BEN KEENEY, LANE'S LYRIC LITLIST.

Ben Keene, Lane county assessor, is attempting poetry—and they do say that he would be a fairly good versifier

if he were to devote more words rhyming with L.

We have always felt that there was something just a little wrong with Ben, but there usually is something wrong with a good poet, and we expect to see his effusions produced shortly in Atlantic Monthly,

The Smart Set and Jim Jam Jems.

Every man ought to be good for something, and this must be what Ben is good for.

There's one thing about poetry that ought to appeal to Ben.

In poetry it is more important to stick to rhyme and meter than to the truth.

Ben recited one of his original productions at a political meeting in Cottage Grove a year or two ago. The editor of The Sentinel was the motif.

Ben recited another original production at a meeting of the Farmers' union held recently at Hebron. Again the editor of The Sentinel was the motif.

If Ben sticks to subjects of that character he should be able to write good poetry, but there are other taxpayers in the county who may feel that they are paying part of Ben's salary and that they are entitled to have poems dedicated to them.

It may be only a coincidence, but Ben's poetic attention to the editor of The Sentinel—the recent effusion—followed close upon the suggestion of The Sentinel that county officers are poorly paid.

Of course whatever salary is paid for assessor, Ben is certain that he wants it.

All the poetry would be taken from his being were he to be separated from his meal ticket.

He almost pined away during the two or three years that he was deprived of this means of nourishment and it would be like driving a child from a mother's breast to drive Ben out of the court house.

It would be heartless, cruel, murderous. He was reared on the public payroll and, as the world owes every man a living, that is the way he intends to get his.

But Ben is learning. He lost the job before because of a propensity for having too many others on the payroll of his office.

He is taking no chances now. He is conserving the funds so that there may be plenty for his own check.

And he is not satisfied with merely conducting the assessor's office. He is giving liberally of his time in acting as the county's poet, all without additional remuneration.

We contend that it is not right that he should be put to this trouble. The county furnishes stationery and spittoons and automobiles for some of its officers.

Surely it ought to furnish at county expense a muse for its official poet and it ought to furnish paper upon which the official poetry is to be inscribed.

Undoubtedly sweeter poetry would be thereby inspired.

We suggest that we crown Ben as Lane's Lyric Litlist and that he be requested to set his poetic posies to music suitable for the lyre.

The apple had a remarkable influence upon human endeavor even before it was discovered that one a day will keep the doctor away and that half a dozen green ones will bring him a-running. The earliest historical reference to the apple credits it with being the cause of Adam's downfall.

Later the falling of the apple resulted in the discovery by Newton of the principle of gravity. What next?

An eminent authority upon the subject has stated that the training of the child should be begun a hundred years before it is born.

Which may be the truth, but the training should not stop the moment the child is born.

We have to do something with our legs. We don't use them much for walking.

Short skirts arrived just in time for the girls, but what shall we do for the men?

Society

Miss Ermine Violette was hostess Tuesday evening to the Toujours Prete club, with Mrs. J. Q. Willetts and Mrs. George Morgan, club mothers, and Mrs. Gavin Dyott.

Mrs. R. L. Stewart and Mrs. C. S. Roberts, sponsors, as additional guests. An interesting surprise for the guests was the announcement of the engagement of one of the club members Eloise Morgan, to Earl Fullmer.

Cards containing sentences were hidden in small baskets of candy at each plate. The sentences, when they were read by the guests, formed the announcement that the marriage would be an event of the holiday season.

Needlework occupied the evening hours, after which a dainty two course supper was served. Miss Violette was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Linnie Violette, in serving. The rooms were decorated with choice yellow chrysanthemums.

The auxiliary of the American Legion held a card party Wednesday afternoon in Phillips hall for the benefit of the Legion drum corps. Eleven tables were made up. Bridge and five hundred were the games played.

Light refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon. A short program was given. Miss Adelaide La Casse and Mrs. Victor Kem sang solos and songs were given by a quartet composed of Mrs. Victor Chambers, Mrs. Roy Short, Mrs. George Matthews and Mrs. C. C. Cruson. In the evening a card party was given for men.

The Tillicum club was entertained Wednesday evening by Mrs. George McQueen. Additional guests were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Neet, Mrs. James Potts and Jerry Wilkinson. Five hundred was the diversion of the evening and a two course luncheon was served.

The rooms were artistically decorated with autumn foliage and eggnogs. The club will hold its next meeting in two weeks at the home of Mrs. C. H. VanDenburg in Eugene.

Mrs. F. E. Grannis was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the Tuesday Bridge club. One o'clock luncheon was served at the Gray Goose, after which the guests went to the Grannis home for cards.

Mrs. E. W. Frans won the prize at bridge. Pale tinted chrysanthemums formed the decorations for the table and the rooms at the Grannis home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Miller, entertained members of the O. L. H. club and their husbands and Mrs. Henry Veatch and Miss Lulu Curran at a seven o'clock dinner Tuesday night. The rooms were artistically decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums. Following the dinner five hundred was played.

The fire company will hold its annual banquet next Monday evening in the basement of the new Joe T. Smith home on Adams avenue. A number outside the company have been invited to be guests.

"Be there! Be there! Be hungry! Be on time! Back door entrance!" the invitations intrigued those who received them.

Mrs. D. C. Bosley was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the Research club. Choice chrysanthemums formed the decorations for the rooms. The general topic of civic activities was discussed. Mrs. Robert Leep had charge of the program.

Mrs. E. E. Cone entertained at luncheon Tuesday in honor of Miss Lulu Cory of Portland. Those present were Mrs. I. A. Cone, Mrs. E. L. Cone, Mrs. C. W. Cone, Mrs. J. C. Cone and the hostess. Beautiful lavender chrysanthemums formed the decorations for the dining table.

The women's relief corps will hold regular meeting Saturday afternoon, November 14, in the I. O. O. F. hall.

Miss Lucy Case of Corvallis was a dinner guest Wednesday evening of Miss Belle Burkholder.

The Joker club will meet tomorrow with Miss Myrtle Kem.

TWO ARE BURNED WHEN CARBIDE IGNITES

V. R. Heather and George Steadman Taken to Hospital.

V. R. Heather and George Steadman, proprietors of the Shady Brook service station seven miles south of here on the Pacific highway, were severely burned Sunday night following an explosion of carbide at the station.

The men were brought here for medical attention, and later were taken to Eugene hospital.

Steadman and Heather were filling the carbide tank and the gas is thought to have exploded when a gasoline lantern they were using was brought too close to the tank.

Heather sustained burns on the hands, wrists and forehead while Steadman was burned about the face, left eye and one hand.
