HUMAN LIFE IS CHEAP.

A young man who until less than a month ago was a resident here has confessed that he committed murder in order to secure the car owned by the man whom he killed.

The car was not a high priced one. A few hundred dollars would have purchased it. For this paltry amount a human life was taken. The young man did not intend to take life, he said, until his victim resisted, but then he had no qualms of conscience about shedding human blood.

The young man who committed the crime probably will swing for his rash deed, for the crime was a brutal, inexcusable one. The possibility of such an outcome seems to have made no impression on the young man who thought an automobile worth more than a human life.

Two lives for a cheap automobile! How cheap is human life! Had the operator of an automobile killed a pig that chanced to get in the way of his car, he might have been compelled to make amends to the owner of the pig. Had the operator of an automobile operated his vehicle in such a manner as to injure another car, he probably would have offered to settle for the damages.

But a human life is cheaper than that. Those who lose a husband or father by the hand of the homicide receive nothing in exchange. The penalty of a life for a life does not buy bread or butter or provide a husband's or father's love and care.

SPRINGFIELD WILL APPLAUD.

The Terminal company stock was promptly and heavily over-subscribed. When Eugene starts in to do a thing, it goes the whole round.—Eugene Register.

The Sentinel is inclined to believe that Springfield will endorse the concluding sentence of the above squib.

Theater News

Good news for local film fans! "The Thundering Herd," Paramount's celluloid version of the famous Zane Grey novel is headed this way and will make its local debut at the Arcade Theater next Friday.

It is a romance of the "Old West" that will carry one from the pavements of today to the trails of yesterday, from the li-mousines of this period to the covered wagons of 1876. All the thrills and adventurous action of fifty years ago live again in this glorious epic story which was filmed under the direction of William K. Howard.

The picture deals with two of the many caravans of pioneers that started west to hunt buffalo and establish themselves in the new land. In one caravan are Jack Holt, Raymon Hatton and Charles Ogle; in the other, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and Lillian Leighton. Beery, who is Miss Wilson's guardian, mistreats her and she endeavors to escape. Holt, in love with her, tries to aid her but is himself shot in the attempt.

Holt's company is attacked by a band of five hundred Indians. The tiny handful of buffalo hunters battle until they are out of shot. Holt heroically risks his life in crawling through the enemy lines to an outlying ammunition wagon and turns the tide of victory.

Meanwhile dissension arises in the Beery outfit, and during the fight that follows, Miss Wilson makes her escape, but is sighted and pursued by a war-party of Indians. In trying to get away from them, she is caught in a stampede of two thousand feared-eared buffalo.

Only a miracle, it seems, can save her! It is at this crucial moment that Holt providentially appears. In a desperate attempt to rescue her, he rides into the wild, following herd. The scene that follows is one of the most breath-taking in the entire production, building carefully to the final and smashing climax.

Aside from its dramatic strength of story, "The Thundering Herd" is noteworthy because of its historical significance. Every red-blooded American should see this picture if only to learn something of the greatness of our own American heritage.

Friar Bacon's Brazen Head Is Old Legend

According to a legend prevalent in the Middle Ages, Roger Bacon (1214-1292) spent seven years constructing a brazen head, which he fancied would tell him how to surround the island of Great Britain with a wall of brass. This head was to speak within a month after its completion, but no special hour was set for so doing. Bacon, accordingly, set his servant to watch, specially enjoining him to notify his master in case the head should speak. At the end of the first half hour the servant heard the head exclaim: "Time is!" at the end of the second half hour, "Time was," and at the end of the third half hour, "Time's past," whereupon it fell with a loud crash and was shattered to pieces. The servant neglected to call Bacon, thinking he would not care to be disturbed by such a trifle, and thus the knowledge necessary to build the brazen wall was never acquired.

This belief in the existence of a talking brazen head was widely spread in the Middle Ages. Gerbert, a French churchman, is said to have made such a head; and Albertus Magnus is alleged to have constructed an entire man of brass.—Kansas City Star.

