TELL-TALE TONGUES.

By JOHN BLAKE.

In no way does education more quickly show results than in speech. You have often seen important, impressive-looking gentlemen whom you took to be of some consequence until they began to talk.

After the first four or five sentences you knew them for what they were.

I recently sat in a trolley car opposite a young girl who was carefully dressed, easy to look at, and to all appearances a person of good sense and refinement.

Presently, in answer to a question put to her by the young man escorting her, she said:

"Oh, that guy is a lotta bunk. You can't tell me nothin' about him that I ain't been wise to since Heck was a pup."

My opinion of this young woman was somewhat altered.

Learn to speak well and correctly. You may think that this is merely a polite requirement which will be of no use to you, but you are mistaken.

You will be judged first off on your appearance. That may often be wrong, but it cannot be helped. Human minds are constructed that way.

But the second and important judgment will be based on what you say and how you say it, and that judgment is likely to be final.

Into the processes of your mind the wisest men in the world cannot see.

The only way that mind can reveal itself is through speech and action, and through speech first.

The person who speaks correctly is presumed to be intelligent.

That presumption at least gets him a hearing.

If he is intelligent, the intelligence also must be expressed by speech.

And the higher the intelligence the more clear and convincing will be the speech.

This does not mean that all good speakers are the most intelligent people, for this is not always the case.

But all intelligent people are at least clear speakers, and if they can not speak intelligently no one will give them credit for their mental qualities.

Unfortunately, children often take their grammar from their home instead of from the schools. And this is a reason why English should be drilled into them, why they should be taught to read the best books and to write their ideas in clear and grammatical language.

The eyes are the windows of the soul. But the tongue is its trumpet.

The Eugene Guard is inclined to poke fun at the bachelor editor of the Salem Capital Journal for speaking with an air of intimacy of what the young woman of today wears. We can see no reason for doubting the knowledge of the Capital Journal editor upon the subject. There is no earthly reason why he shouldn't be fully informed, provided he follows the advice given him in his youth to keep his eyes open and his mouth shut.

Of course the wider open he keeps his eyes the greater will be the inclination of his mouth to open with astonishment.

The two-day-old mule colt of Pilot Rock, swept four miles down a canyon by a cloudburst and returned unharmed to its mother the next day, will have something to hee-haw about to its little grand-nieces and grand-nephews at story-telling hour in the years to come.

Why is The Guard so particular about mentioning grand-nieces and grand-nephews? Possibly it wishes to make a display of its knowledge of the fact that mules do not have grandsons and granddaughters, although they do have grandfathers and grandmothers.

Six Harrisburg young folk, three boys and three girls, figured recently in an auto wreck that was caused by a bee getting inside the car and sitting down where it was already crowded. A wise little bee. It knew it would find plenty of honey in a party of that kind. We presume the six were in a coupe.

Down in Yuma, Ariz., eggs are hatching on the shelves of the stores where they are being offered for sale. We'll stick to Oregon yet a while.

No one was injured in Cottage Grove setting off fireworks. Possibly all the dangerous dynamite was in liquid form.

This Generation May See Return to Knee Breaches

Men, it's just a little more than century ago that knee breaches began to come into fashion. Beau Brummel, the celebrated English society leader, had introduced them a few years before. His daring example had been copied by the "dandies" of the day. But most men held back, especially the conservative "substantial" ones.

They considered long trousers a childish form of masquerade and were afraid they would look ridiculous if they abandoned knee-breaches.

Today it's the other way around. After a century, the pendulum swings and knee breaches are said to be coming back. They are worn by golfers, engineers and other men of the outdoors, and on camping trips and hikes.

Judging by ease and comfort, a great many men—if truth were known—would like to wear "knee pants" all the time.

Why not? Alas, in their community association men have acquired a timidity and sense of shame in anything not conforming to the crowd. Long trousers are "the go", and it's a brazen male who dares fly in the teeth of convention.—Washington Post.

Madagascar Once Home of Enormous Reptiles

It is a singular fact that, barring the wild cattle and the crocodiles, the great African island (Madagascar) is wholly destitute of big game. Yet it teems with animal life in its lesser forms, including such curious animals as the aye-aye, one of the most remarkable creatures known; 39 varieties of lemurs; a ferocious member of the civet family, which looks like an enormous weasel; and a wild dog which appears to be a cross between a coyote, a jackal and a dingo.

But Madagascar has not always lacked large animals, as its fossil remains attest, for in ages past it was the habitat of enormous terrestrial lizards 50 feet in length, and of the great wingless bird the apornis, twice the size of an ostrich.

The eggs of the neopyornis, some of which are 40 inches in circumference, are still frequently found in the neighborhood of Fort Dauphin, at the southern end of the island, where the natives use them for carrying water.—E. Alexander Powell in the Century Magazine.

Hardy Redwood

Nature has endowed the giant redwoods with a natural preservative which protects the timber against decay and rot indefinitely for centuries, in fact after the trees have fallen or been cut down. Trees known to have been blown over in the woods long before the discovery of America, and which have lain exposed to the elements ever since, have been found to be in splendid condition and capable of use as commercial timber.

One particular instance is recorded where a fallen tree was found underneath another big redwood that had grown astraddle the uprooted giant, but when the standing tree was cut its rings showed it to be nearly 1,000 years old.

This meant that the uprooted tree had been down for nearly 1,000 years. The rings of the fallen tree showed it to be about 600 years old when it fell, yet the log was sound and healthy.—Kreolite News.

Trouble Both Ways

An Australian barrister tells of a black fellow charged in a country town with stealing. His solicitor decided to put him in the box to give evidence on his own behalf. The magistrate, being doubtful if he understood the nature of an oath, undertook to examine him on the spot.

