Hudson and Essex Caravan Here

The Hudson and Essex red, white and blue caravan, carrying the message of the Hudson and Essex coaches and their prices delivered in Oregon was in Cottage Grove Friday and Saturday on its way through the state.

For a week the red, white and blue cars attracted an unusual attention on the streets of Portland with their striking coats of Opex laquer. Special attention was paid to the finish of the cars, that they might present as attractive an appearance as possible and 12 coats were used in the finish.

Charles M. Lemperly, an executive of the Sherman-Williams company, which furnished the materials for the finish, was in Portland last week and as a result of his visit and his inspection of the cars, Oregon will receive much favorable publicity at the hands of the caravan, which will broaden the idea to other cities throughout the country.

Oscar L. Leffert, wholesale representative of the Portland Motor Car company, is the "missionary" in charge of the caravan and the cars are manned by three careful and experienced drivers.

Leffert, in discussing the idea of the caravan, said: "While we had the idea in mind and the cars ready to go just before we heard of the good news of a further drop in prices of the Hudson and Essex closed cars, the caravan idea is now of greater importance than ever, carrying as it does the message of economy and extra value. It is our purpose to let everyone in the state know, as far as possible, just what we have to offer as Hudson and Essex distributors. Judging from the inquiries and orders we have booked since the announcement of the reduction, we are going to be greatly embarrassed in filling the orders. We have, in anticipation of this condition, a large number of extra orders in at the Hudson factory, which we have every reason to believe the factory will fill, owing to its increased production. We will do our best at any rate to see that no one wants a Hudson or Essex closed car is disappointed."

Theater News

Janice Meredith Tells History of Days of '76.

Spectacular scenes of famous episodes of the American revolution are accurately reproduced in "Janice Meredith," Marion Davies' pretentious and beautiful cosmopolitan production, which starts a two-day run at the Arcade theater on May 17.

The Skirmish at Lexington—"the shot that was heard around the world"—the breathless moment of suspense, waiting to see whether the British would fire the first shot in the American revolution; the dauntless minute men bravely fighting against frightful odds—this is one of the thrilling scenes of the production.

Washington crossing the Delaware, a living reproduction of the famous painting by Trumbull, is also a gripping chapter of the photoplay. A channel 400 feet wide had to be cut through the Saranas river in the Adirondacks to permit the crossing of specially constructed flat boats, and rafts, carrying soldiers, cannon, oxen and supply wagons.

Paul Revere's immortal ride—when his horse's hoofs resounded through the night, when startled heads appeared at windows in answer to his call and when he took desperate jumps over fences and hedges, is full of thrills and artistic effects.

The battle of Trenton—Washington's timely attack and the victory—is vivid and gripping, a magnificent bit out of history.

Then there's the battle and surrender of the British at Yorktown, impressive, authentic and thrilling. No time or expense was spared in remodeling the cosmopolitan studio into an exact reproduction of Yorktown and its vicinity.

Benjamin Franklin, in his sober garb, pleading for aid to the colonies at the court of Louis XVI at Versailles surrounded by thousands of French nobility in their gorgeous brocades and satins and elaborate headresses—all reflecting in enormous mirrored walls with sparkling chandeliers—is another historical scene.

The hardship and suffering of Washington and his troops at Valley Forge is vividly depicted, while on the opposite side of the Delaware General Howe is tendered a farewell ball by his officers at the Waterloo villa. Beautiful women, richly gowned and bright coated British officers danced on polished floors, lighthearted and comfortable; while the American soldiers attempted to keep warm near their camp fires—a striking contrast, wonderfully photographed.

The Boston tea party, a magnificent night scene; Patrick Henry's impassionate speech; and numerous other incidents of the days of the revolution are included in this stupendous production.