Can Learn Much by Study of Child Mind

"The child mind," said Professor Davidson, "is almost beyond comprehension, and yet, if studied carefully, it is the key to all psychology, for children are true mirrors of human nature. We often wonder why Robert insists on a five-cent but like Ralph's instead of the better, more costly one his father bought him, and why Mary threw her wax doll into the corner and demanded a rag doll like Martha's. "One Christmas I sent my niece and nephew each a ring. Edith's had a ruby and Alfred's a plain seal. My sister with many exclamations, presented the rings and waited for the happy burst of joy, but, to her amazement, Alfred began to cry. "Why, Alfred, what's the matter?" demanded his mother. "Oh," sobbed Alfred, "I want a ring with a stop light."

"Why, Alfred, what's the matter?" demanded his mother. "Oh," sobbed Alfred, "I want a ring with a stop light."

Why He Did Not Fight

White, who was small and puny, had offended Brown, who was a powerful fellow six feet in height, and who had, in consequence, declared that he would thrash White whenever he met him.

Some time later an unkind fate threw them together, and true to his promise, the big man gave poor White such a beating on the face as almost to knock him down.

Recovering himself, the victim exclaimed: "Confound it, sir! What's that for? Do you mean that in jest or earnest?"

"In earnest," replied the other, placing himself in a fighting attitude.

"Oh, very well," said White. "If it's in earnest, there's nothing more to be said, but if it had been in jest I should not have liked it at all."

And he walked off.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Bad Temper Harmful

Bad temper, an eminent pathologist has discovered has the strange effect of increasing the amount of sugar in the blood by 10 per cent to 30 per cent in the course of a few minutes. That is why an angry man wants to fight the object of his rage. He becomes hot-blooded because the accession of carbonaceous material intoxicates his muscular system. The strange thing is that this rapid change is due to a tiny gland about the size of a pin. When it functions normally a person remains calm and even-tempered. If the essence exudes too lavishly, hatred, passion, and quarrels ensue.

Wise at Last

An old man was leading two lively calves out to pasture in the morning. When he came to the field he tied one of the calves to one of his boot straps and the other to the opposite boot strap, while he opened the rickety gate. The calves proceeded to run away. When he was picked up, much the worse for wear, his wife asked him: "Didn't you know any better than to do a foolish trick like that?" "Yes," he answered, "I hadn't been dragged four rods before I saw my mistake."

Try This Test

Close your eyes and walk at a tree or other object some distance away. You will find that you veer widely in one direction or the other. Right-handed men frequently go to the right, left-handed to the left. This is probably due to small irregularities in the stride, one leg working a trifle more strongly than the other. The only person who can walk a straight line is a blind man, who has trained his sense of direction to an exceedingly high degree because of his affliction.

Moon's Visibility

Owing to the facts that the rotation of the moon on its axis and its motion around the earth are not quite uniform, and that the moon's axis is not quite perpendicular to its orbit, we see extra portions of the eastern and western faces and the north and south caps. The motion caused by these deviations are called the librations of the moon, and they allow about three-fifths of the moon's surface to be visible at one time or another.

NO. COMPANY'S NOT COMING

If you drop a dish cloth, company won't come, save as a matter of coincidence. Popular superstitions like this are losing ground; so is the superstition that there is something mysteriously better about "eastern" motor lubricants, merely because they cost more and are made in the east.

The Right Way to Judge Motor Oils

More than ever, motorists are discovering that the test of an oil is not where but how it is made, and how it lubricates. That's why Zerolene—refined from selected western naphthenic base crudes—is today successfully lubricating more cars in the Pacific Coast states than any other oil made.

An Exclusive Process—What it Does

Lubricating qualities have never been more carefully successfully preserved than by the processes used in Standard Oil Company refineries for the refining of Zerolene—the Zerolene high-vacuum process, the Zerolene process of filtration through 40 tons of Florida Fuller's Earth, the refineries' 15 positive checks for quality!

What Zerolene Will Do For Your Car

Zerolene will give your car better lubrication: it increases the gasoline mileage, reduces carbon-removal and maintenance costs and lengthens the life of any engine in which it is used. Why pay tribute to a superstition? Insist on Zerolene. Always ask for Zerolene by name.

Get the Facts!

A series of independent and impartial reports showing the experience of large users with Zerolene motor oil has been collected in our booklet, "Why Pay Tribute to a Superstition?" Ask any Standard Oil Company representative or Zerolene dealer for a copy.

Insist on Zerolene—even if it does cost less
