COAST FORK MILLS ARE VISITED BY JUNKETERS

Galloping Goose Railway Gets Plenty of Logs for the Weise Mill.

Rouse Water Power Mill Is Reminder of Days Fifty Years Ago.

turn upon their axles, instead of having fixed axles which revolve in a groove.

Mr. Jones is a pioneer operator of this section. Thirty-six years ago he was operating two small mills in timber west of here. One mill was located upon what is now the city's west side watershed. Thirty years ago he was operating at Saginaw, later selling to Booth-Kelly, and 12 years ago he was operating at Disston.

The Jones mill is reached by a steep road turning off from the Black Butte road.

The visitors were puzzled as to how loaded trucks were kept from running away. They had their curiosity satisfied. A truck came down the grade, seeming to have no trouble whatever. A shoe had been placed under one wheel of the trailer, being held there by a chain fastened ahead. This acted as an effective brake.

The greatest inconvenience of the Jones operation is the necessity to truck the lumber to Cottage Grove, a distance of 16 miles. This expense is overcome by the quality of the timber in which the mill is operating and the ease with which logging operations are conducted. On their return to the city the junketers found at least one truck cutting down the distance of its haul. It was dumping planks to be used in bridging the country road at a point at which the W. A. Woodard Lumber company will log across the road to provide timber for its mill A, which will resume operations shortly. Evidently the mills of the section are on good terms when they buy from one another.

On the return trip several members of the junket party stopped at the J. B. Rouse water power mill situated between London and Black Butte, where it first operated nearly half a century ago.

At the south end of the Coast fork valley are the last word in modern sawmills, the Anderson & Middleton and W. A. Woodard plants. Almost at the other end of the valley is the Rouse mill that is a reminder of the earliest days of sawmilling in this section, when this mill was a pretentious one, the largest in this part of the state. Its product was taken north as far as Albany and south as far as Roseburg. Nearly every building of the early days that had sawed lumber got the lumber at the Rouse mill. Several years ago the building that stood where the Pastime cigar store is now located was torn down to make room for the new building. The lumber in this was sawed by Mr. Rouse. After having been in use for 32 years, it was worth more than the original price. In the early days $5 the thousand was a good figure.

Mr. Rouse is yet the operator of the mill and turns out lumber the equal of that turned out by the modern steam driven or electrically driven mills. He is still using a dam which he constructed back in 1876.

When the mill was first operated Mr. Rouse used what was known as a sash saw. Few of today have ever seen one. It worked up and down after the manner of a hand saw. He later installed one of the first rotary or circular saws ever used on the coast. Mr. Rouse remarked that the term "sash" as used in "window sash" probably originated from the fact that the lumber was cut by one of the old sash saws.

Water power is used for all the operations at the Rouse mill. Mr. Rouse is a genius in applying such power and has added little touches of modernity with it. He uses a small amount of power to operate the mechanism that raises the gate for the big turbine, which furnishes sufficient power to operate saws and planer at the same time. Water power puts the logs on the carriage.

Part of the building now in use was erected back in the early 70s. An old bull wheel and trunnel wheel that were used in the early days to pull the logs onto the carriage have never been removed, but they have not been used for many years. The big bull wheel had big wooden spikes that meshed with the trunnel wheel and thus the power was applied. The trunnel wheel was also entirely of wood. The principle was the same as that of the cog wheels of today and the results were the same.

Five men are employed at this mill.

L. H. Woods, of Nebraska, who is visiting his son, W. J. Woods, was a member of the party. Coming from a state where corn cobs make first class fuel, he was almost stunned by the fact that the mills of the Coast fork alone were burning waste that seemed sufficient for fuel for the entire state of Nebraska.

The smoke of the A. L. Woodard mill, on the Sixth street road, could be seen, but this was left for a future trip.

The Anderson & Middleton Latham mill, the Southern Pacific tie plant, the Standard Bridge company's mammoth plant, the W. A. Woodard Lumber company's manufacturing plant and the two mills of the W. A. Woodard Lumber company, are on the Coast fork, but these were not visited. The Woodard operations and the Standard Bridge company's plant have been visited and the Anderson & Middleton mill and the tie plant are to be visited upon another trip.

ARE YOU ALL RUN DOWN?

Many Cottage Grove Folks Have Felt That Way.

Feel all out of sorts?
Tired, achy, blue, irritable?
Back lame and stiff?
It may be the story of weak kidneys!

Of toxic poisons circulating about upsetting blood and nerves.
There's a way to feel right again.

There's a way to feel right with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many Cottage Grove people:

Mrs. J. W. Clark, south Second street, Cottage Grove, says: "My kidneys were in bad condition and I suffered with a continual dull, nagging backache. I had no energy and became run down. I also had spells of headache and my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Pills helped me wonderfully, strengthening my back and kidneys and benefitting me generally."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Clark had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. s14&21

Tire Prices Are LOW—CRUDE RUBBER HIGHEST IN YEARS

Buy Now and Save Money!

The unprecedented demand for Firestone quality and mileage has more than doubled the sales of Gum-Dipped Cords to car owners so far this year, enabling us—because of this tremendous volume—to keep prices low.

Firestone extra process, is also one of the biggest and most important economy factors in tire performance. This method of treating cord fabric, developed by Firestone tire chemists and engineers, insulates every fiber of every cord with rubber, and gives the sidewalls the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strain—insuring maximum safety, comfort and economy.

Buy now—make sure of economical transportation by obtaining these outstanding Firestone superiorities at present low prices.

Experienced car owners insist on tires that deliver the greatest mileage at the lowest cost per mile, because such tires last longer—make the restricted rubber supply go further—reduce crude rubber costs—and help maintain the present low tire prices.
