SOME QUESTIONS TO ANSWER.

In recent tests conducted by the Review of Reviews on current history among high school students, 43 per cent was the general average of efficiency. Babe Ruth was thought to be the prodigal son of Ma Ferguson of Texas, Teapot Dome was thought to be a restaurant building in Washington and the photograph of President Coolidge was not recognized by a large proportion of those to whom the test was applied.

Where are we at and where are we going? "Don't our schools teach anything?" many are likely to ask. But let us apply the test to the older generation.

The Sentinel makes the statement, without any fear of successful contradiction, that there are some people in Oregon who do not know who is governor of the state, that a greater number do not know who is mayor of Portland, that 75 per cent of the voters of the state can not name the three congressmen and two senators, that 90 per cent can not name all the state officers, that 80 per cent of the voters of Lane county can not tell how many representatives and how many senators we have in the state legislature, that 80 per cent of the residents of Lane county can not name the legislators from this county, that 10 per cent of the residents of Cottage Grove do not know who is mayor of the city, that 50 per cent can not tell how many councilmen the city has and give their names, and that 100 per cent of the people of the state are unable to give the proportion that Governor Pierce has reduced taxation.

California stands in fear of Florida, which has made a strong bid to the wealthy to become residents of its state by placing an inhibition on income and inheritance taxes. The California legislature will be asked to follow Florida, to the end that California may lead the nation rather than follow. The downtrodden wealthy must be greatly gratified by this exhibition of solicitude for their welfare.

G. Lansing Hurd, recently of the Corvallis Gazette-Times, is putting Oregon pep into the Californians with his Republican at Santa Rosa. He announces that he will give the city its first leased wire telegraph news service.

A Ford car at Baraboo, Wis., bucked down hill and over a grade and lodged in the branches of a tree. Henry must have equipped the flivver with glands from one of his experimental airplanes.

The army and navy air services may get down to earth by the time Colonel Mitchell gets done trying the judges who have been assigned to court martial him.

Miss Frances Mackin, Miss Madeline Beidler and Miss Frances Beaulieu were hostesses to 22 of their boy and girl friends Saturday night at a Halloween party at the S. L. Mackin home. Halloween games and contests formed the entertainment. Dainty refreshments were served by the mothers of the hostesses. The rooms were elegantly decorated in black and white colors of the Halloween season. Real Halloween "ghosts" met the small guests upon their arrival and conducted them through the rooms.

Mrs. A. W. Kime was hostess Sunday to a small group of friends at an informal dinner, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. William Landess, Mrs. Linnie Violette, Miss Ermine Violette, Miss Rachel Short, Miss Geneva Kime and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kime. Mrs. Roy Romaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kime, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. John Long, both of Salem, were additional guests.

Mrs. Elmer Munson was hostess Thursday afternoon to the Ad Libitum club. The rooms were attractively decorated with choice yellow and lavender chrysanthemums. The afternoon was spent in social conversation and needlework, after which luncheon was served. Plans were made for a Christmas gift exchange. This will be in the form of a grab box instead of the usual trading of names.

Mrs. Schofield Stewart's class of the Presbyterian church held a Halloween party in the basement of the church Friday evening. Games were played and refreshments of doughnuts and cider served. Ethel Bennett was winner in the peanut hunt and in the contest for best dressed clothes pin. Dorothy Baldwin won a guessing contest.

The auxiliary of the American Legion will give card parties Wednesday afternoon and evening for the benefit of the Legion drum corps. The afternoon party will be for women, while the party in the evening will be a stag affair, for men only. Mrs. C. C. Cruson and Mrs. Victor Chambers will be in charge. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. E. W. Arnes, Mrs. O. H. Nichols and Mrs. V. T. Randall were hostesses Thursday afternoon to the Constellation club. The rooms were decorated with chrysanthemums and old fashioned cockscomb. Refreshments were served at the close of the social afternoon. Miss Belle Burkholder and Mrs. E. W. Frans were special guests.

