Ink Stains on Carpets. When ink is spilled on a carpet or rug lay on pieces of blotting paper, changing them as often as filled with ink. Now wash the spot with a piece of sponge, dipped into milk, squeezing it dry between each application and soaking it full of more milk. When the ink has all been taken out wash the place in weak suds and then rinse with a spongeful of clear water. Let it dry without exposure to dust, and it will be difficult to tell where the accident happened.
