IF

At the night, somebody erected a notice sign directly in front of your home—it would get your attention in the morning, wouldn't it? You could stop and read every word without doubt.

It is with a Want Ad in the Cottage Grove Sentinel

Although it is, the amount of attention it gets from 5000 readers is just as certain of results as the signboard in the world.

The Iron of The Sentinel is helping to make Cottage Grove a newspaper which eminently has stated to be one of the very newspapers published anywhere.

Ingenuity Displayed by Spider Repairing Web

On the porch of a mountain cottage in Pennsylvania a tiny spider was seen to repair her web in a very interesting manner. The web, except for the threads that spread radially from the center, was torn and weatherbeaten; the spokes, so to speak, were intact and tightly stretched. Starting at the center, the spider ran outward along a radial thread, sweeping it clear of the cross threads, breaking them and collecting the fragments until she had a tiny bundle. That she would roll up with her claw and toss out into the air to drop to the ground as waste material. Apparently the gummed points of intersection of threads she softened quickly by fluid from the mouth, for she stripped the spoke perfectly clean. (The observer found later that he could not strip a spoke of cross threads by sliding a split twig along it.)

Returning to the center along the stripped spoke, the spider would free the adjoining spoke, pausing now and then to throw away her tiny ball of waste. Having reduced her web to spokes only, she proceeded to replace the part of the web that she had cleared away, spinning anew the threads that were to stretch from spoke to spoke. Such a striking example of economy of time, material and labor was a delight to see—Youth's Companion.

Labor That Calls for Much Physical Effort

A well-known writer once said that oyster dredging on the American coast was the hardest work in the world. The two dredges were wound in by hand, and that everlasting winding balances on a swaying deck, was wicked work. The moment one dredge was aboard the oysters had to be "culled," and the whole eight men of the crew were working against time from dawn till dark.

The dock laborer's job is another which entails tremendous physical effort. A steamer's time is money, and when cargo is being discharged not one moment must be wasted by any of those engaged. The amount of work that can be done in one day is almost incredible. An inquest on a dock laborer who died suddenly on a wharf was held some time ago at which it was stated that on the day of his death he had unloaded no fewer than 36,000 wood paving blocks.

Sight of Cats and Owls

The belief that cats and owls can see in the dark is a popular fallacy. The iris of a cat's eye is capable of great variation, so as to admit more or less light, thus enabling the cat to see much better in the dusk than can humans, but in absolute darkness all animals are as helpless as any human being. The feature which adapts certain eyes for use with only a poor light is the constitution of the retina which is composed of two sets of structures, the so-called rods and cones. The rods are apparently affected by radiation slightly before the cones and hence some creatures, including owls, whose eyes possess a large proportion of cones, are better suited for seeing in a faint light.

Uncomplimentary

The county inspector was paying his monthly visit to the village school. He examined the children in reading and general knowledge, as was his custom and was very pleased with the answers he received. After the last question he rose to his feet and, looking slowly around on the upturned faces, remarked genially: "I wish I was a little boy at school again." He allowed a few moments for this to sink in and then added: "Do you know why I wish that? For a moment or two there was silence, and then a childish voice from the back of the room was heard to say: "Cas you've forgot all you ever knowed."—Atlanta Journal.

Storm Clouds' Visibility

The weather bureau says that the distance at which storm clouds are visible to the naked eye varies greatly with one's position and the kind of clouds. If a person is in an open flat country and the clouds are of the broad stratus or layer type, he may not see them more than 30 or 40 miles away, and even not half so far if the air tends to be misty or hazy. On the other hand, when the air is quite clear a well developed cumulo-nimbus, or thunderstorm, cloud may, in favorable circumstances, be seen when more than 100 miles away.

Australians Know Snow

Snow falls in southeastern Australia during the winter months, and occasionally lies on the grounds as far north as Melbourne and Sydney. On the mountains and in northeastern Victoria and southern New South Wales, the snowfall is very heavy. Forests are practically buried in snow and on the plateaus of northeastern Victoria the ground is sometimes covered to the depth of several feet from May to September. This also occurs on the highlands of Tasmania, although there are no mountains bearing perpetual snowcaps in either Australia or Tasmania.