Wandering Jew One of Oldest Legends

The story of the "Wandering Jew" is one of those old legends that has been handed down from the ages, and every one is at liberty to form his own judgments as to its truth. As to its origin, tradition says that Kartaphilos, the doorkeeper in the Judgment hall, in the service of Pontius Pilate, struck our Lord as he led him forth, saying, "Get on! Away with you! Away!" Our Lord replied "Truly I am going, and that quickly, but tarry thou till I come." A third legend says it was the cobbler who haled Jesus before Pilate, saying, "Faster, Jesus, faster." Still another legend says that Kartaphilos was baptized by Ananias some time after the crucifixion, receiving the name of Joseph. At the end of every 100 years, he is said to fall into a trance and waken up a young man of about thirty. There are also German and French legends about the "Wandering Jew," and many romances have been written on the subject, the most popular, perhaps, being Eugene Sue's story, "The Wandering Jew."

Gas Masks for All Animals in Warfare

Carrier pigeons, horses, mules, dogs and other animals used by the army in wartime will be equipped with gas masks should the United States ever engage in another war in which poison gases are used, according to an announcement made at the headquarters of the Second corps area, Governors Island, the New York Times reports. The mask for horses and mules consists of a cheesecloth bag which covers the nostrils and upper jaw only. Horses and mules breathe only through the nose, so that it is not necessary for the mask to cover the mouth. Their eyes need no protection against tear gas, as they have no tear ducts. The mask is designed to be carried in a satchel on the breast harness when not in use. The dog mask is built on similar lines, except that it covers both upper and lower jaws. Carrier pigeons will not be equipped with masks while in flight, but will be protected from chemical agents by a special gas cover completely surrounding their transport cages. Loose leaf ledger sheets of every kind. The Sentinel.

POWER CONTRIBUTES MUCH TO ADVANCE CIVILIZATION

Man's daily life depends greatly upon the modern applications of energy.

He turns on his bath in the morning, and generally a great pumping engine, of the existence of which he has probably never thought, sends the water gushing from the tap.

The clothes that he puts on have been spun and woven in great power driven factories, and the family spinning wheels and craftsman's looms of past generations are consigned to attics, museums and ancestral reliquaries.

The paper beside his plate has been made in a power-driven machine and printed upon a power press. The food that he eats has been planted and harvested by power-driven tractors, prepared by power driven machinery, and brought to his table by power-driven transportation.

He takes a power-driven trolley or railroad, or ferry or auto to his place of business. A power-driven elevator lifts him to an upper story. Power-actuated devices have prepared and delivered to him the material upon which he labors, and power drives the machine which he perhaps operates. Even the executive is dependent upon power for the delivery of his mail, and the current that operates his telegraph and telephone and phonograph.

And in his home, how many of the comforts and conveniences that he enjoys could he afford if they had to be made by hand—rugs, carpets, hangings, dishes, pottery, cutlery, silverware, pictures, books, magazines, musical instruments, furniture, blankets, table and bed linen! The day's work of the average workman, thanks to power and mass production, will exchange for more of these than a king's fee would have purchased a few generations ago.

And when he turns the switch that puts out his light, on retiring, he severs the connection between his home and a great electric station that day and night is pumping power through a network of wires for all sorts of uses by all sorts of people.

Spelling Lesson

Once upon a time there was a stubborn student who refused to learn to spell.

But always the teacher pleaded with the student and often said: "You will suffer some great inconvenience, if not actual tragedy, some time, by reason of this refusal of yours to study orthography!"

Yet still the student was obdurate, and said "blah." One day, after the obdurate student had grown to manhood, he poisoned himself eating oysters in "Oregon."

And when the teacher, who had now grown old and toothless teaching orthography, heard this, she said: "Uh, huh! I told him so."

A Wife-Beater

"You know Archie? He beats his wife up every morning."

"You don't say!"

"Yes. He gets up at eight, and she gets up at nine."

Suit for Money Settled.

The case of Laura A. McFarland against Olson brothers and the Guaranty Oil company of Oregon, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $500 with interest for two years, representing stock purchased in the company, has been settled out of court, it was announced today. Mrs. McFarland asked for return of her money under the money back guarantee upon which the stock was sold. Payment of the full amount involved was made by the company.

Herman Goldman (Royal Eastern company, New York) springs a bit of mystery on us.

A Scotchman thought the best method of saving money for Christmas was to put a penny in a money-box every time he kissed his wife.

This he did regularly until the holiday period came round. Then he opened the box, and out came, not only pennies, but sixpences, shillings and half-crowns.

The man was amazed, and asked his wife how she accounted for it. "Weel, Joek," she replied, "It's no ivery mon that's as stingy as you are!"
