THE FARMER'S TROUBLES.

A word was inadvertently omitted from an editorial in Monday's Sentinel which materially altered the meaning of what the editor intended to say.

Such an income tax law might be a happy solution of the present situation in which the farmer believes that every hand is set against him and that an income tax would solve all his difficulties.

What the editor intended to say was that the farmer believed that such a law "would solve all his TAXATION difficulties."

That is quite different. The Oregon farmer is too wise from much experience to have the false idea that income tax could come anywhere near solving the many difficulties under which he has been laboring for many years.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine has pointed the way to prosperity for the farmer. His ideas are not original. So far as The Sentinel is able to judge, they are in line with the ideas expressed by the Farmers' Union and the Grange, but it is encouraging to have men of high position lend their influence to putting over things for which groups of farmers have been struggling for years.

This administration could hope for no greater accomplishment to which to point with pride than the successful organization of the farmers of the nation into a cooper-tive marketing organization. Let Jardine lead the way.

The fossilized remains of a prehistoric monster 100 feet in length have been discovered near the Canadian border. Were they purple, blue or pink?

A machine has been invented which makes it possible for the person using it to see others at a distance of miles. The invention is not likely to prove immediately popular. Our eyes are too busy close at hand to be concerned about distant objects.

Your home print shop—The Sentinel—should be always considered first. Usually it can handle any job of printing you may have.
