OREGON'S BONDED DEBT.

Oregon is not the poverty-stricken state that some calamity howlers would have it appear to be. As to bonded debt it stands well below the average, although the number of outstanding bonds that are a direct charge against the taxpayers of a state may not be a certain indication of the financial condition or prosperity of the state. There is the possibility that the lack of bonded indebtedness is an indication of why Oregon is not generally considered as progressive a state as others. For example, California has a per capita bonded indebtedness, as shown in recent statistics prepared by the Oregon Voter, of $22.78, while Oregon's per capita bonded indebtedness is but $7.42. The average for the entire country is $11.42, the Voter's tables show.

Oregon does have, however, a high per capita bonded indebtedness, if bonds such as highway bonds are included, but these are not a direct charge against property and will not be paid from funds raised by direct taxation. Municipal water bonds, to be paid from earnings of a water system, are another example of bonds that are not a direct charge against the taxpayer and should not be considered in computing the per capita indebtedness.

With a per capita bonded indebtedness of only $7.42, while other states have per capita bonded indebtedness running as high as $38.87 in North Carolina, the old Webfoot state is sitting pretty. Not only is the bonded indebtedness small, but a leading authority upon taxation and assessments, at that time a member of the legislature, made the statement that property in Oregon that escapes taxation would more than offset the entire bonded debt of the state, the debts of counties, school districts and cities included. The old state will not need a receiver for some time.

About all some people do to keep in physical condition is to exercise their prerogatives and to do everything possible to keep from doing something for someone else.

The present arrangement on women's clothes is convenient. Whenever the 14-year-old daughter gets tired of a dress, the mother can wear it.

The parents of half a dozen daughters have nothing to learn from the parable of the loaves and fishes.

SILK STOCKINGS IN SCHOOL.

Our schools should be our most democratic institution. Walla Walla proposes to make them so by barring party clothes in the schools of that city. Silk stockings must not adorn the limbs of maids attending classes there and gowns must be simple.

These are not orders issued by the school board, but rather by the student board of control.

Girls attending school these days have more trouble with their clothes than they do with their studies. It is easier to get a lesson in Latin or algebra than to get the marcel in exactly the right spot or the dress the distance from the floor that the extreme fashion will permit. It is more difficult to keep up with so and so in clothes than to lead the class in scholarship.

The Walla Walla student board of control has set an example that might make it possible for a greater number of those starting to college to pass the entrance exams. At any rate the council has set an example that parents of several children, especially if they are girls, are likely to applaud.

Clothes do not make the scholar.

LONDON.

(Special to The Sentinel.)
Oct. 7.—Miss Helen Dubois and Miss Winnifred Grannis spent last week end in Portland visiting relatives.

Calvin Pryor, of Eugene, was a caller at the J. E. Banton home Sunday afternoon. Mr. Pryor and Mrs. Banton were former school mates, but had not met since they were children.

Henry Combs was up from Corvallis the fore part of the week and assisted his renter, Leonard Andrews, to get settled on the farm.

Bert Newton moved his family to camp B Sunday.
Mrs. James Powell took her son Norland and her niece, Miss Elva Powell, to Cottage Grove Saturday for tonsil operations. Norland was also operated on for adenoids.

Charles Powell has purchased a Chevrolet car.

Several from here attended the ice cream social at Hebron hall Saturday evening and quite a number attended the lecture given at the same place Monday evening.

Mrs. Andrews, of Corvallis, attended church services here Sunday evening.

As we understand Senator Stanfield's interview in The Oregonian, he publicly proclaims that he was not guilty and that he will not do it again, and that furthermore he will hereafter drink as he votes.—Corvallis Gazette-Times.

Teachers of the city schools were honor guests Monday evening in the gymnasium at the annual teachers' reception sponsored by the Tuesday Evening Study club and the school board. A large number of patrons attended the affair, the purpose of which was to bring about the acquaintance of teachers and parents. A social hour followed the program. The program follows: Orchestra selection; prayer and greeting from the church, J. C. Orr; welcome from school board and patrons, C. E. Umphrey; response from teachers, O. W. Hays; vocal solo, Mrs. Glen Hanes; violin solo, Ramona Spriggs, accompanied by Helen Ostrander; musical selections, The Choral club, Margaret Land, Laura Stewart, Helen Ostrander, Alberta Williams, Ralph Boslough, Mrs. Herman Edwards, accompanist; vocal solo, George Matthews.

Mrs. R. B. Job entertained informally Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. A. B. Wood, of San Diego, Calif. A lap lunch was served and the time was spent in social conversation. Dahlias formed the decoration for the house. Guests were Mrs. J. H. Chambers, Mrs. H. H. Veatch, Mrs. Herbert Eakin, Mrs. H. A. Miller, Mrs. N. E. Compton, Mrs. Catharine Bader, Mrs. Nancy Porter, Mrs. Clara Burkholder, Mrs. Charles Adams.

The annual dinner party of the Toujours Prete club was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. R. L. Stewart. The rooms were attractively decorated with snapdragons and delphiniums in pastel shades. The centerpiece was a bowl of delicately tinted sweet peas and ferns. Annual election of officers was held. Ermias Vilette was named president, Clara Milne, vice president and Mrs. Hallie Hawkins, secretary-treasurer.

