SHOULD BE PURPOSE IN LIFE Aimlessness in Boys and Girls a Menace to Society.

(Roseburg News-Review.) Most cities and towns have their element of aimless young men and boys who cherish no active purpose in the world. They are commonly seen loafing around at favorite resorts and on the curbstones. They watch other people play games and do not play much themselves for lack of money. They stand with open mouths watching the people go by and are disappointed if there is not a fire or a drunken man or a fight or something else to create excitement.

Then there is the aimless girl element who is seen on the streets much of the time, anxious for flirtation with the above described boys, who are always ready to "pick them up." They may pay their parents little or nothing for board and they are not apt to help much with the home work. But they manage to go to most of the shows and are quick to accept automobile rides from strangers.

These young people had the opportunity for schooling that the other children got, but most of them never stood well in school. Other things seemed more interest-
