NOTICE TO PUBLIC. It has come to our attention that malicious persons are circulating the report that we are going out of business and leaving Saginaw. This we most emphatically deny. In our sixteen years of residence here, ten of which have been in the store and postoffice, we have made many good friends in Saginaw and the surrounding community, and we intend to remain here and in business indefinitely, all talk to the contrary notwithstanding. MR. and MRS. F. T. BENSTON.

Keep Money In Circulation Here Every Dollar Sent Out of the Community Reduces the Chances of Prosperity and Growth. This is an age of competition, an age where the things that survive in the business world are the things that must prove their merit. Anything that is useless or inefficient soon loses out in the strenuous race for supremacy. So when you view your successful business establishments in your home community you are viewing those that have proved their merit and a right to your patronage and consideration. The business field, in the small towns especially, is not exclusive to anybody. The game is open to anybody who desires to enter and cares to risk the necessary capital. Nobody faces fiercer competition on every hand than the country merchant. A dissatisfied customer does not have to trade with him and he knows it. There are the competing stores across the street or next door. Or, if those do not suit, there are usually towns within a very short distance that invite his patronage. So the country merchant must find a way to meet these conditions, and he can only meet them by giving service and the goods and prices that satisfy the customers. Most people expect and receive accommodation from the home merchant which they would never receive in a thousand years from the mail order concern. Just this feature of accommodation should be a strong point in favor of the home merchant, but that is not all. There are the churches, the schools, the various public activities that are only possible because the home merchant and business man are doing a successful business. All of these things are inseparable and if everybody would trade out of town, the town would decay and public activities would soon cease. There is no way that a prosperous town can be maintained and at the same time have a large part of the business of the town sent elsewhere. Many people do not realize what it means to send money out of the town. Of course a few would not matter, but when it begins to mount up to thousands of dollars each month then one can see the vast damage to the city caused by the loss of this liquid capital. The banks find their business curtailed, the merchants cannot carry the stock they should, money becomes "tight" and everybody finds it scarce because it has been sent away to the everlastingly benefit of some big, overgrown metropolis. On another page of the issue will be found the advertisements of business institutions that are particularly interested in getting their side of this question before the public. They have selected The Sentinel as their medium of expression. Take note of their advertisement. They have their capital invested in their various enterprises and wish to show you by service rendered that they deserve your patronage.