Childish Boasts

"My mother went to the sympathy concert," boasted the first little girl. "Did yours?" "Didn't need to," responded the second little girl. "We get it all over the radiator."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Another Good Way

"That's a fine car. How did you get it?" "Out of a prize competition." "Did you win it?" "No, I organized it."—London Passing Show.

Too Many Have Wrong Theory of Happiness

Happiness was not the direct object of a stoic's life. There is no rule of life contained in the precept that a man should pursue his own happiness. Many men think that they are seeking happiness when they are only seeking the gratification of some particular passion, the strongest that they have, was the contention of Marcus Aurelius. The end of a man is, as already explained, to live conformably to nature, and he will thus obtain happiness, tranquility of mind and contentment. As a means of living conformably to nature he must study the four chief virtues, each of which has its proper sphere: wisdom, or the knowledge of good and evil; justice, or the giving to every man his due; fortitude, or the enduring of labor and pain and temperance, which is moderation in all things. By thus living conformably to nature the stoic obtained all that he wished or expected. His reward was in his virtuous life, and he was satisfied with that. Some Greek poet long ago wrote: For virtue only of all human things Takes her reward not from the rewards of others. Virtue herself rewards the toils of virtue.

Musician Makes Plea for Melodic Glossary

Reverting to the elementary aspect of the question, I believe that if one were to collect as many as possible of the melodies which have given the greatest happiness to the greatest numbers, it would be feasible to compile from them a glossary of melodic terms such as would insure a melodic result with the same audience under almost any conditions, writes Ewin Evans in the Margin of Music. Then one might take the melodies which have given as much happiness to a more restricted circle, and add a list of terms the use of which was to be recommended only when the presence of that audience could be counted upon.

The composer who travels beyond these accepted glossaries will always be pronounced unmelodious until the new aural habits have taken root. So far as the best "advanced" music is concerned, it is melodious to those who know it intimately, and whose ear is capable of acquiring new habits, and it is unmelodious to those who either do not know it or do not want their habits disturbed.

Aborigines' Tobacco

Australian bushmen show great discrimination in their smoking and are adept at "curing" wild tobacco. The leaves of this plant resemble those of tobacco plants, but are smaller. The leaf gives off a nicotine oil, is pleasant to the taste, and burns well. After the leaf is gathered it is allowed to wilt but not dry. In the fermentation process damp sacks are thrown over the leaves in a warm and shady place for about a week. Then follows the drying in some airy place until the leaf shows a leathery texture. The midribs and stalks are now removed and the leaf is arranged in layers and sprinkled with heated treacle, rum, and if possible, a little salt-peter. The whole is then packed in a box and pressed until curing is complete.

Gave Up Reform Idea

St. Michael is honored by various orders of chivalry, among them one founded by Louis XI of France, which bore the name of the Order of the Cockle. It derived its name from the cockle shells which ornamented the robes of the knight. A partly religious institution connected with the saint was the Society of Fools, founded at Cleves in 1381. Its amiable object was to prevent the rising generation from adopting bad habits. Knights of the order wore on their mantles an emblem of a fool, his cap and bells. The title of the society suggests that members well realized that to attempt reforming boys and girls was a fool's errand.

Other Side of the Ledger

Jones was sent by his employer, a bookmaker, to collect a betting debt from Smith, who was notorious for his slackness in settling accounts. After listening to several excuses Jones remarked: "Well, at least let me know on what date I may expect payment." Smith replied: "Do you take me for a prophet?" "No," responded Jones. "Up to the present time I have always regarded you as a loss!"

Where Days Are Short

North cape, at the extreme north of Norway, is within the Arctic circle, and at that point the sun does not rise for two months in mid-winter—that is to say, there is continuous night from November 20 to January 23. On these two days, the sun barely shows its upper edge above the horizon. Sunset almost immediately follows sunrise, and these therefore are the shortest days at North cape.