The O. L. H. club met Tuesday with Mrs. D. H. Hemenway. Bridge was the entertainment feature of the afternoon. A dainty luncheon was served. Choice dahlias decorated the living room and a cluster of pink roses formed the centerpiece for the table. Invited guests were Mrs. D. C. Bosley, Mrs. E. E. Chaloupka, Mrs. J. Q. Willets, Mrs. Caroline Brand and Mrs. W. J. White.

The Tanglefoot club met Tuesday evening for the first dance of the season. About 35 couples were present. Clusters of autumn leaves and flowers and softly shaded lamps formed the decorations. Members of the hostess committee were Mrs. W. A. Garoutte, Mrs. J. A. Rentle, Mrs. G. A. Sanders, Mrs. C. J. Kem, Mrs. Fred Anderson, Mrs. Carl Witte and Mrs. H. A. Hagen.

Mrs. Schofield Stewart entertained the Tuesday Bridge club at a one o'clock luncheon Tuesday. The table was centered with a basket of orange shaded marigolds and clever Halloween place cards were used. Autumn leaves and zinnias were house decorations. Mrs. R. L. Stewart received honors at bridge. Miss Naomi Hoskins was a guest.

The women's relief corps will meet in regular session Saturday in the I. O. O. F. hall. Mrs. H. E. Slattery, of Eugene, and others from the corps of that city, will be present. Quarterly dinner will be served at noon.

The Tuesday Evening Study club met Tuesday evening in the room of Miss Hamant in the east side school building. The study of South America was continued. Mrs. Charles Adams and Mrs. S. L. Mackin gave interesting lectures on several countries.

The Auxiliary of the American Legion met last night at the home of Mrs. Ray Nelson to sew rugs to be made into rugs for the veterans' hospital. Members will meet again Monday evening with Mrs. E. T. Blakely.

Mrs. N. J. Nelson Jr. entertained a committee of the Keepers of the Den last night. The evening was spent in bridge after the business meeting.

RAISING TAXES IS WAY TO GET TIMBER OUT

boom. "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow"—is too far away to worry over.

"Has not the time come for the federal and state governments to approach this matter from the standpoint of the general welfare of all the people?"

Sure. Leave it to the government. But don't interrupt our joyride.

"Is it not time to find some substitute for the present form of timber taxation, and permit our stock of standing timber to be drawn upon only as the needs of the people demand?"

Aha! The timber barons want to dodge taxes; so that's the idea, is it? Well, they have no votes, so we'll soak 'em all the harder.

"Any public policy based on the assumption that this problem can be solved without the solution of the forest tax problem is simply leading the country up a blind alley."

What care we, provided it's the primrose path or the great white way, and the timber barons provide the spending money.

"So long as increasing annual ad valorem taxes are pyramided upon standing timber, as distinguished from taxes levied when and as the timber is cut, just so long will the timber be cut, not to meet the ascertained needs of commerce, but to escape a burden that becomes almost intolerable."

How these millionaires suffer! "Cutting timber to meet the reasonable needs of consumption is economy; cutting it to avoid the confiscation of capital values is waste; but it is a waste due in this case not nearly so much to the voluntary act of the timber owner, as to an unwise method of taxation."

Why not confiscate if by so doing we can transfer the capital values from the timber into cash that we can spend in speedy living?"

"This question must be faced squarely if we are to have real conservation and real reforestation practiced in the woods and not on paper."

We prefer it on paper; that provides us with political issues and editorial texts. Why settle any live question if by so doing we deprive our politicians of their campaign appeals and our newspapers of their thunder juice?"

"I believe thoroughly in competition. Competition develops initiative, energy and efficiency in individuals and in corporations—and even in nations. It is the basis of much of our progress. Competition, however, must be governed by reason. If an individual exhausts his vital energies in competing for a prize he has made a failure. That is what is now happening to this nation in the conversion of one of its greatest natural resources which can be conserved only through the adoption and application of a sound public policy."

A voice crying in the wilderness. Wonder if there is anything to what he says? They're holding a convention today; let's play golf.

BULLETS FAIL TO STOP
FLEEING DRIVER

Three Men Are Caught in Roseburg After Blinding Deputy Pitcher.

Three men who drove away from a West Springfield service station early Tuesday morning without paying for a tank full of gasoline made their escape from Deputy Sheriff Green Pitcher, who fired a shot at the tires of their machine, and were later arrested in Roseburg and held on a charge of transporting a stolen car from one state to another. Pitcher, receiving word from Eugene to stop them, stationed himself on the corner of Fifth and Main streets and fired at their car when they refused to stop, but they speeded on south.

Pitcher impressed into service a nearby car and driver and chased the fleeing men to Divide. There he gave up the chase and called the Roseburg officers who effected the capture by blocking the highway. The car was stolen in Seattle. The occupants were armed, officers said.

G-r-r!

Little Doreen Turner and Pal, the famous movie dog, are great friends. She is almost the only person besides Pal's owner whom the dog will obey.

One day, during the making of a picture, some of the extras began plaguing the little girl, until in exasperation she ran off the set. Presently she returned with Pal, and walking up to the group said:

"Now say those things again, and I'll bite you with my dog."
