"PONY EXPRESS" MILESTONE IN FILM ANNALS

Historical Realities Vie With Humanities in New Cruze Pioneer Epic.

If the sensational enthusiasm of those who have witnessed James Cruze's mighty Paramount western, "The Pony Express" may be accepted as a criterion, then the dictatorial wizard, who gave the world "The Covered Wagon" has produced another epic screen masterpiece.

"The Pony Express" has the historical realism and the majestic sweep that distinguished its famous predecessor, but it is a more colorful spectacle and a more thrilling romance than the pietisticization of Emerson Hough's great novel.

And well it might be! For in all the glamorous history of America no chapter sizzles with such exciting, picturesque and momentous events as that which deals with those feverish, restless days, early in 1860, when the dark clouds of the Civil war were swiftly but surely gathering on the horizon, and the daredevil riders of the Pony Express were in the hey-day of their glory.

Not only has Cruze succeeded in giving a graphic, unforgettable picture of the stirring achievements of these rugged heroes, who established the first active communication between the east and the west, but with their terrific hardships, dangerous escapades and glorious victories as a dramatic background, he has deftly interwoven an irresistible appealing love plot that lends a softening influence to the dynamic action.

To say that the characterizations fully measure up to the greatness of the story is to pay a well deserved tribute to the wholly delightful performance of Betty Compson as the heroine; to the histrionic ability and two-fisted manliness of Ricardo Cortez in the role of the fearless pony express rider; to the artistry of Ernest Torrence, whose portrayal of the eccentric religious fanatic is a memorable piece of acting; to the versatility of Wallace Beery, who adds to his laurels by playing a happy-go-lucky vagabond with a rollicking Chaplin-esque touch, and to the host of minor players who acquit themselves with distinction.

Henry James Forman, prominent author and editor, wrote "The Pony Express" in collaboration with Walter Woods, well known scenarist. The production marks another milestone in the history of motion pictures.

BLUE MOUNTAIN.

(Special to The Sentinel.) Nov. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Doggett and children of London visited Sunday at the J. S. Allen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frost spent Saturday evening at the W. D. Heath home at Mount View.

Miss Winnifred Jones of Eugene visited Wednesday with Miss Gladys Whipp.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford were visitors at the Persey Moody home Monday.

Mrs. John Allen and daughter Sadie visited one day last week at the home of Allen's brother, Roy Howard, in Cottage Grove.

Several of the children of the neighborhood are out of school with the whooping cough.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frost and Harry Frost visited Sunday at the home of Harry Castles.

J. Jones and Allen Jones and Frank Carson of Eugene were in the neighborhood Saturday.

Turning the Tables.

"Three gallons of gas, please."

"Yes, sir. Want some cylinder oil too?"

"No, just gas."

"Do you want some paint? Your car needs it and we've got some dandy paint—heat-proof, dirt-proof, guaranteed to wear long."

"No, I want only gas today."

"Then you want your car washed?"

"I said that I wanted only gas."

"You want a tire, then. We've got some good non-skids. Only $40 apiece. Want one? Yours—"

"I tell you I want only gas today!"

"Yes, sir; but—say, your rear lights are all shot to pieces. You need new ones. We just got in some dandy new crack-proof celloid lights. Shall I put some in?"

"No! I want only gas, do you understand?"

Your magnet needs adjusting—didja hear that funny noise in the motor when you stopp'd? It needs adjusting. I'll fix it, what?"

"Not I want only gas, gas! Do you hear!"

"Yes, sir!" And with the gas obtained, the exasperated motorist drove angrily away. But for once the garage man had got even with his barber.—W. Peter Schramm in The New Yorker.

Her Mistake.

Usher: "Lady I think you have wrong cents. May I see your stubs?"

Lady (somewhat deaf): "Young man, I want you to understand I do not smoke."
