UTILITIES ARE HELPED BY NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

Next to good service by the public utilities comes the importance of having the people served appreciate that they are getting good service, to know what is behind the service, and to understand all the fundamentals of the industry, in the opinion of B. J. Mullaney, vice president, Peoples' Gas, Light and Coke company, Chicago, and one of the foremost public utility men of the country. "Advertising of the right sort in the home town newspapers of every community served may be confidently expected to bring about this understanding," he says. "If understanding of the public utilities can be developed to a point where it will reduce contests, hearings, and rate litigation to a minimum the aggregate cost of all the advertising and all the information committee work and all the employees' organizations of all the utilities will still be a negligible item in comparison with the total expense of the industry in preventing confiscation by resort to defensive activities before courts and tribunals. "But greater than that—the spectre of communism will fade away and the political buccaneer will be able to recruit no crew under his red flag. The industry will have performed a duty which it owes to the state—a duty no less important than the duty it owes to its customers to serve them well."