"Jacky," he said, "you know what will happen to you if you tell a lie?"

"My oath, boss," replied Jacky, "me go down below—burn long time."

"Quite right," replied the magistrate. "And now you know what will happen if you tell the truth?"

"Yes, boss. We lose 'em case," Sydney Herald.

Tiger Canning

About to travel to India, a man was told by his friends to be sure not to miss the tiger shooting.

"It's no trick at all," they said. "You hide in a thicket at night; when the beast arrives, aim between its two eyes, shining in the dark. It will fall as if struck by lightning."

On his return they asked how many tigers he had killed.

"None at all," he replied sadly. "They've become altogether too clever. They now travel in pairs, and each one closes an eye. So of course—" Paris Le Rie.

Professionalism

The seance was proving a great success. The new member of the circle, an Oldham pigeon fancier, had been brought into touch with the lately departed father-in-law, who had just announced he was an angel.

"WT wings an' all?" asked the son-in-law.

The reply was in the affirmative. "What dosti measure fra' tip to tip?" asked the pigeon fancier.—Vancouver Privince.

Hard on the Ball

She—Wasn't mother pumping you last night?

He—Yes, and I think she'd better, too. That's what I need.

She—What do you mean?

He—Your dad has been using me for a football.

A New Species

"Ferdy tells me he has never kissed his fiancée."

"Is she so old-fashioned as that?"

"No; she won't stop smoking cigarettes long enough."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SOCIETY

Ray Finley Huff, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Finley Huff, and Miss Daisy Monroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Monroe, were married on the Fourth of July at the Nazarene church picnic held on Mosby creek, nine miles beyond Blue Mountain. The ceremony was a surprise to most of those attending the picnic. The ceremony was performed by J. H. Ebert, pastor of the Methodist church, the Nazarene pastor not yet having received his license to perform marriages.

Members of the Elmarite club, with the baby of the club, enjoyed a swimming party Thursday afternoon at the steel bridge. From there they went to the Veatch picnic grounds, where their husbands met them after business hours for a picnic supper. The evening hours were spent socially around a bonfire. This was the final session of the club for the season.

Miss Evelyn DeVore and Russell H. (Buster) Stroud, both well known among the younger set of the city, were married Thursday afternoon in Eugene. They left immediately after the ceremony for Portland, returning here Friday evening. They are at home in the Villard Court apartments.

Members of the Utopia club and their families will hold a picnic Thursday, July 30. The women and children will go out in the afternoon and the men will follow after business hours.

The Women's Christian Temperance union will entertain the elderly women and shut-ins of the city at a lawn party to be held Friday afternoon, July 10, at the H. W. Titus home.

George Mosby and Lillian Horn, both of Cottage Grove, were married July 3 in Eugene, County Judge Barnard officiating.

Noel Ulza Hulse and Ruby Lulu Rubert, both of this city, were married Friday in Eugene, Judge C. P. Barnard officiating.

"A Little Learning," Etc.

Some people imagine there's nothing more to learn. They know it all and cannot be told anything more. They not only stand still while the world goes forward, but, awakened to this fact, blame the world instead of themselves. They don't know enough to place blame where it belongs.—Grit.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Lane. J. S. McKay and Rose McKay, husband and wife, Plaintiffs, vs. B. F. Baker and Mrs. B. F. Baker, his wife; Charles I. Baker and Mrs. Charles I. Baker, his wife; Elizabeth Hoffman and W. T. Hoffman, her husband; Robert Baker and Mrs. Robert Baker, his wife; Bell Koellermier and Louis Koellermier, her husband; Laura Baker Dollar and Clem Dollar, her husband; Mollie Kruse and E. S. Kruse, her husband; Fred Baker and Mrs. Fred Baker, his wife; Gladys Baker Olsen and Alfred Olsen, her husband; the unknown heirs of Thursia A. Baker, who is sometimes known as Thersia A. Baker; the unknown heirs of Ida Bell Blankenship; the unknown heirs of David M. Baker; Mrs. David M. Baker; Martha Blankenship; and also all other persons or parties unknown claiming any right, title or interest in and to the real property described in the complaint herein; Defendants.

To Martha Blankenship; the unknown heirs of Thursia A. Baker, who is sometimes known as Thersia A. Baker; the unknown heirs of Ida Bell Blankenship; the unknown heirs of David M. Baker; and all other persons or parties unknown claiming any right, title or interest in and to the real property described in the complaint herein: Defendants.

In the name of the State of Oregon: You, and each of you, are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled cause on or before six weeks from the date of first publication of this summons, and if you fail so to appear and answer said complaint, for want thereof the plaintiff will take a decree herein for the relief prayed for in said complaint, to-wit: Adjudging and decreeing that the plaintiffs are the owners of the fee simple and entitled to the possession of the whole of the premises described in the complaint and described as follows:

Lot Numbered Six (6) in Block Numbered One (1) in J. H. McFarland's Addition to the City of Cottage Grove in Lane County, State of Oregon, as platted and recorded on Page 164 of Vol. 47 of the Deeds and Records of Lane County, Oregon.

That the defendants have not, nor have either of them, any right, title, interest or claim whatsoever in and to the said premises, or any part thereof, and that plaintiffs' title to said premises be forever quieted in this suit as against the defendants and each of them, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them; and that plaintiffs have such other relief herein as to the Court may seem equitable.

This summons is published once each week for six successive weeks in The Cottage Grove Sentinel, a twice-a-week newspaper of general circulation published at Cottage Grove, Oregon, by order of the Hon. G. F. Skipworth, Judge of said County, and it bears date of the 27th day of May, 1925; and the date of the first publication of this summons is the 1st day of June, 1925.
