The American courts usually are referred to as the most dilatory in the world, but a case has just been settled in an Austrian court after 300 years of litigation over a large forest estate. By this time the original family tree probably is not in a very good state of preservation.

These hats that compel a girl, when she wishes to look straight ahead, to link her neck as though she were looking for the sun, have one advantage—they hide a large part of the paint and powder that we old-fashioned ones growl about.

A prominent physician has said that the eating of large quantities of garlic would save the lives of many who become afflicted with influenza. The odor would be about the same one way or the other.

SOCIETY

Mrs. S. V. Allison, Mrs. Clara Burkholder, Miss Lulu Currin, Miss Myrtle Kem and Mrs. C. E. Frost entertained the Joker club Friday at the Frost home at its regular evening of five hundred. Red carnations were the artistic decorations of the rooms. At a late hour the guests were taken to the Gray Goose tea room, where a tempting two-course luncheon was served. White spring flowers in artistic arrangement were the pretty centerpiece of the table and pink and white streamers ran from the centerpiece to the sides and ends of the table. The place cards bore May day flower decorations.
Invited guests of the club were Mrs. O. M. Kem, Mrs. G. O.
Knowles, Mrs. W. W. McFarland, Mrs. J. P. Graham and Mrs. H. B.
Griggs. Mrs. W. W. McFarland has invited the club to hold its next meeting on Thursday evening May 14, at her home.

Mrs. Phoebe Stoneburg, one of the oldest members of the Rebekah lodge, was honor guest Thursday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Past Noble Grands' club, for which Mrs. C. W. Caldwell was hostess. Music and social conversation were the diversions and dainty refreshments were served.
Purple pansies and lilies were the artistic decorations and were also about the rooms. Mrs. Martha Eastman was on invited guest and 14 members were present. The meeting next month will be held with Mrs. A. W. Kime.

Mrs. S. L. Godard, Mrs. O. W.
Hays and Mrs. W. A. Garoutte entertained the Constellation club Thursday at its regular social afternoon. A delicious two-course luncheon was served, the table being attractively decorated with purple lilies. Mrs. F. L. Grannis as an invited guest. Mrs. George M. Scott, the club's president, will entertain the club May 14, at which time the annual election will be held.

Mrs. George Young invited a few of her neighbors in Friday for a social evening in honor of Mr. Young, the occasion being his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. A birthday cake and punch were served. Those to enjoy the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Caldwell, Mrs.
Louise Ralston, Lucile and Howard Ralston and Mrs. Emily Lane.

The high school students and faculty held a bonfire party Friday evening at the Walden picnic grounds, the two losing teams in a recent magazine contest, of which Miss Delta Hopper and Miss Francis Cameron were captains, entertained the winning team, of which Homer Nelson was captain. Games were played and refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served.

Mrs. Victor Kem entertained at dinner Thursday evening complimenting Mrs. Earl Garoutte, the occasion being the latter's birthday anniversary. A pretty bouquet of spring flowers was the centerpiece of the table. Those invited were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Garoutte and son Colin, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Garoutte and son Aldon and Mrs.

Arah Hoyt Rae, the latter being of Eugene.

Mrs. Esther Hohl and Mrs. Ray Baker entertained about 40 couples Saturday evening at a dance and card party in Phillips hall. The hall was attractively decorated with dogwood and lavender lilies.

The Lions club entertained Mrs R. L. Stewart's girls' class of the Presbyterian Sunday school Saturday at a picnic at the Elk's picnic grounds. The club has promised to entertain the class securing the largest number of students for the Sunday school in the recent membership drive and Mrs. Stewart's class was the winner.

No Luxuries.

A fruit grower up near Rialto put his two children in the summer school at San Bernardino. Just a few days after their names had been listed a book agent called on him and said:

"Now that your children are going to school, you ought to buy them an encyclopedia."

"Encyclopedia? Be darned if I do! Let 'em walk like I did," Was his retort.—L. A. Times.

PARAMOUNT MAKES ANOTHER
"NATURAL-COLOR" PICTURE

Another photoplay in natural colors has been made at the Paramount studio in Hollywood.

And on the screen it will be in the familiar black and white!
The picture is "The City That Never Sleeps," the new James Cruze production, and in it Cruze tried an experiment which has proved extremely successful.

Instead of building his sets in the variety of colors and shades which are commonly used in motion picture architecture, Cruz had the sets painted black and white, and shades of gray—the colors and shades which the film makes of all the brighter, gaudier colors.

The result is striking. In the place of a rather dirty gray which some colors photograph, the shades of colorings in the sets for "The City That Never Sleeps" are distinctive and even in tone.

An entire cabaret was built and painted in black and white. The photographic result amazed even Cruze, who had expected something out of the ordinary. Hangings and furniture in homes used in the production were selected in black and shades of gray, with astonishing results.

The scheme was even carried to the clothing worn by the players.
Louise Dresser wears gowns of black and white; in only one costume did she have any brighter colorings. Kathryn Williams wears only white gowns, as does Virginia Lee Corbin. And the men in the feature cast—Ricardo Cortez and Pierre Gendron—stick to white shirts and black suits, which photographed exactly as they were.

Cruze's idea is an adoption of the plan followed in "Wanderer of the Westland," a Paramount picture which was photographed with the Technicolor Process in its natural tint.

"The City That Never Sleeps," with a great cast playing in support of the principals, comes to the Arcade theater for a two days' run on Sunday next.

One of the most beautiful and artistic settings ever designed for the camera is the reproduction of Washington's home in Mount Vernon in Cosmopolitan's Marion Davies production of "Janice Meredith," which comes to the Arcade theater starting Sunday, May 17.

While not the most gorgeous setting, it stands out clear as a cameo in its artistic simplicity. The charm of this scene, which is done in natural colors, lies in its faithful reproduction of the historic mansion, with its spacious, sloping lawns; and it is one of the pictorial features of the production, designed by Joseph Urban.

E. Mason Hopper directed "Janice Meredith" from Lillie Hayward's picturization of Paul Leicester Ford's famous romance of the American Revolution.

Girls—You can't expect a feller

"Madam," said the dignified gentleman, "your dog bit me on the ankle."
"He did?" cried the lady. "Oh, I must send for a doctor!"
"Oh, I assure you it isn't as bad as—"

"You're the third person he's bitten today," broke in the lady.
"I just know he isn't feeling well."
