Ocean Waves Trifle to Those of the Air

It is rather startling to learn, and from high scientific authority, too, that we are living most of the time submerged in waves to which the greatest waves of the ocean are mere ripples in point of size. When a current of air blows across a water surface water waves are produced, and when a current of air blows across a surface of quiet air, or air having a different motion from the first current, then air waves are produced.

These atmospheric waves, we are assured, have all of the phenomena of water waves—troughs, crests, foam, breakers and spray—but since the qualities of air and water are so different the air waves have dimensions over 2,500 times those of the corresponding water waves. Thus the great ocean waves of perhaps twenty-five feet height would have atmospheric counterparts extending upward a distance of ten or twelve miles above the earth's surface.

The undulating movement of such air waves accounts in part for the intermittent gusts of wind which we notice so frequently in storms.—Washington Star.

Little Reverence for Long-Dead Statesmen

The Pantheon is visited nowadays under conditions which seem decidedly lacking in the respect due to the memory of great men. You pay a franc to get inside the building, and for 50 centimes more you can join an assembly of trippers for a visit to the crypts in the wake of a guide who appears to be on very familiar terms with the distinguished dead buried there, says Paris Figaro.

The aforesaid guide will rather disdainfully show you the basement where not less than forty statesmen of the first empire sleep. The other day he pointed out the tomb of Zola, Jaures and Carnot, and an English woman in the party asked if she might go into one of the tombs. To this the guide replied carelessly that it really was not worth while, as she could see all these fellows at the Musee Grevin, "where they're all life-size and made of wax."

Few "White" Buffaloes

In the old days Indians cherished the white buffalo robe as almost beyond price. In 1882 or 1883 the Mandans, says the Pittsburgh Sun, hearing that the Blackfeet at the mouth of the Yellowstone had a white buffalo robe, sent a delegation with eight horses and with trading goods the 200 miles to procure the robe if possible.

The delegation left the horses and the goods and returned afoot with the robe. This was consecrated to the Great Spirit and hung upon a pole, out of touch, as powerful medicine.

It is said that not one in 100,000 buffalo was white. Even at that, the color was likely to be a yellowish white, and the robe was known by the plainmen as a "buckskin" robe. The pure white robe scarcely existed.

Basilicas

The name "basilica" was given in ancient Rome to buildings used as meeting places for business men, and as courts of justice. A basilica consisted of a long central hall or nave, with aisles, the aisles being separated from the nave by pillars supporting the roof. At the end of the nave, opposite the entrance, was a raised platform, or dias, with seats for the judges. To give additional space there was sometimes added at this farther end, a semi-circular structure called an apse. After the introduction of Christianity, basilicas were very generally converted into churches, and thus it is that the form of the modern cathedral is derived from the ancient Roman basilica.—Kansas City Star.

Patriotic American

The pledge to the American flag that is used in most of our schools is attributed to James P. Upham, a Boston publisher, who in 1888 suggested its use in the schools. The idea was adopted by the National Education association, which persuaded congress to urge it to the attention of President Harrison, who, by proclamation of July 21, 1892, naming October 12 as a holiday in commemoration of the four-hundredth anniversary of the landing of Columbus in the New world, suggested the pledge to the flag be recited by the pupils and the flag raised over every school house.

Testing the Pay Envelope

A writer in a recent number of Printers' Ink asks this question, in substance: "Would you rather receive $200 a month and know you were worth more than receive $300 with a sinking conviction in your heart that by the standard of wages paid to others you were being overpaid?" There are probably quite as many people overpaid in the business world as there are those who are underpaid. When business slumps the overpaid ones are headed for a fall; the underpaid ones keep what they get and perhaps a little more.

Offered Congress Home

The first fiscal proposal received by congress looking to the location of the seat of government came from Kingston, N. Y., the state legislature having, on March 14, 1783, authorized the trustees of the township of Kingston to grant to congress "a sufficient quantity of land within the said township to secure to congress a place of residence adequate to their dignity."

The local line-up was Claire Adams, p; Dana McCargar, c; Lloyd Armes, 1b; Roy Scheufele, 2b; Paul Gordon, ss; Cledis Swanson, 3b; Earl Ballew, lf; Gordon White, cf; Huston Dunn, rf.

Damewood's Shoulder Dislocated. Stanley Damewood, employe at the Culp creek camp of the Anderson & Middleton company, sustained a dislocated shoulder late Friday afternoon when he was struck by a "choker" which had broken loose. Had the cable struck him in the middle of the back or on the back of the head, the injuries might easily have been fatal. He was taken to a Eugene hospital for treatment.

Ouch!

Lord Halsbury, the famous lawyer, who afterward became Lord High Chancellor of England, gained a great reputation at the bar as a topnotch cross-examiner. "Do you drink?" he inquired blandly of an overdrugged, horsey-looking individual who was the chief prop of the defense at an Old Bailey trial. "That's my business!" was the retort. "Any other?" asked Lord Halsbury with well-affected politeness.

Latham Sunday School Asks Help. Editor Sentinel: Being forced to take a long-needed vacation, I am asking the churches of Cottage Grove to take charge of the services of the Latham Sunday school until such time as we are able to maintain ourselves without help. We shall give each church the privilege of taking charge of the services for one Sunday and it is to be hoped that members of each church will make it a point to attend when their church has charge.

Matthews Gets Long Fish Prize. George Matthews received the 80-yard fish reel given by the Darby & Liston hardware store for the longest fish caught during the week of May 10 to 17. The fish that took the prize was a salmon trout which measured 16 inches in length. John Baker, winner in the recent contest for the largest fish, ran a close second with a salmon trout measuring a little better than 15 inches.
