceal his amour from his jealous queen, Eleanor, Henry is said to have removed Rosamond to a labyrinth in Woodstock park, where his wife discovered her and obliged her to take poison. Some authors declare that the fair Rosamond died at Goodstow nunnery, near Oxford. She had two sons by Henry, William, surnamed Longsword, and Jeffrey, archbishop of York.

Ancient Business Firm

The oldest company or business corporation in the world bears the name of Stora Kopparbergs Bergslags Antiebolag, and has celebrated its seven hundredth anniversary. For 700 years this company has operated the famous Falun mine in Sweden without any change in ownership. In these 700 years the mine has yielded over a ton of gold, 15 tons of silver and about half a million tons of copper. Now it produces 30,000 tons of iron every year.

Woman Earnest Scholar

Catherine Tishem, a Dutch woman, wife of the Antwerp burgomaster, was learned long before women as a general thing took up scholastic studies. She lived in the Sixteenth century and besides being well acquainted with all of the old languages was an eminent Greek scholar. When persecuted by the duchess of Parma for her religion she fled to England, and at a mature age studied at the University of Cambridge. She is pointed to as having been the most learned woman of her time.

SOCIETY

Mrs. N. E. Compton was a gracious hostess Thursday to the Social Twelve club at a 1:30 luncheon. The table was beautifully decorated, being centered with a large silver basket of white lilies with a large pink bow on the handle. The favors were May day baskets filled with white blossoms and pink and white mints and the place cards bore a miniature animal or person cleverly made of assorted nuts. The luncheon was served in four courses and the color scheme of pink and white was smartly carried out. Fancy work and social conversation were the diversions. Mrs. R. L. Cooper was an invited guest of the club.

Mrs. Nelson Durham entertained Thursday at an informal evening of five hundred. The rooms were attractively decorated with white aconite and a delicious luncheon was served. Those to enjoy the affair were Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Harrel, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Beaulieu, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Hays, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Grannis, Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Allison and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Frost.

Mrs. Nelson Durham was hostess Thursday to the Utopia club at its regular social afternoon. A delicious two-course luncheon was served, the table being centered with a pretty bouquet of white aconite. May day baskets filled with assorted nuts and candies were the favors and the place cards bore May flower decorations. Mrs. Leo Johnson was an invited guest of the club.

The alumni of Cottage Grove high school entertained the senior class at a welcoming party Friday evening in the gymnasium. The hall was attractively decorated with log wood, the lights being shaded with the senior class colors, purple and gold, crepe paper and streamers of same hanging from them. Games were the diversion and refreshments were served.

You Tell Him!

Johnson had obtained work in a railway yard and was told to mark some trucks.

"Here's a piece of chalk," said the foreman. "Mark each of 'em eleven."

A little later the foreman came around again to see how the new hand had been getting on. He found him sitting on a bucket regarding a truck thoughtfully. Marked upon it was a large 1.

"What does this mean?" asked the foreman. "Only one truck done, and the number wrong at that. I said eleven, not one."

"I know," said Johnson, "but I couldn't think on which side of the '1' the other '1' goes."

The Bitter Truth

She (pouting)—You don't tell me you love me half as much as you did before we were married.

He—Well, if I did tell you I loved you half as much you wouldn't be pleased.—Boston Transcript.

Atmosphere

"You seem to keep the bell on the typewriter jingling."

"I'm writing a magazine."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

APPROACHING EVENTS

Mrs. S. V. Allison, Mrs. Clara Burkholder, Miss Lulu Curran, Miss Myrtle Keen and Mrs. C. E. Frost will entertain the Joker club Friday evening at the Frost home.

Mrs. S. L. Godard, Mrs. O. W. Hayes and Mrs. J. P. Graham will entertain the Constellation club Thursday afternoon at its regular meeting.

Baseball Togs Arrive.

The complete outfit of baseball togs which the city and high school baseball team recently purchased have arrived and were used by the high school team Friday afternoon in their game with University high in Eugene. The score was 15 to 8 in favor of University high. The high school will have the use of the apparel until their season closes, when the city team will open their season and use the outfits.

Sid Williams Is In Again.
Sid Williams, of Cottage Grove, was arrested Saturday for the third time in the past two years on a moonshining charge, and is again in the county jail. His small still was seized by the arresting officers and is at the sheriff's office.

No moonshine was found at the still, but Williams had a quantity of mash which he had been drinking and was drunk on it, said the officers.

Near Addresses Lions.
Frank Near, of Salem, Lions clubs district governor, spoke at the Thursday noon luncheon of the local Lions club. He urged the organization to turn its activities to fostering other industries than lumbering, which is in condition to take care of itself. The local club will send a delegation to Medford May 9 to assist in the presentation of the charter to a club which has been organized there.

A mere matter of detail

THE great popularity of Dutchess Trousers is largely due to the wise care that the manufacturer gives to each small detail—the way the buttons are sewed on, the size of the cuffs, the finish of the seams, the belt loops.

You will appreciate these niceties even though the first thing that strikes you is the fashionable cut. Custom tailor style, yet at a price that fits a modest purse.

We have your size in Dutchess Trousers for dress, for work, for play—and every pair bears the famous warranty label, guaranteeing "100% Button; $1.00 a Rip."

Do wild animals like to do tricks? That's a question that is often asked Al G. Barnes and his trainees. Let Miss Helen Poth, who will be seen in one of the three steel girded arenas of the Al G. Barnes Big 4 Ring Circus, when the big show comes to Cottage Grove Tuesday, May 5, answer the question in her own way.

"Wild animals mostly dislike to learn at first. They're exactly like little children. But when they find that no harm is meant, that each lesson is given in kindness, with tit-bit rewards for each proper advance, they begin to exhibit interest. Soon they do their work with zeal. In fact, the happiest hour of the day for my Pumas, next to feeding time, of course, is that in which they exhibit their higher education to the crowds in the stands.

"Pumas, especially, are peculiarly susceptible to domestication, when taken young. You have only to watch them dash from the cages into the arenas, if you have any doubts.

"They love to exercise, the change, the excitement and the music. That's where they are better off than the zoo animals. They have a real interest in their work, and work is a blessing, isn't it?"

The Pumas are only a part of the 2000 wild animals with the Al G. Barnes circus this year. The circus also includes a cast of 1080 people and 550 horses. The opening, sensational feature in the big program this year is "Pocahontas at the Court of Queen Anne," including the cast three tribes of Indians, Washoes, Esomildoes and Apaches.

And last, but not least, you will see the greatest movie-star of them all—Joe Martin, himself.

It's the show that's different every year.
